War Center Scaled Down, To Be Built In Arlington

President Says Structure Will Be On Site Reserved for Quartermaster Unit

President Roosevelt announced yesterday that the War Department's "dream building," scaled down almost one half in size, will be built on the site reserved originally for a Quartermaster Depot in Arlington, Va.

At the same time, the President told a press conference that before he leaves office he wants to carry out the planning agency blueprint for large Army and Navy office units on the so-called Northwest Quadrangle, near old Naval Hospital, and also desires to tear down the temporary Munitions and Navy buildings erected on Constitution during the last war.

The quartermaster site, named last week by The Post as the spot where the President wanted to locate the Army office building, is north of Columbia Pike and fronts on the Washington-Richmond highway.

To Be of Simple Design

Mr. Roosevelt said that the new building would be of simple design and would contain 2¼ million square feet of floor space, rather than the structure of four million square feet that the War Department wanted to erect at the Virginia end of the Memorial Bridge.

The President announced the change in plans after putting the Army's construction branch on a three-shift basis to work out new blueprints for a building for which Congress voted $35,000,000.

The greater part of the new Army office building will be on the Quartermaster site, said the President, and a smaller portion and all the parking area will be on the old experimental farm, thus complying with a requirement of Congress that the Army building be built on the old farm or "adjoining territory."

Could Be Repository

After the war emergency is over, the President said, the new Army building could be used as a repository for the millions of Government records that are rarely consulted but must be preserved.

The Army could then move into a building which he hopes to erect east of the Naval Hospital and the Navy could move into a new structure west of the hospital hill.

The President said that if the War Department proposal of a four-million-square-foot building had been adopted, it would have been necessary to stagger the working hours of employes stationed there by as much as two hours in order to make it possible for traffic to move to and from the giant structure in the morning and at quitting time in the afternoon.

Anxious to Finish Center

The President said he was very anxious to finish the national defense center that has been planned for the Northwest Quadrangle, completing the Army Building on one side and constructing Navy offices on the other. This would make it possible to tear down the old temporary Navy and Munitions Buildings, which he termed excrescences.

Last week the President, in opposing the Memorial Bridge site for the new Army offices, said he was guilty of having the Munitions Building located in Potomac Park and did not want to injure again in that manner his chances of getting into Heaven.

The new Navy building which is proposed to go up west of the Naval Hospital could hold the entire peacetime naval establishment, he said. Likewise the completed Army units on the quadrangle site could hold the entire Army peacetime establishment.

150 Planes Ready to Fight —If They Had Propellers

Copyright, 1941, By The Washington Post.

ON AUGUST 7, the National Labor Relations Board certified the results of a collective bargaining election in a New Jersey company making airplane propellers.

The losers in the election, A. F. of L. machinists, were soreheads. On August 8, the next day, they struck.

Down the road a hundred miles or so is the great Glenn Martin airplane plant, near Baltimore. If you travel past it you can see some of its work, lined up on a field outside. They are fighting planes—about 150 of them—needed vitally and needed now.

They have no propellers.

Glenn Martin depends on the struck New Jersey plant—the propeller division of the Curtiss-Wright Co.—for its propellers.

Meanwhile, the Glenn Martin Co. depends on a "revolving pool" of 66 propellers. The planes are flown to the Army delivery point, the propellers are detached and brought back to the plant. The Army then has some fine fighting planes—minus propellers and able to do everything a plane should except fly.

The strike lasted only a week. The hours lost, to be sure, were proportionately trifling compared to the hours worked in the plant before and after the strike, and even more trifling compared to the total hours worked without interruption in all the aircraft and aircraft parts factories.

Mulishness As a Symptom Of Blindness

BUT DAMAGE was done—damage all out of proportion to the time lost at the Curtiss-Wright factory. Damage to production, damage to morale. Damage, above all, which a Nation in a mortal peril cannot afford to sustain.

It proves nothing to talk of the several million man-hours lost in the strikes which have plagued the defense program.

On one basis they can be made to appear trifling, a small fraction of per cent of the total time worked in defense plants and not even in the same class with the time lost through OPM and Army failure to speed up the construction of new aluminum and steel plants, or the time lost by manufacturers who declined to move on new work until their tax exemptions were handed to them on a silver platter.

ON another basis, with equal validity, the time lost through strikes becomes enormous, multiplying to uncountable waste throughout a whole series of other factories dependent on the strike-bound plant. The hideous effect of strikes on the morale of $21-a-month selectees in the Army needs no elaboration. More important than the time lost, more important than the strikes as results, are the strikes as symptoms—symptoms of a disease which has struck at other elements in the population besides labor. The disease is blindness, a lack of realization of the Nation's danger and of labor's danger, of the Nation's stake and labor's stake in the effort to beat Hitler.

A Swan Song Resounds Like A Battle Cry

Through lack of effort, either by the defense agencies, the Administration, or labor union leaders themselves, labor's stake in the defense of America has never been pounded home.

English labor, with a minimum number of false starts, got the idea early and has held to it steadfastly. Its acts—desperate, uncomplaining, 70 or 80 hours of work a week—testify to the British workingman's awareness of what life would be like in a world where Hitler calls the turn. No antistrike legislation is in force in England. The union and the government work together.

IN THE United States a part of labor has learned the lesson. A greater part has not. And a very small part—some selfish chiselers, some outright racketeers, and some Simon Pure traitors—is doing a job to gladden the hearts at Berchtesgaden. All too often the indifferent groups of labor, not yet come of age, have been led around by the nose by the last-named element.

A few examples out of all too many instances:

Racketeer Harry Van Arsdale, who collects indictments as some people collect stamps, is the business agent of an A. F. L. electricians' local in New York City. The union was engaged in a dispute—a dispute subject to settlement by the Labor Relations Board—with the New York utility company, Consolidated Edison. To dramatize what was in essence a minor controversy involving the employment of

Army Let 85% of Contracts by July

The War Department has called to the attention of The Post an inaccuracy appearing in this space on Saturday, August 23.

The Post had said that "Of some 5 billion dollars appropriated for Army ordnance items . . . contracts for only 55 per cent had been let" as of the end of June.

The War Department points out that immediately prior to the passage of the War Department appropriation bill, in the late afternoon of June 30, 99 per cent of all appropriations then existing for Army ordnance purposes had been obligated, and that coupled with funds then available to the War Department for lease-lend ordnance purposes the over-all average was 85 per cent obligated.

The Post is glad to make this correction.

Creation of 7-Man Priorities Body Due Today or Tomorrow

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

The creation of a seven-man priorities council to end the long conflict between the Office of Production Management and the Office of Price Control and Civilian Supply over allocations of scarce materials for defense and civilian purposes is expected to be announced today or tomorrow.

At his press conference yesterday, President Roosevelt told reporters to wait 24 hours for some sort of action on the difficult problem.

From other informed sources it was learned that the new body would consist of the OPM Council—Directors Knudsen and Hillman, Navy Secretary Knox and War Secretary Stimson—Leon Henderson, OPACS administrator; Vice President Wallace and Lease-Lend Administrator Harry Hopkins.

The new body, which might be known as a "General Requirements Board," would replace the existing Priorities Board of the OPM.

The new organization's membership, it is believed, would be such that the "New Dealers"—Henderson, Hillman, Wallace and Hopkins—would be in the majority, as distinct from the present Priorities Board from which Henderson resigned last February after disagreement with Priorities Director E. R. Stettinius, jr.

Since Henderson's appointment to the post of civilian supply chief the conflict has continued. It has con-

4-Billion Tax Bill Senate Unit's Goal

Committee Seeks Ways to Raise 400 Million More In New Levies

(Tables explaining new tax rate, Page 4.)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate Finance Committee today will search for ways to get another 400 million dollars in revenue after bringing the National defense tax bill within striking distance of a four billion-dollar goal.

Higher rates on wines and minor adjustments in the corporate normal tax schedule yesterday brought the total of the Senate bill to about 3,600 million dollars, overshooting the Treasury's original mark of 3,500 million.

A strong group within the committee, nevertheless, strove for the new four-billion-dollar total and the Treasury staff was instructed to submit additional alternative methods for bridging the gap.

Four separate plans for increasing the $3,236,700,000 House tax bill by 800 million already have been submitted by the Treasury, it was learned, but most of the suggested changes were either unacceptable to the committee or have not yet been considered.

Higher Gas Tax Rejected

Last of the Treasury proposals to go down to defeat was a recommended 1-cent-a-gallon increase in the Federal tax on gasoline. This levy would raise 255 million dollars.

The committee considered instead a half-cent-per-gallon tax increase, to raise 128 million, but rejected this by a voice vote.

Awaiting action today are Treasury recommendations for an increase of 75 cents per thousand in the tax on cigarettes, to raise $128,800,000, and for an increase of one dollar per barrel in the tax on beer, to yield $52,800,000 more.

The House sidetracked new taxes on gasoline, tobacco and beer, and increased the tax on passenger automobiles only from 3½ per cent to 7 per cent. The Treasury recommended a 15 per cent tax on automobiles, to raise about $167,200,000, and is renewing this proposal before the Senate committee.

Special Tax Up Today

Final approval of increased excess profits taxes, largely in the "optional" form approved by the House, awaited action on a special 10 per cent tax in additional profits not subjected to excess profits taxation under existing law.

The Treasury recommended, and the House approved, the special 10 per cent levy, but strong opposition has developed in the Senate committee and Treasury spokesmen this morning will state their case for it.

The committee, meantime, took the following action on the tax bill:

Approved the Treasury's short, simple tax form for optional use of persons earning $3000 and

Commissioners To Approve Police Shake-up

The Board of Commissioners today will approve recommendations of Superintendent Edward Kelly for a major shake-up of the department's personnel, as predicted exclusively in The Post August 18.

The reorganization involves promotion of five captains to inspectorships, including a new chief for the Detective Bureau, long considered the department's weakest link.

Five other precinct commanders are to retire under a new 60-year maximum age limit. The promotions and retirements will involve further promotions in lower ranks. (Details on Page 17.)

President Roosevelt visited Doctors' Hospital yesterday to see his secretary, Miss Marguerite LeHand, who has been in the hospital since June with an attack of neuritis.

Deluge Caves In New York Subways

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 26.—Streets, sidewalks, two subways and part of a railroad line caved in like paper bags tonight as the city suffered its worst transportation tie-up in history under a deluge that held New York in its fury for several hours.

Within an hour and a half, sheets of rain, driven by a 50-mile wind, inundated the metropolitan area with 2.13 inches of water and plunged the mercury from 67 to 70 degrees.

The transportation tie-up marooned thousands of persons in all parts of the city on subway and railroad trains.

More than 2,000 cars, including lines of automobiles inside the tunnel, were involved in a traffic tie-up at the Holland Tunnel, between New Jersey and Lower New York. Police took more than an hour to unravel the tangle, after emergency squads had been summoned.

Tabriz Captured By Reds as British Occupy Oil Fields, Control Highways

By the United Press

London (Wednesday), Aug. 27. — Russian occupation of Iran's second largest city and other towns in the northwestern part of the Near East kingdom was reported today, supplementing the successes of British imperial forces, including airborne troops, in seizing two key oil centers and an important port.

While the first Iranian communique, relayed by a German radio station, claimed that the defenders were resisting the Anglo-Russian invasion stubbornly, negotiations aimed at ending the campaign were under way in Teheran, capital of Iran, and dispatches from Teheran and Ankara, Turkey, said the Iranian government was in a mood to seek an end of hostilities after a token resistance.

A broadcast Tass News Agency report received here from Moscow early today told of Russian occupation of Tabriz, Iran's second city, Ardebil, Zizar and Dilman, all in the 200-mile deep northweestern section of Iran which lies between the Caspian Sea on the east and the Turkish frontier on the west.

The Tass report, based on information from Tiflis, said that Russian "advance is continuing."

Oil Centers Captured

A British communique yesterday announced the capture of the oil centers of Naft-I-Shah, near the border of Iraq; Abadan, where the world's fourth largest oil installation is located, and the important port of Bandar Shahpur on the Gulf of Persia. Seven German and Italian ships were seized at Bandar Shahpur, it was claimed.

The initial Russian advance into the country Monday morning was reported in the northwestern region with Tabriz as the immediate goal. Nothing has been heard of any Russian forces which might be coming into the country on the eastern side of the Caspian Sea.

Tabriz is about 70 miles south of the Russian border. Ardebil is 100 miles due east of Tabriz, near the Caspian, and Dilman is 80 miles due west of Tabriz, only 20 miles from the Turkish frontier.

Casualties Reported

The Iranian communique, heard here as broadcast by Breslau radio, which credited the report to the Teheran radio, said that considerable damage was done by aerial bombing of Iranian towns in the early hours of the invasion. Among the towns said to have been bombed were Ardebil and Reesht in the Caspian area in the north, Pahlevi,

Kent's Request For 'Spot of Gin' Puts Press on Spot

Anxious to show utmost hospitality to the Duke of Kent, National Press Club officials made what they thought were faultless arrangements to provide the royal visitor with his favorite "spot" at the Press Club reception yesterday, yet they miscalculated.

Whiskies, including Scotch, rye, bourbon and Irish of various brands, were awaiting the royal palate in the anteroom adjoining the auditorium where he was ushered after his speech.

Asked what drink he desired, the duke said, politely, "A spot of gin and a little gingerale, please." A waiter, sent scurrying back to the bar several score of yards away, required several minutes to obtain the drink. In the meantime, reporters' thirsts remained parched, since the correspondents refused to drink before the duke.

Roosevelt Brands Lend-Lease Misuse Reports as Sabotage

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt charged yesterday that an organized campaign is underway to sabotage the lease-lend program by spreading falsehoods, half-truths, rumors and distortions of fact about administration of the multi-billion-dollar aid effort.

Though he did not name the guilty parties, he spared no language in denouncing the tales they have spread about alleged misuse of lend-lease funds.

Rumors that the President shelled with heavy verbal artillery at a late afternoon press conference included the following:

That British representatives here have run up heavy food and liquor bills at a Washington restaurant charging them to lend-lease.

That the British have resold lend-lease supplies of steel in manufactured form to Argentina.

That the British have used lend-lease oil tankers to maintain their normal export trade.

The Chief Executive was plainly angry. He pinned harsh labels on the allegations of misuse of lend-lease funds. The labels which may not be quoted directly, included: plain dirty falsehoods — falsehoods — distortions of fact — half-truths — vicious rumors.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that he was not just issuing a denial because, he said, such stories were not worth denying. Going beyond a mere denial, he said there was no doubt that an organized sabotage campaign is under way to impede the program of aiding the enemies of Hitlerism.

The President opened fire when a reporter asked him for comment on a newspaper story, printed locally, that declared that the British Reports were received here last night that Yoshitsugu Tatekawa, the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow, had notified the Soviet government that Japan would not permit shipments of American war materials to reach Russia by way of the Pacific.

[Similar reports were heard by the United Press listening post in London and credited to a Tass (Soviet) broadcast.]

The State Department said it had received no such information and some officials expressed skepticism. However, Tatekawa went to the Kremlin last night for a conference with Foreign Commissar Molotoff, according to the advices.

The program of American aid to the Soviet Union contemplates extensive use of Vladivostok, so that a Japanese blockade of the coast could materially affect it. But whether Tokyo would go so far as to stop American ships is not certain, according to views expressed here.

Soon after the United States promised aid to Russia, Soviet merchant ships in the Pacific in leaving for Vladivostok began taking on drums of petroleum and petroleum products. Recently Harold L. Ickes, as oil coordinator, announced that four American tankers would leave West Coast ports for Vladivostok with petroleum.

The first left last week and the other three are following in close order. Whether more are to be used in this service was not stated by Ickes. Such information

Herriot Leads Rump Group Fighting Vichy

Deputies, Senators Join Movement; Sabotage Flares

By Ralph Heinzen
United Press Staff Writer

Vichy, Aug. 26.—A rump parliament, headed by former Premier Edouard Herriot and composed of more than 100 members, has established a permanent organization opposing Marshal Petain, it was disclosed today.

The group, many of whom are senators and deputies in Vichy as "refugees," already has met in rump session here and decided to maintain opposition to Petain's efforts to eliminate them completely from national life before their mandates expire next May.

Petain, it was disclosed today, will speak Sunday and further moves in Vichy's determination to crush opposition were expected.

Sabotage Suspected in Crash

Disclosure of the organized opposition coincided with revelation that 12 passengers were injured in another railway accident in occupied France, suspected to have resulted from sabotage. An auto-rail and a freight train collided at the Carneville station south of Cherbourg.

In Paris, emergency courts empowered to impose summary death sentences on Communists, anarchists and saboteurs went into action against terrorists. Pierre Pucheu, Vichy minister of interior, while in Paris recently, examined reports of five cases of railroad sabotage in the past fortnight, the Paris Soir reported, and ordered further severe repressive measures against Communists.

Vichy Leaders to Meet

Eight members of the Vichy cabinet were in Paris today and will hold an interministerial economic committee meeting tomorrow at the ministry of finance under the presidency of Yves Bouthillier, minister of national economy.

U. S. Holds American as Spy Who Sent Army Data Abroad

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 26.—Arrest and indictment of Kurt Frederick Ludwig, 38-year-old Amercain-born son of German parents, on charges of sending abroad information concerning the strength of the United States Army, was announced today by United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa.

Ludwig was accused of unlawfully using the mails in violation of section 343, title 18, to send matter banned by the espionage act of 1917. Specifically, it was alleged that he sent out information on the disposition, numerical strength and equipment of the army.

Correa said Ludwig was taken into custody Saturday by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents near Seattle, Wash.

Ludwig, a salesman who received his education in Germany, has a wife living in Germany. He resided on Fresh Pond Road in Queens, New York City.

Investigators said Ludwig was attempting to leave the United States when he was apprehended. He was described in the indictment under these aliases, "Joe Fred Ludwig, Joe K. Lopez, Joe K. Anton, Joe K. Williams, John L. Coby (or Coty), Joe L. Banks."

The maximum penalty he might face if convicted of the charge would be 10 years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Dnieperopetrovsk, Above Great Dam, Is Reported Seized After Heavy Battle

Losses Heavy

Miles of Ruins

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 26.—The Germans announced tonight they had captured the great industrial city of Dnieperopetrovsk, last Russian foothold west of the Dnieper in southern Ukraine, and the railway city of Luga, 90 miles south of Leningrad.

The high command said troops of Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist took Dnieperopetrovsk after heavy fighting, but it did not disclose whether the huge hydroelectric power dam below the city was still standing. It was reported abroad last week that the dam had been dynamited by retreating Russians. Eleventh largest city of the Soviet Union, Dnieperopetrovsk has a population of 500,000.

The Germans said the capture of Dnieperopetrovsk gave them and their allies possession of all of the southwestrn Ukraine except beleaguered Odessa. D. N. B., the official news agency, reported the capture of a series of bridgeheads on the Dnieper by German and Hungarian troops, cutting off the retreat of Red Army remnants.

Destruction for Miles

"All attempts of the Soviets to told up the German attacks by throwing forward masses of infantry collapsed in concentrated fire of German and Hungarian troops," the news agency asserted.

It added that several companies of Russians trying to reach the west bank of the Dnieper were "completely wiped out" and that even on the east bank of the river "for miles was the scene of destruction. Thousands of dead Russians lay along the banks in the wreckage as upturned boats floated on the stream."

Luftwaffe bombers ranging ahead of Nazi troops which captured Luga on the northern front were reported to have blasted railway stations and yards in Leningrad itself last night and that "the glow of numerous fires lighted the night sky for hours." This assault, DNB said, followed a day-long aerial bombardment yesterday which disrupted rail lines running into the city.

Main Railroads Destroyed

On the central front it declared main line railroads were destroyed at many places and several trains derailed.

Fall of Luga was announced by D. N. B., which said the town's 20,000 inhabitants defended it valiantly against German troops who broke through 112 defense bunkers and cleared away 2,900 mines to reach it.

"Since the advance in the Dnieper Bend after the Battle of Uman, Von Kleist's panzer army has brought in a total of 83,586 prisoners," the German communique said.

"Four hundred sixty-five artillery pieces, 199 tanks and innumerable other war material have been taken as booty."

D. N. B. said 2300 prisoners were taken and 54 tanks and 46 guns were destroyed at Luga.

Meanwhile, Berlin sources declared autumn downpours would not halt the Nazi drive. It was explained that "rain is not always favorable to defenders." Authorized

White Russian City Retaken, Soviets Claim

By the United Press

Moscow (Wednesday), Aug. 27.—Red army infantry, cavalry, tanks and planes have stormed and recaptured a big city on the central front, Soviet military sources reported last night, and eight German-Rumanian divisions besieging Odessa have been utterly destroyed or knocked out.

The Soviet defenders were said to have shattered or crippled six Rumanian infantry and two German tank divisions amounting to some 115,000 troops around the Black Sea port.

The unidentified city in White Russia was wrested from the Germans, who had seized it five days earlier, in a synchronized assault which crept block by block through the ancient streets, dispatches from the front said.

(The report gave only meager clews to the identity of the city, but the stress placed on the recapture suggested that it was a key to the hostilities on the central front. The Russians have been waging a massive counter-offensive on the Gomel area and it seemed possible that Gomel, recently taken by the Germans, had been recaptured.)

The organ of the Communist youth, Kamsomolskaya Pravda, said in reporting the recapture that it already had been consolidated so effectively that evacuees were returning and normal life was being resumed. The offensive in that sector was said to be continuing.

The Red army reported early today 101 German planes were destroyed over and around Leningrad in the last two days, indicating that the city might be under an aerial siege reminiscent of Nazi methods at Warsaw and Rotterdam.

(German reports have told of intense Luftwaffe attacks on the northern front in recent days.)

A Soviet communique also hinted that the pressure on the old czarist capital from the north had been eased, or was less menacing than reported earlier. It said the Finnish forces driving down the Karelian Isthmus had bogged down in the Kexholm area on the shore of Lake Lagoda 75 miles north of Leningrad.

The communique said Soviet troops continued to fight the enemy stubbornly along the whole length of the front Tuesday.

The latest communique of the Soviet Information Bureau told of air activity shooting back up to a new high since the early days of the war.

On Monday alone 93 German planes were reported destroyed in operations all along the whole Russian front. The loss of 18 Soviet planes was admitted. The toll claimed for the previous day was raised from 46 to 63.

Heavy rains and lengthening nights were described as welcome factors contributing to the defense of Leningrad, where Marshal Klementi Voroshiloff's troops were supplemented by a people's army avowedly determined to fight to the last drop of blood.

Reports from Estonia said the Russian troops besieged at Tallinn still were fighting off the Germans.

The Soviet navy organ Red Fleet said a big squadron of Russian warships supporting land troops defending an unidentifiedd coastal city carried out a surprise night attack. The ships shelled the approaches to the city and destroyed a great number of tanks, motorized units and cavalry, it said.

British Capture Iran's Oil Fields

which is farther south, and Avat. Civilian casualties were caused, the communique claimed.

"Iranian troops who had been attacked so suddenly offered stubborn resistance and at several points succeeded in holding the enemy advance," the communique was quoted.

The London Daily Mail reported today in a dispatch from Beirut that Adolf Hitler was believed to be contemplating some move to counter the invasion. The dispatch cited "spectacular" military preparations in Bulgaria and the Agean Islands and German diplomatic pressure on Turkey.

The Mail's dispatch added that Baron Franz von Papen, German Ambassador to Turkey, is returning to Ankara to confer with Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu and that the Turkish Ambassador to Germany was summoned to Hitler's east front headquarters after he had made a quick visit to the Turkish capital to consult his government.

In connection with the possibility of some German move in the Near East, the Mail said that "an important British military conference just concluded in Jerusalem surveyed all possibilities."

Squadrons of bombing and fighting planes paced the blitz-type assaults knifing deeper into Iran at five points from the Caspian Sea to the Persian Gulf, while other planes dropped leaflets on Teheran and other cities assuring the people that the invasion was intended solely to wipe out Germany's "intrigues" and plotting.

It was revealed that the British and Russian ministers in Teheran, Sir Reader Bullard and Andrei A. Smirnov, had conferred with Shah Riza Khan Pahlevi and Premier Ali Mansur seeking an agreement to end the hostilities.

Similar talks are to be expected, it was stated.

(The Soviet government, obviously hoping for a settlement of the trouble, announced Tuesday eevening through its official spokesman that it still regards Iran as a traditional friend and was taking no steps toward breaking off diplomatic relations.

non-A. F. L. men on a couple of construction jobs, on July 29 Van Arsdale pulled out 6000 installation electricians, including those in the Navy Yard and in scores of factories with defense contracts.

The Volcano Is a Platform For Quibbling

The Navy Yard electricians have subsequently returned to their jobs. Not so the others.

Only blindness of the blackest sort as to the consequences of failure of our defense effort can explain the wave of Communist-led strikes in late May and early June. Franz von Papen and the whole school of Black Tom saboteurs could not have done a better or more brazen job.

In the northwest woods, in the North American Aviation Co., the Aluminum Co. of America, the Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corporation, the San Francisco shipyards, a group of agents working for a nation then actively and fervently aiding Germany made 40,000 workers gaily sing a song which was, in effect, to be their own funeral dirge, a dirge heralding the burial of free trade unionism and of the free world trade on which the American worker has grown stalwart and independent.

Only blindness to the fate of trade unions and to the fate of all working men in a nation strangled and encircled—if not dominated—by Hitler, could have permitted the insane jurisdictional strikes earlier in the year at four plants of the International Harvester Co., the Minneapolis Honeywell Co., or the strike now current at the Wisconsin Steel Coal Co., to mention only a few.

To handle all of such cases the Government had established a body which was to settle the conflicts in the way which labor itself had specified. The National Labor Relations Board, set up at labor's behest and notably—even notoriously—labor's friend, is an agency which is to operate on such conflicts via the democratic principle, free elections.

But with a swift kick at democracy, a machine gun burst at democracy's own methods of protecting labor's rights, and a scuttling of the institutions which make the United States a better spot for the working stiff, labor unions in those plants went on strike.

THE ABOVE is not to argue that the disease of blindness has hit labor alone. Its incidence has been equally acute on management. For it takes two to make an argument, and merely because it is the striker who must take the overt act of walking out of a plant, this does not mean that in all cases, or even half the cases, it is labor alone which commits the crime against defense.

But it is not only, and not even mainly, by strikes that certain potent labor minorities have revealed how far away they are from giving a wise leadership to their followers—the great majority of "little people" for whom the war is fought, who themselves fight the war, who prepare the defense and who have the greatest stake in the peace.

Through a dirty little quarrel, a cheap bickering on the edge of a volcano, the C. I. O. is split in a game of power politics. As a result it has failed to give OPM Cochief Sidney Hillman the simple cooperation which common sense dictates as essential. Through a fight over frills, labor union leaders, with certain notable and important exceptions such as the auto and textile unions, have refused to name committees to meet with the OPM on the problems of their own industry, problems of inestimable importance.

With democracy imperilled, 20 labor unions still stand by provisions in their constitutions which are the very abnegation of democracy and the soul of Nazism—racial inferiority.

Most of the railroad brotherhoods, and the A. F. L. blacksmiths and railroad car builder bar Negroes from membership—and hence from employment in a closed shop. Many other craft unions accomplish the same thing by rituals or quiet but effective discrimination.

At this moment, in St. Louis, there is a shortage of building trades workers on defense construction. St. Louis is a closed shop city. There are local Negroes of skill and integrity waiting for construction jobs. They cannot get them. Instead, the unions are bringing in men from outside the area, aiding and abetting the curse of labor migration.

In Savannah shipyards there are Negro helpers, at semiskilled work, who have been in the yards for 20 years and who have even taught some of the white workers their skills. But despite a shortage of skilled labor, the A. F. L. metal trades groups, with Hitler's racially superior arm raised in blessing, are barring qualified Americans from speeding America's defense.

HUNDREDS of skilled Negroes, many of them union members, were barred from construction employment on a powder plant near Chicago because a Hitler-aping local business agent refused to give them clearance.

Be it said that unions are not alone in this attitude. Many employers who have swilled in the trough of Goebbels' learning have hidden behind a union front in order to discriminate against racial groups.

Although it is not nearly as dramatic, and much harder to measure, there has probably been more time lost through union restrictions against overtime work than through strikes.

Not so much through overtime pay premiums, but through rigidities and blind recalcitrance and refusal of unions to budge an iota from archaic and atrophied rules and regulations, defense work has been hampered and slowed in hundreds of locations and projects.

And even when the OPM labor division effected a stabilization agreement, replacing double time overtime penalties with time and one half, local A. F. L. building trades balked. In Ravenna, Ohio, where a powder plant was under construction, the workers promptly struck, under orders from their local business agent. The strike was against defense, not against the contractor, who was on a cost-plus basis and was not concerned with wage rates.

Designed To Show Production

Labor's racketeers have taken a toll not not only on their own union followers, but on the defense program. The scandal of the exorbitant A. F. L. building trades initiation and work "permit" fees is too well known to require repetition. Not so well known is the fact that even now, with a shortage of shipbuilding workers on the West Coast, there are reports that A. F. L. metal trades unions are demanding the same old exorbitant "permit" payments before outsiders may work in certain Oregon shipyards.

Another method neatly designed to slow production has been the "dues collection" campaigns, enforced by picket lines around defense factories.

Labor's best friends in the Government have had identical and frightening experiences, repeated time and again in the various forms listed above, all pointing to the same attitude—"We'll defend America, but we want our cut first."

GRANTED that this represents only a minority of labor leaders, granted that other segments of the economy are saying the same thing; granted—as The Post does grant—that in this situation labor is more sinned against than sinning. Nevertheless, this is still a picture of passengers on a burning ship wrangling over which can sit at the captain's table at the gala dinner.

No one is hit harder by inflation than labor. Yet when the Government suggested the desirability of studying the British plan of compulsory savings as one means of curbing the curse, it was the C. I. O. which immediately shrieked its imprecations at the idea, in the blindest sort of wrath.

To say that labor is disloyal is to say that 99 per cent of America—the "nobodies who are everybody"—are disloyal.

Such, thank God, is not the case.

But what is true is a startling and terrible failure of the Government and the defense agencies to sell labor leaders on the desperate urgency of defense, the defense which labor, and labor alone, can build, and the defense by which labor unions can continue.

Tomorrow: Congress Dodges the Tax Issue

Roosevelt Denounces Lend-Lease Rumors as Sabotage

colony in Washington has run up bills of $30,000 at a local hotel, charging them to lend-lease.

The President said flatly that no such items have ever been charged to the fund for which he is accountable to Congress.

There have been printed assertions that the British, stationed here, besides blithely charging liquor expenses to the aid-Britain fund, have been sending the bills for 30 and 45-minute phone conversations to the lend-lease administration.

The President said that the newspaper story carrying the allegations about liquor bills probably was a very good example of the sabotage he was talking about.

Discusses Reselling Report

Then, prompted by a reporter's question, he launched into a discussion of the charge that Britain has been reselling lend-lease steel.

The President remarked that the British had some contracts with Argentine firms from some time back, which required a certain amount of steel, but this situation has been corrected.

Deliveries were made under old contracts that required some steel, he stated, but he added emphatically that under no interpretation could the steel involved be considered American steel. The contracts, he pointed out, antedated enactment of the lend-lease law.

Further, the President called such charges a kind of half-truth that are as bad as a whole falsehood. The matter has been carefully checked, both in London and here, he said, and as a result he asserted that no one can fairly say that the British are reselling lend-lease steel.

British Issue Denial

When the charge was raised that Britain was using U. S. tankers for commercial purposes, Mr. Roosevelt said such a statement was merely a generalization. He asked the questioner to supply details of his charge. No details were forthcoming.

British officials sent the United States a lengthy memorandum last week denying they had misused or re-exported lend-lease materials.

An earlier effort to allay such charges occurred this summer when John Maynard Keynes, British Treasury representative, called a press conference at the British Embassy to deny printed allegations that the British were maintaining a large export trade, bolstered in part by resale of lend-lease goods.

Stores Drop Summer Hours Saturday

Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, announced yesterday that stores which have been closed either all or part of the day on Saturday during July and August, will return to their regular hours, beginning this Saturday.

They will be closed on Monday, Labor Day, Shaw added.

The President's Day

By International News Service

ROYAL SEND-OFF—Immediately after breakfast and the daily huddle with the White House aides, the President went downstairs to join the Duke of Kent in another cup of coffee, a final talk and the regulation royal send-off. After a final firm handshake, smile and thank-you-again to his host, the Duke headed for Bolling Field, an Army bomber and Baltimore.

CHINESE PUZZLE—To the bewilderment of the official spokesman, Chinese Ambassador Hu Shih inadvertently let it fall that his talk with the President yesterday morning revolved around the announcement of the American military mission to China, later the release was handed out but Ambassador Hu Shih had jumped the gun and the story was already on the wires. Second important dropper-in was Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand, who told President Roosevelt that the Anzacs would fight either if Japan attacked them or Great Britain became involved.

QUIET, PLEASE—Col. Wild Bill Donovan, chief of the infant office for coordinating information, arrived, unburned, exited silently as former Ambassador to France Bill Bullitt arrived, also unburned, also exited silently. Whatever the boys had on their chests they left with the President behind sealed doors.

SAMMY THE ROSE—Unlisted, Judge Samuel (Sammy the Rose) Rosenman showed up for lunch with the President, reported his findings on the defense agency situation, recommended a plan of reorganization which the President later said he would break to a waiting Washington within 24 hours. After Sammy the Faithful left, the President's former law partner, Basil O'Connor, present executive of the Infantile Paralysis Foundation, popped in for a little chinning.

WHADDAWEDO NOW?—Sometime around 2:30 p. m., the President lifted one of his phones, called up Attorney General Francis Biddle, Secretary Frank Knox, Secretary Jesse Jones, asked them to be in his office promptly at 3:30. They were and the four began immediate planning on what to do about running the Kearny ship yards now that they have been handed over to the Government, lock, stock, barrel and managerless.

POTPOURRI—In an expansive, extremely alert mood, the President grinned at the inrushing correspondents, went on blue-penciling the official announcement of the Chinese mission which had already been announced. Highlighted and laced with pointed samples of the humor and barbed answers the President can dish up on an instant's notice, the regular Tuesday's press conference embraced innumerable subjects, ranged, rambled, gamboled up and down the political, international and New Deal scale. Sunday punch of the bout was Mr. Roosevelt's emphatic denial and disapproval of circulated stories that the British have been misusing lend-lease funds to wine, dine and disport—replenish the Embassy's collection of sherry glasses. Labelling such tales as a campaign to sabotage aid to democracy, the President minced no words, pulled no punches—but called no names. Shirt-sleeved and wearing a familiar blue-grey tie, he bit off accusations before returning to less heated subjects, gave the gathered gallery a passel of story material on a wide variety of subjects. Two newcomers and first-timers standing in the front row of the conference gazed owl-eyed and awed at the old master of repartee and conversational trigger-man.

Kent Asks Fast Aid To Hasten Victory

Royal Visitor Inspects Bomber Plant, Gives Talk at Press Club on Return

The Duke of Kent, winding up a whirlwind inspection of this country's arming efforts, last night expressed England's gratitude for American aid, and declared:

"The more you can give us, the quicker we can win."

The youngest brother of King George VI spoke at a reception at the National Press Club, after returning from Baltimore, where he inspected the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co., producer of bombers for the R. A. F. and the United States Air Corps, and reviewed American and Canadian motorized units at Camp Holabird, Md.

Hundreds of pedestrians strained at police lines, anxious for a glimpse of British royalty, when the duke returned here shortly after 6 p. m. to shake hands with scores of reporters and deliver his informal talk.

The duke praised the American bomber which had flown him to Canada "to see something of the working of the joint air training scheme."

Turning to conditions in England, the royal visitor said he had toured a "great number of shelters in London . . . and I never yet have come across anybody who showed any signs of losing heart. . . ."

"I have been amazed by their courage and good spirits. I have met a large number of people who have been bombed out of their homes, but who go on working the next day. . . . They mean to win the war and they know they can only do it by hard work and grim determination, and because of the fine spirit we feel confident of victory."

As reporters filed up to greet the duke, the American Flag and Union Jack which had been hung side by side over the auditorium platform came in for rearrangement.

American correspondents noticed the American Flag was placed with its field of stars to the right. Simultaneously, members of the British entourage pointed out the Union Jack had been hung upside down. Attendants with stepladders hastily put things right.

After a reception at the British Embassy to be attended by diplomatic representatives of the British Commonwealth and high American State Department, Army and Navy officials, the duke was to board a special plane for Canada tonight.

At the Martin plant, where he saw workmen rushing completion of two-motored bombers, the royal visitor told 13,000 employes "every hour you put in not only saves the lives of men, women and children but brings victory much nearer. . . . You are playing a vital part in our fight."

The duke chatted with laborers at the airplane plant before going to Camp Holabird where, amid the applause of soldiers, he climbed into a Jeep car and drove it around for several minutes.

Agar Is Firm For Intervention After British Trip

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Herbert Agar, editor of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal and an executive board member of the fight for freedom committee, declared today on arrival aboard the American clipper that his trip to England convinced him more firmly than ever that the United States should enter the European war.

"We, the fight for freedom group, are supposed to be a 'war-mongering' committee," Agar said. "I went to England to reassure myself as to whether we are right in our 'war-mongering' and I decided that we are right."

Among the 23 other transatlantic passengers on the clipper were Dorothy Thompson, newspaper columnist, and Prof. Charles K. Webster, here to assume the directorship of the British library of information in New York.

New Priorities Unit Expected Soon

tered over the question of whether OPM or OPACS should allocate materials for indirect defense items, and at where OPM's control over priorities and allocations ends and where OPACS' begins.

The climax of the dispute was reached on the question of automobile curtailment, Henderson asserting that he would cut materials to the point where the industry could produce major vehicles only at half 1941 rates. OPM opposed the drastic cut and asked for a more gradual approach.

The topic arose at the President's conference when he was asked if Judge Samuel Rosenman, who was known to be studying the problem of priorities at the President's request, was ready to report.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that it was nearly ready.

The problem of priorities, he explained, includes many difficult factors—domestic uses, the South American good neighbor policy, the requirements of Wallace's new Economic Defense Board, China's needs, the task of putting people back to work in plants that were closed down by the lack of raw materials, diverted to defense needs by priority orders.

A major function of the body, the President indicated, would be the cushioning of the impact of such priority orders, with the objective either of transferring the displaced workers to other plants busy on defense contracts, or to place defense work in the original factories.

Federal, State and local groups would attempt to work out satisfactory solutions, Mr. Roosevelt said. He pointed out that thanks to unemployment insurance provisions, displaced workers would have a period of 30 to 60 days to tide them over. During this period of leeway, he added, solutions would be sought.

Entry in War Up to U.S., Says Beaverbrook

Copyright by New York Times

London, Aug. 26.—Lord Beaverbrook, the British minister of supply, who returned from America Sunday, said today he wanted to see the United States come into the war but added that it was a matter for the American people to decide for themselves.

In an interview he said he was optimistic about American production. He added that at present Britain had more soldiers than equipment, a condition that had to be reversed as rapidly as possible.

Lord Beaverbrook revealed that American production was being stepped up to such a degree that it had been decided Great Britain would suspend the importation of scrap iron from that source because all available was needed in the United States.

He declared that during the week of his absence Britain's production of tanks had set a new record. He described the production of guns as good and that of explosives as pleasing.

The question which brought forth his statement regarding American entry into the war was "When do you think the United States will come into the war?"

"That is for the United States to decide," he answered.

On being pressed for his own attitude, he said:

"I would like to see them in, but I couple that statement with the assurance that I recognize it is nobody's business other than that of the citizens of the United States. I am not going to be hypocritical. I belong to those who would like to see the United States taking part in the war in a greater degree and a higher measure."

Returning to his favorite theme of production, he said that currently it was not up to his expectation, adding:

"We ought to be very determined to redouble our efforts. At present we are in the unhappy state of having more troops than equipment. We must reverse that and must not depend on Russia to carry the burden of fighting or on America for taking tasks off our shoulders. Just the same it is right to feel a little more confident than a year and two months ago.

"There are reports that we are not getting a satisfactory supply of munitions from the United States but that is untrue. There is an increasing importation of airplanes and the American planes are just as good as any produced here or in any other country. The flow of supplies from the United States has not yet reached a satisfactory level from our point of view and it will not do so for some time yet."

Iran Keeps Up Allied Talks, Ousts 16 Nazis

By Daniel DeLuce
Associated Press Staff Writer

Teheran, Aug. 25. (Delayed)—The Iranian government was continuing conversations with Britain and Russia tonight despite the invasion of Iran by British and Russian forces this morning.

Premier Ali Mansur told an extraordinary session of Parliament that the conversations were "to clarify the reason and object of these transgressions."

At the same time Teheran police handed 16 German business men, including two beauty shop operators, orders to leave Iran within a fortnight.

Passports of 50 other Germans were taken to police headquarters.

Unofficial Iranian sources expressed the opinion that the growing chance of stringent British-Russian control of Iran could be averted, and said that if the German problem could be settled satisfactorily similar agreements might be made for the protection of British oil holdings in southern Iran and of rail facilities for transportation to the Russian border in the north.

Abandonment of shipments of cotton from Iran to Germany is taken for granted.

(The British Minister in Teheran advised his government in London Tuesday that all the British community in the Iranian capital was "safe and well.")

Shops in Teheran opened punctually and Iranian officers strolled leisurely in the city's squares. There were no air raid precautions.

American Legation staff members, American msisionaries and this correspondent, the only American correspondent in Teheran today, circulated freely.

Argentine Inquiry Irks Nazi Attache

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, Aug. 26 (AP).—Gottfried Sandstede, press attache of the German embassy in Argentina, arrived hre by plans from Buenos Aires tonight and declared "I want to hear no more" of the congressional investigation of anti-Argentine activities.

He left Buenos Aires just as the Argentine foreign office ruled he must testify before the committee as an employe of the German railways despite his claims of diplomatic immunity. Committee members there said he fled to avoid taking the witness stand, but Sandstede denied this.

Sidelights of the War

Gestapo Slew Former Premier, Poles Say

Copyright by New York Times

London, Aug. 26.—Professor Kazimierz Bartel, former Premier of Poland and an eminent scientist, was shot by the Gestapo (German Secret Police) in Lwow, according to news that has been received by the Polish government here.

Fate of sixty professors of the Lwow University and Technical College who were arrested is unknown.

The arrests marked the beginning of an anti-Polish persecution all over southeastern Poland which was occupied by the Germans following the Russian retreat.

Circus Is War Victim

London, Aug. 26 (AP).—One of the world's oldest circuses is going on the auction block September 15 because the big top apparently is one of those things a country at war can do without.

James Sanger, descendant of the man who founded Sanger's Circus in 1821, said he had continued shows despite the war until recently. Labor and gasoline shortage and lack of food contributed to the woes of the circus.

"I'm afraid it's all over," he said. "The blackout beat us."

Belgian Masons Outlawed

Berlin, Aug. 26 (AP).—The German military commander in Belgium decreed today immediate dissolution of all Free Mason lodges and institutions as well as similar organizations and their affiliates.

Property of such organizations was confiscated, the commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland said. It added the purpose of the decree was to "guarantee the maintenance of order" in Belgium.

Platt in Command

London, Aug. 26 (AP).—The British War Office tonight announced creation of a new East African command under Lieutenant General Sir William Platt, formerly in command of the Sudan.

The new command, which includes all territory between the southern border of the Sudan and the northern border of Southern Rhodesia, was created because of "the virtual termination of operations in East Africa and in order to enable the commander in chief of the Middle East (Lieut. Gen. C. J. E. Auchinlack) to devote his whole attention to more active theaters," the War Office reported.

Roosevelt Sending China Arms Mission

Officers to Study Military Needs; Similar Group Is Going to Russia

President Roosevelt played another trump card yesterday by announcing that a full military mission will be sent to China to advise the Chiang Kai-shek government on how best to use lend-lease equipment in its struggle against Japan.

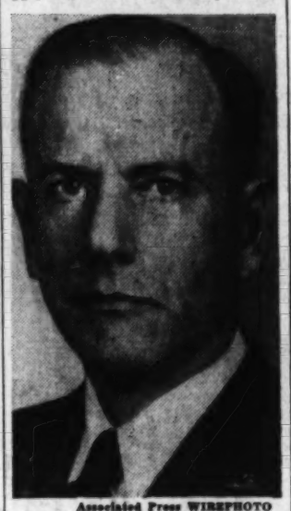
At the same time, the President canvassed the Far Eastern situation with the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih, and later with Peter Fraser, Prime Minister of New Zealand, who is on his way home after war conferences in London.

The mission, to be headed by Brig. Gen. John Magruder, will be parallel to a mission that is going to Moscow, expected that Russia is not eligible for lend-lease aid, said the President. He told a press conference that an announcement of the personnel of the Moscow mission would be ready soon.

The function of the mission to China, said a White House announcement, will be to "study in collaboration with Chinese and other authorities, the military situation in China, the need of the Chinese government for materiel and materials; to formulate recommenations regarding types and quantities of items needed; to assist in procurement in this country and delivery in China of such materiel and materials; to instruct in the use and maintenance of articles thus provided; and to give advice and suggestions of appropriate character toward making lend-lease assistance to China as effective as possible in the interest of the United States, of China, and of the world effort in resistance to movements of conquest by force."

Asked what "other authorities" the mission might confer with, the President said that the phrase would cover Burmese and Russian officials.

The purposes of the Russian and the Chinese missions, said the President, are identical, but he added that lend-lease does not apply to Russia. Asked why it does not apply, he said sharply that it just doesn't.



Associated Press WIREPHOTO
GEN. JOHN MAGRUDER,

Fraser, after seeing the President, told reporters that he considers the Far Eastern situation to be "very serious." While he hopes Japan will "seriously ponder over the consequences" of any aggressive move, he said that he felt sure the democratic nations of the world would act to preserve New Zealand's independence in case of a Japanese attack. And he added that, of course, New Zealand would stand shoulder to shoulder with the mother country in case of an attack on the United Kingdom or its possessions.

Fraser revealed that he had carried to the President a verbal message from British Prime Minister Churchill expressing satisfaction over the recent high seas meeting with Mr. Roosevelt. Churchill's message expressed the view that the joint declaration of eight British-American peace aims was of great value, said Fraser. He added that in his personal estimation, the eight-point statement was a "Magna Charta of mankind."

Fraser said also that he would like to talk with Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, isolationist leader. Fraser said he wanted to see wherein the prime minister of a Labor government differs from an American Senator who has acquired a reputation as a liberal in domestic matters.

"An adequate staff of thoroughly qualified officers will accompany Gen. Magruder," said the President. Their names were not disclosed.

Under the Senate proposal the attached surtax rate schedule is substituted for the present schedule, and the personal exemptions of $800 for a single person and $2,000 for a married person are reduced to $750 and $1,500, respectively. Maximum earned income assumed. Includes 10 per cent defense tax.

under. These taxpayers could take the amount of their tax from a synchronized table, instead of filing complicated returns.

Merged the 10 per cent defense tax into the normal corporation tax and at the same time increased rates fractionally on companies earning under $25,000 to raise $3,200,000 additional. Corporations earning up to $5000 would pay 15 per cent instead of 14.85 per cent; companies earning between $5000 and $20,000 would pay 17 per cent instead of 16.50 per cent; and concerns earning between $20,000 and $25,000 would pay 19 per cent instead of 18.9 per cent.

Approved the following increased rates on still wines: not more than 14 per cent alcohol, 10 cents per wine gallon; between 14 per cent and 21 per cent alcohol, 35 cents per gallon; and not exceeding 24 per cent alcohol, 65 cents per gallon.

Raised rate on sparkling wine from 3 cents per half pint (under present law) to 7 cents per half pint; and increased rate on artificially carbonated wines from 1⅓ cents per half pint to 3⅓ cents per half pint.

Placed brandy on the same basis as distilled spirits for tax purposes, increasing the brandy rate from $3.75 a gallon proposed by the House to the House liquor rate of $4 per gallon.

State Fairs Exempted

Approved the "reversal of credits" provision of the House excess profits tax. Deduction of income taxes would be disallowed corporations in computing their excess profits tax. Instead, excess profits taxes would be allowed as deduction in computing the normal tax. The change means about 400 million dollars more revenue.

Voted to exempt only State fairs from Federal admissions tax.

Concurred 10 to 7 in House action repealing excess profits tax exemptions now allowed companies mining strategic materials.

Approved House excise tax rates on tires and tubes and safe deposit boxes.

Although the committee did not complete action on excess profits tax rates, Chairman George said members are tacitly agreed on the "optional" House plan of giving the taxpayer a choice between invested capital or average earnings as a base for computing profits taxes.

Changes in House Bill

Changes to date in the House bill, including Monday's broadening of the income tax base to the tune of 303 million revenue dollars and removal of community property State tax privileges (51 million dollars yield), brought total Senate additions to about 363 million dollars.

The committee seeks to stretch revenue additions to 800 million dollars, to reach the new four billion dollar tax objective.

Out of $1,873,900,000 total in the Treasury's alternative plans for raising this balance, the committee has accepted only the base broadening plans, the community property State plan, and a modified version of the Treasury wine rates.

Other Treasury proposals to raise revenue above the House bill have been rejected or modified, except four. These would raise 417 million dollars in new revenue. They are the cigarette tax (112 million dollars yield); the beer tax (52 million dollars yield); the 15 per cent automobile excise (167 million dollars yield); and curtailment of depletion allowances for oil mining and similar companies (86 million dollars yield).

Japan to Block Aid, Soviet Hears

usually is withheld as a military secret.

It takes about 20 days for a tanker to go to Vladivostok from West Coast porst. tI is considered possible that the Japanese might permit a few of them to arrive rather than precipitate a serious issue with this country. But some experts believe that Japan might take action designed to prevent much material strength reaching Siberia.

It is conceivable, though, that Japan might refrain from acting until she perceived more definitely than is now possible the outcome of the war in European Russia.

Soviet Warns Japan Against Blocking Aid

Shanghai (Wednesday), Aug. 27 (U.P.).—A Moscow dispatch of a French news agency today said that Russia has notified Japan that the Soviet government will consider as a hostile act any Japanese attempt to interfere with United States shipments of war supplies to Russia.

[In New York N. B. C. heard a similar report broadcast by the British Broadcasting System.]

The dispatch said that this stand had been communicated by Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov to Japanese Ambassador Tatekawa in Moscow and by Russian Ambassador Konstantin Smetanin to Foreign Minister Vice Admiral Teijiro Toyoda in Tokyo.

Dutch Whet Knives, Wait To Kill Nazis

By William W. White
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Aug. 26.—Occupied Holland, hungry, restless and living under nerve-straining conditions, is silently arming against the day when the Nazi "brutes must pay for the atrocities they have committed."

That is the impression brought to London today by a Dutchman who must be nameless, who lived in Holland until he escaped recently.

"We are not ready for open revolt—yet," he said. "But there are no knives, no hatchets left in the shops. Everyone has some kind of weapon. When the British can remove the threat of Nazi bombers, then we will spill the blood of every German we can find. It will be a horrible sight."

"We do kill a few of them now and then and we'll do more during the long, cold nights when we make some of the Germans go 'swimming' in the canals and rivers. But we cannot do much—yet—the reprisals are so terrible. They send over the bombers and make us pay dearly, you know."

"But we are driving them wild in many other ways. We ignore them. No German ever gets the proper answer to any question, and production in our factories is very, very slow. Often at night we undo what we did during the day."

He said Holland "lives on the air"—either listening to the B. B. C. broadcasts from London (which are forbidden) or getting "new hope from the sky when the R. A. F. comes over. Even if they bomb our towns, we run to the rooftops to cheer them. The Germans hide in shelters. They even put barbed wire around the gun and antiaircraft replacements—not to keep us out but to keep the German soldiers at their posts," he said.

The Dutch were "dumbfounded" when the first German soldiers arrived "because they were so ignorrant." They had been told that the English Channel was no wider than the Thames. A shopkeeper showed some of the soldiers a map—and their officer shot the man.

As much as the Dutch hate the Germans, they hate their own "Quislings" more, he said.

"Two families are not speaking now because they picked on the same man to kill when the time comes and they fought over the right to kill him," he declared.

He added there are comparatively few German soldiers left now in Holland. "They left to go to Russia but they kept us in fear by the bombers."

"We will face a terrible winter. The people in the cities will go hungry and the nervous strain of living in fear for your life is maddening," he said. "But"—and his face lighted up—"when the R. A. F. comes over then we know all is not lost. Holland will live again. Some day I can go back to my mother."

sources said German engineers had completed changing Russian wide-gauge railway lines to normal gauge at three strategic points along the front, making the advance independent of road conditions.

German planes were reported striking beyond Dnieperopetrovsk at Russian troops retreating on the east bank of the Dnieper. Heavy bombs were said to be killing many troops and leaving smashed guns and trucks along the road.

From the Odessa area, under German and Rumanian siege since August 19, the only report of activity was the aerial bombing of an 8,000-ton Soviet troopship off the big Black Sea port.

In the Tallinn area of the northern front dive bombers were reported to have destroyed Russian field positions and blasted munitions dumps. Russians defending this capital of Sovietized Estonia, the Germans declared, are sustaining "inestimable losses in men and materials."

D. N. B. reported a heavy Russian cruiser was damaged so seriously yesterday off Finland by new German bombs that its loss is certain.

Four heavy-caliber bombs hit the cruiser, the news agency said, and several explosions resulted. It added that a half hour later Nazi scout planes spotted a number of small vessels rescuing the cruiser's crew.

U. S. Mapping Plans To Run Kearny Plant

Three Agencies Drafting Separate Reports On Methods to Operate Big Shipyard

President Roosevelt yesterday disclosed that plans are being drafted in three Federal agencies for the operation of the Navy-occupied Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. at Kearny, N. J., taken over at Presidential order Saturday after the management declined to accept a Defense Mediation Board recommendation to end a 19-day strike of 17,000 workmen.

At his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said that he had had a preliminary discussion yesterday afternoon with Navy Secretary Knox, Federal Loan Administrator Jones and Attorney General-designate Biddle on methods of operating the plant.

The President added that he had asked his aides to draft different methods of running the plant and to report back to him.

The problem is the first of its sort in the emergency. Although the Army occupied the North American Aviation Co. plant near Los Angeles in June, the management remained in charge of company financial operations, and the workers were paid by company—rather than Government—check.

In the Federal Shipbuilding case, however, complicated questions have arisen as to reimbursement of the company for its great Kearny yards and facilities, of contractual relations with the employes, fulfillment of private contracts, costs and prices to Government customers, and corporate relations with the United States Steel Corporation, of which the Kearny yard is a subsidiary.

A possible pattern that may be followed, it was indicated in other circles, was laid down by the Army in World War I, when it took over the Connecticut factory of the Smith & Wesson Arms Co., after the management refused to heed an award of the War Labor Board.

At that time, the Army set up a dummy corporation to operate the plant.

The presence of Jesse Jones in yesterday's conference gave rise to the belief that some similar plan was under study for the Kearny yards. The Reconstruction Finance Corp. and its subsidiaries, which Jones heads, have powers to create Federal corporations for defense purposes.

At Kearny, meanwhile, almost all of the 17,000 strikers trooped back to work yesterday. According to their new boss, Rear Admiral Harold G. Bowen, placed in charge by the Navy, the men were "working enthusiastically and will attempt to make up for lost time."

It was not clear whether the strikers would achieve their sole strike aim, a clause in their contract guaranteeing maintenance of union membership. This provision, which the company refused to grant, provides that all present and future members of the C. I. O. shipbuilders union must remain in good standing as a condition of employment.

Pay Scale Unchanged

Mediation Board Chairman William H. Davis declared at a press conference Monday that the men's wages and other working conditions—believed to be considerably better than those prevailing in regular Navy Yards—would remain the same as they were when the yards were privately managed.

Other labor developments yesterday:

The Labor Department certified to the Mediation Board the strike of A. F. of L. Brotherhood of Railway Carmen against the Pullman Standard Manufacturing Co., Michigan City, Ind.

The strike, involving about 1800 men, began August 17. The union is demanding a closed shop and seniority provisions.

The Office of Production Management requested the employes of the Curtiss-Wright plant at Columbus, Ohio, not to strike.

The request was made by T. S. Dignan, industrial relations adviser on the OPM labor division. William S. Knudsen, OPM director, concurred in Dignan's request, the OPM said in a statement.

From Oakfield, N. Y., workers in one of the 17 strike-bound plants of the United States Gypsum Co. wired President Roosevelt to intervene in their eight-weeks-old stoppage.

The telegram, sent by the C. I. O. United Mine Workers chemical workers division, asked Mr. Roosevelt to insist that the company abide by a Mediation Board decision "as we are willing to do."

In this case the Mediation Board recommended that officials of the 17 plants come to Washington to negotiate individual bargaining agreements with the union. Although the union had originally asked for a blanket contract, it accepted the board's recommendations. To date, however, the management has not given an acceptance which the board deems satisfactory.

Western Electric Strike Threat Ends in Pay Rise

The Federal conciliation service early today announced settlement of a threatened strike of Western Electric Co. installation workers. In ending the dispute, a blanket wage increase of 6 cents an hour was granted some 9000 employes.

Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the conciliation service, made the announcement on behalf of the company and representatives of the Association of Communications Equipment Workers, an independent union, after nearly 61 hours of almost continuous negotiations.

Steelman said company officials estimated the wage boost, together with a new wage progression agreement, represented additional cost to the company of about $1,500,000 annually.

Zeta Beta Chi Is Dissolved; Follows Probe

Voluntary dissolution of the Zeta Beta Chi National Sorority, Inc., was announced by the district attorney's office here yesterday.

The local chapters, of which there are four in Washington, were freed of all control by the national organization. Both the local chapters and the individual members were released from the financial obligation to the national sorority and to World Caravan Guild, Inc., which sponsored the organization.

District Attorney Edward M. Curran ordered an investigation several weeks ago when several new members told of a telephone membership drive in Washington. The girls said that they signed "membership applications," which turned out to be binding contracts to pay World Caravan $41.50 as well as $10 to the local chapter for a two-year membership.

Detective Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon, chief investigator for the district attorney's office, announced that officials of World Caravan had given him certified documents covering the release.

Steps were taken for the surrender of the corporate charter of the Zeta Beta Chi, national organization.

Detroit Rides As Transit Men Hold Union Vote

Detroit, Aug. 26 (AP).—Election day in the Detroit Street Railway System's A. F. L.-C. I. O. bargaining rights battle ran into obstacles today, including a "holiday" taken by 400 C. I. O. maintenance men, but buses and street cars rolled on schedule and voting proceeded briskly.

On the whole, however, D. S. R. officials reported, there was little disorder and no major trouble.

Walter Rybicki, a C. I. O. official said the C. I. O. maintenance men took a "holiday" because business agents for the A. F. L.'s teamsters union were trying to persuade employes to vote A. F. L.

"We are merely taking the day off so we can do a little electioneering ourselves," Rybicki said.

Emil F. Helfrich, maintenance superintendent, disclosed that eight bus drivers reported that tacks had been tossed under their rear tires, causing punctures, after they had stopped to pick up passengers.

15,750,000 Man-Days Cost of Strikes in '41

Copyright by New York Times

Strikes during the first seven months of 1941 cost 15,750,000 man-days, five times more than the corresponding period of last year and 44 per cent above the average during the corresponding months of the five-year period from 1935 through 1939, a study of Bureau of Labor Statistics strike figures revealed yesterday.

A total of 2505 strikes involving 1,327,000 workers began in the period of January through July, the Government figures revealed. This compared with 1403 strikes involving 273,000 workers in the first seven months of 1940, and a five-year average of 1792 strikes involving 745,495 workers.

LaGuardia Warns Veterans Against Any Hitler Peace

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 26.—Sunburned troops of the American Army marched in a mammoth parade of war veterans today after Fiorello LaGuardia asserted that a negotiated peace with Hitler would put this country in the position of a policeman shaking hands with a bandit.

The parade, highlight of the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, stretched along Broad Street and the Parkway, 50,000 strong, throughout the afternoon.

Cheered alike by spectators and other marchers were soldiers of the 113th Infantry who arrived in trucks from Fort Dix, N. J., and formed into the marching order of the new army.

No Dice With Hitler

In a morning address, Mayor LaGuardia, National Director of Civilian Defense, brought a roar of applause by declaring:

"We must understand that when we deliver a plane to England we are helping ourselves, not Britain. The more we deliver the more we are helping ourselves.

"Nobody can tell intelligent people that we could negotiate a peace treaty. No dice. No more so than a cop on the corner can shake hands with a bandit."

LaGuardia asserted "there can be no peaceful life in America as long as the Nazi regime continues," and added:

"If England should crash before we are ready, we will be in a state far more serious than this unlimited emergency for the next 25 years."

Referred to FBI

Earlier, the veterans were asked by Louis B. Nichols, Assistant Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to help in suppressing the Fifth Column in America, but advised against amateur detective work in that respect.

"Well intended citizens who take it upon themselves to investigate suspicious activities," he said, "are not helping but hindering the authorities."

He said the most assistance could be given merely by advising the FBI of any matters that may deserve inquiry.

Broun's Estate Valued at $9620

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 26 (AP).—The estate of Heywood Broun, newspaper columnist, was totaled at $9,620.25 today in an accounting filed in Probate Court here.

The estate did not include life insurance policies totaling $100,000, and real estate valued at $15,000 transferred within a year before Broun's death. The executor, Morris Ernst, of New York, told the Court that State and Federal authorities had held these items nontaxable.

President Sees Better Gas Supply by Spring

A better gasoline supply by spring was forecast yesterday by President Roosevelt, as a Senate committee prpared to open an investigation of the situation tomorrow morning.

Action by Leon Henderson, Federal price administrator, to forestall price gouging also is expected tomorrow.

Locally, gasoline prices remained at the same levels, for the most part, despite rises in many of the Eastern States affected by consumption curtailment. However, Harry R. Wainwright, of the Retail Gasoline Dealers Association, admitted that stations are fast eliminating "cash discounts" and a few isolated price increases have been uncovered.

The President told his press conference he believes the situation will be improved by spring because more tankers are being placed in service and two pipe lines from the Southwest oil fields should be in service by then.

Scoffs at Rumors

He scouted reports that Britain is diverting to commercial purposes oil tankers received from the United States under the lend-lease program.

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that his optimism with respect to increased construction of tankers is based on the assumption that these gains will not be offset by sinkings in the war.

The District No. 1 Marketing Committee, composed of experts in the oil industry who are serving the Government in an advisory capacity, met here yesterday but its recommendations, if any, were not divulged.

Discussion centered on methods of reducing suppliers' deliveries of gasoline by 10 per cent in September, in accordance with the OPACS curtailment order.

Curtailment Percentage Debated

Specifically, the committee members debated the percentage of curtailment to be applied to nonessential deliveries—principally for pleasure cars—after requirements of preferred classes of customers have been met. The latter class comprises commercial uses, in the main.

"The committee will submit its recommendations later to the Office of Petroleum Coordinator," said an announcement.

Coordinator Harold L. Ickes was invited to testify tomorrow morning at the opening of a special investigation under chairmanship of Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut. Since he is in Washington State on vacation, his place probably will be taken by Ralph K. Davies, acting coordinator.

Chairman Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, of the Senate Commerce Committee, named to the investigating subcommittee Senators Radcliffe, Burton and O'Daniel, Democrats, and Barbour, Republican. Their first session to hear evidence will be at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Although the Commerce subcommittee is authorized to proceed at once on the Eastern Seaboard gasoline inquiry urged by Maloney, formal action by the Senate must precede the launching of a more extensive investigation of the whole petroleum situation which he has requested, since this resolution involves an appropriation of funds.

Probe IS Welcomed

"We welcome this opportunity to present the facts of the situation," Davies commented, according to the Associated Press. "It will serve as a means for enlightening the public as to the conditions we face."

Replying to an appeal to check the upward trend of gasoline prices, OPACS Director Henderson promised that "representatives of this office will confer with marketing committees of the petroleum industry tomorrow and expect to announce program within 48 hours."

In a telegram to Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association, Henderson attributed price increases to "unjustified fear" or willful "profiteering" on the part of retailers.

"Dealers apparently do not take into consideration reduced expenses due to night closing, said Henderson, referring to the 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. curfew in 17 Eastern States and the District which went into effect 10 days ago.

Gen. Alexander Dies; Wartime Chief of 77th

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Aug. 26.—Maj. Gen. Robert Alexander, 77, who rose from a private to commander of the Seventy-seventh (New York's Own) Division of which the famous Lost Battalion was unit, in the World War, died last night in the Veterans' Hospital here.

Gen. Alexander, who was in the service for 41 years, retired in 1927. Funeral services will be held Thursday at the chapel at Fort Myer, Va., with interment at Arlington Cemetery.

Gen. Alexander had a brilliant fighting career which began with his participation in the Sioux campaigns of 1890 and which was climaxed in 1918 when he led the Seventy-seventh, with 25,000 officers and drafted men from New York State, as the only division to advance from one end of the Argonne Forest to the other in the Argonne-Meuse offensive, the final phase of the war.

A native of Baltimore, he was admitted to the bar at Centerville, Md., in 1884. He enlisted at Omaha, Nebr., as a private in the Fourth Infantry.

Within a year he was promoted to first sergeant, skipping the grade of corporal. Three years later, he was commissioned as a second lieutenant. He fought in the Spanish-American War as a first lieutenant. In the Philippine insurrection in 1902 he served as a captain.

Gen. Alexander served with the Army of Cuban pacification from 1906 to 1908. On appointment as a major in 1911, he served as inspector-instructor of the Maryland National Guard. With the Mexican Exepedition in 1916, he was a lieutenant colonel on the staff of Gen. John J. Pershing.

A year later he was made a colonel and went overseas with the American Expeditionary Force as inspector general of the line of communications.

On August 26, 1918, Gen. Alexander was selected as a major general to command the Seventy-seventh. It was during the Argonne offensive that Lieut. Col. Charles Whittlesey, with a battalion of 679 men was caught in a pocket in the forest which they defended until relieved. Although the battalian became known popularly as the "Lost Battalion," Gen. Alexander insisted that it was not lost, but that it simply held its position with "the greatest gallantry." Two days before hostilities ceased, Gen. Alexander was wounded slightly.

With the demobilization of the Seventy-seventh, Gen. Alexander was returned to the rank of colonel and placed in command of Camp Mills, Long Island, and later Camp Lewis, near Tacoma, Wash. He became a permanent major general before her retired to live at Tacoma, where he became active in civilian affairs. He was department commander of the Washington State American Legion from 1927 to 1928 and was general chairman of the National Recovery Administration in Washington.

PhotogWho Filmed Atlantic Parleys Much Sought After

Hollywood, Aug. 26 (AP).—Richard Rosson, cameraman, is just about the most sought-after man in Hollywood right now.

Not so many days ago he boarded the battleship Prince of Wales at a south Scotland port—to convoy Winston Churchill to his famous meeting with President Roosevelt. Not only that, he shot reels of film of their meeting at sea, then came on to the United States.

He assumes his pictures were placed in official archives in Washington and will be released later.

Rosson said "the actual meeting of the Prime Minister with President Roosevelt was very dramatic, and both men were conscious of its importance . . . It was thrilling to see the British and American ships anchored together, a fleet in themselves ready for any emergency."

Otherwise, he's reticent about his experience.

MADE around several of your favorite spots this fall. The approach to Wardman's Metronome Room will be different because the entire west end of the hotel's lobby is being done over. Both Metronome and the adjoining cocktail lounge are being refurbished for a late September opening . . . Manager Dan Wathey of the Roger Smith Hotel says that New York auditions are being conducted to select the new dance music group due to arrive in Cafe Caprice some time next week following the closing of the Starlight Roof this Saturday . . . Olney Inn will remain open all winter for the first time since it was started 15 years ago by Clara May Downey . . . Paul Young's Romany Room is due for some colorful redecoration before it opens late next month.

There'll be an extra big show on the Shoreham Terrace for the week beginning on Labor Day. Star performers will include those redoubtable steppers, Nilsa and Ravell; Nesma Roman, Spanish dancer; the Valors, who do the unusual in acrobatics. Other acts, too.

BURT'S TRANS-LUX PLANS. Beverly Stull, whose songs and accordion charmed customers at Burt's Trans-Lux for all of last season, will return there on October 15 when there'll be a greata, bigga party to celebrate her homecoming . . . But that amusng young warbler, Eileen O'Neill, and Pianist Eddie Chase will also remain at Burt's, it's expected. This arrangement will provide bountiful and perfectly balanced diversion.

TRAILER CAMP SERENADE. Kathleen O'Dea and Clyde Kissinger, the "We Two" of the Anchor Room, tossed an ad lib concert on Sunday eve out at the trailer camp in Berwyn, Md., where they're living. All the trailerites gathered around and had a huge time.

GORGEOUS GLEN ECHO. In Glen Echo Washington has one of the handsomest and best operated amusement parks in the country. It blossoms with flowers, all its diversion devices are spic and span, its Crystal Pool is a model of what a big swimming pool should be, with slides, a fountain and an extra pool for little folks. Its Spanish Ballroom stars Paul Kain's superdooper band . . . This all leads up to saying that Echo's closing date has been set for Sunday, September 7, and you'd better make the most of the next ten days.

Nationally known Pan-American entertainers will head the new Troika revue at its opening next Thursday. The rumba unit headed by Juan Valencia will play alternately with the Sasha Lukas Orchestra.

BRITISH ACCENT IN RIVIERA. Numbers of people from the British Purchasing Commission always seem to be finding relaxation in the Lounge Riviera. Alas there we saw those alert newsmen, Walter Kerr, former foreign correspondent of the New York Herald-Tribune, and Bruce Pinter of the H.-T. Washington bureau. At another table was Meredith Howard, radio news gatherer.

"EVERYTHING NEW" is the motto of Oscar Heintze of Restaurant "223." Right now he has a new house, a new puppy and a new green car. And that isn't all. A new baby, to be named either Rudolph or Anna, is almost due to arrive in the new house.

GOODBYE TOMMY! It's a farewell party all this week at the Nightingale. For Tommy Lawrence, the star singer of Rodd Raffell's Orchestra, has received one of those pressing invitations from Uncle Sam. Sunday night will be his last at 'Gale where he's built up a splendid reputation as a singer in the strictly modern manner. We're sure the week-end goodbye doings in Tommy's honor will set a mark for all "Army goodbye" parties.

Rumors are already stirring that the 1941 "champagne and orchids opening" of the Mayflower Lounge will be more glittering than ever. To do that, it'll have to outshine such previous top-notchers as the Harimans and Adele Moffett.

FUN WITH SONGS. The way that Lotus' Mary La Marr is singing "A Twist of the Wrist" while all the pretty Caper-ettes really twist their torsos . . . That monumental rendition of "I Want a Buddy, Not a Sweetheart," being done by Jimmy Summerville, leader of Hi Hat's Four M's . . . That completely cuh-razy ballad, "Shake Your Head From Side to Side" that's one of the 1001 specialities of Don Baker and his Musicomics in the Neptune Room . . . And we were startled, indeed, to go into the Rainbow Room and find the band shouting "Hess-ick Song" to the "Hut-Sut" music. They were just showing their liking for coalman W. H. Hessick, one of their favorite patrons.

PATERNAL COMPOSER. Bob Preble, singing emcee of the Casino Royal, is working on a new song to be called "Roberta." It will be dedicated to little daughter, Roberta, who's now cutting her first tooth.

MUSICIANS' CONVENTIONS are held every Sunday night at the Plymouth. Perched in Plymouth booths on these occasions we've seen Barnee and Ralph D'Acosta of the Shoreham, Tommy Johnson of the Neptune, Tony de Gaudio, Hugh Barteman of the Casino Royal, Harold Veo, Eddy Whitesel of the Lotus, Eddie Chase of Burt's Trans-Lux, pretty Jane Marlow of Restaurant "823."

River Bend is completing its second year of Wednesday "Piggy Parties." Around 15,000 people have attended these dizzy gormandizing parties and have probably gained an aggregate of 20,000 pounds. And tonight is Wednesday—again.

LEO OF MAYFAIR has been consulting the stars about our fair country. He says that the United States will not get into a "shooting war" for at least two years, that President Roosevelt will not die in office, that the rackets will be taken out of labor, that this country is going into an "Aquarian age of readjustment."

GOURMETS' CORNER. The super-delicious hors d'oeuvre in the Pall Mall Room include chilled broccoli . . . The snacks at the Harrington Tearn are perfect toppers-off after an evening at the theater . . . The golden colored sweet corn served at O'Donnell's Farmhouse will make you wish you could dine there every day . . . The deviled clams served with shore dinners at Hogate's are miracles of the art of seasoning.

Chrysler Shows Tanks in Mass Production

'Assembly Line Of Defense' Displayed To Newspaperman

By David J. Wilkie
Associated Press Automotive Editor

Detroit, Aug. 26.—The mass production technique of the automobile industry adapted to the volume manufacture of equipment for mechanized warfare was demonstrated by Chrysler Corporation today to a group of more than 200 newspaper editors and writers.

Subordinated to what Chrysler termed "assembly lines of defense" was an informal showing of the corporation's 1942 model automobiles.

The M-3 Army tank, Bofors anti-aircraft gun, Army trucks of various types and antiaircraft sub-assembly work of the corporation were shown in an all-day presentation. At the 20-million-dollar Chrysler tank arsenal it was shown that mass production of the medium weight mobile fortresses has been attained. How many of the tanks are being produced daily was not disclosed, but as far as the eye could see down the quarter-mile length of the arsenal were tanks in various stages of completion on three assembly lines.

85 Per Cent of Effort for Defense

"I am not permitted to tell you how many of the tanks we are producing each day," said K. T. Keller, corporation president, "but we had an original schedule of five tanks a day and I can say that we are up to schedule. Before long we'll be turning out more tanks than you can count."

Keller said the corporation's engineering department and laboratories are devoting more than 85 per cent of their efforts to defense and that important development work was proceeding on the design of a 2000-horsepower aviation engine, a 500-horsepower liquid-cooled tank engine and a new airplane landing-gear strut.

Chrysler's participation in the defense program, he said, already exceeds 400 million dollars in contracts, the execution of which is its major manufacturing activity.

Shoot While They Run

At the tank plant half a dozen of the mobile fortresses were put through maneuverability and firing tests, firing their full complement of six guns each while running over difficult terrain. A demonstration of hill-climbing, trench-jumping, mud-maneuvering and rough overland running by the different types of army trucks the corporation is delivering was given at the truck factory testing grounds.

The informal showing of Chrysler's new automobiles disclosed that many of last year's features have been further developed in models that have increased power, lower over-all height and wider interiors.

Railroads Urged To Cut Service For Passengers

By the Associated Press

Officials of the Association of American Railroads said yesterday they had suggested to all member railroads that passenger service be curtailed wherever possible in order that equipment might be available for heavy troop movements.

They said they had no information as to what plans the individual railroads had made, but there would be a general response to the suggestion.

They also reported that the Office of Emergency Management was anxious that abandoned lines be taken up in order that the steel might be used in connection with the national defense program. Officials pointed out that curtailment of passenger service would be a matter for individual railroads and State commissions. Abandonment of unused lines would require authority from the Interstate Commerce commission.

OPM Seeks Extent Of Idleness Caused By Auto Cut

An immediate survey to determine the extent and location of unemployment caused by the cut in automobile production was planned yesterday by a committee appointed by Sidney Hillman, associate director of the Office of Production Management.

Hillman said that a National Committee on Automobile Employment had been created to cooperate with labor and industry groups on re-employment and re-training of workers for defense jobs.

The survey will be made through the United States Employment Service. The data obtained will be used by the Defense Contract Service to guide it in its efforts to extend subcontracting of armament orders.

Soldiers Arrested On Stolen Yacht

The Coast Guard said yesterday that it had captured the yacht Blue Peter, which had been stolen at Warwick, R. I., and was towing it to Norfolk, Va.

Two soldiers aboard the yacht were taken into custody. Coast Guardsmen said they found four pistols and three rifles.

The $10,000 sail-rig yacht, owned by Robert Parsons, of East Greenwich, R. I., disappeared on the night of August 13 from its mooring 500 yards off Warwick, R. I. The 40-foot boat had a 60-foot mainsail and two large jibs.

Engineers Get To Duck Colonel

Prescott, Ark., Aug. 26 (INS).—Col. Karl Hobart, commander of the 108th Combat Engineers of the 33d Division, promised his men he would let them throw him into the Red River if they completed a 700-foot pontoon bridge across the stream between dawn and noon. They did—both.

SEC Sets Hearing On Utility Setups

The Securities and Exchange Commission ordered a public hearing for September 16 at its Washington offices to determine whether the capital setups of Columbia Gas & Electric Corp., Columbia Oil & Gasoline Corp., and Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co., all affiliated, should not be simplified under section 11 (B) (2) of the utility act in order to "redistribute fairly voting power" among the security holders of the three companies.

At the same time, the Commission consolidated into one heading various declarations and applications filed by the three companies under which are proposed a number of financial transactions.

SEC Stops Sale Of Pipeline Bonds

The proposed sale of 30 million dollars of Natural Gas Pipe Line Co. collateral trust bonds was stopped yesterday by the Securities and Exchange Commission, which held that the company must obtain the Commission's permission before it proceeds with the financing.

At the same time, the SEC ordered a public hearing for September 5 at its Washington offices to determine whether the proposed financing is within any exemptions provided by the Public Utility Act, or any rule or regulations adopted under the act.

Dress Industry Tie-up Is Ended

New York, Aug. 26 (INS).—A truce was reached late today in the dispute between contractors and jobbers in the dress industry, which threw 60,000 dressmakers out of work at the peak of the fall season for one day.

Harry Uviller, impartial chairman of the dress industry, announced that the disputants had agreed to arbitration and directed that work be resumed tomorrow.

Montgomery Housing Head Named

The Montgomery County commissioners yesterday named an executive director for the county's housing authority and agreed to pay his salary and office expenses for eight months if such arrangement is held to be legal after a study of Joseph Cantreal, board counsel.

Harry Rhodes, assistant principal of Poolesville High School, was appointed director at a salary of $200 a month. The commissioners also agreed to pay $90 a month for a stenographer and $15 monthly for office rental.

The county board's action followed recommendations by the housing authority, organized nearly two years ago to provide low-rental homes for farmhands in the upper part of the county.

The board at first voted outright approval of the authority's recommendations, but amended its action when Commissioner John Oxley raised the question of the legality of the county's appropriating funds for the authority, which is a corporation organized under the United States Housing Authority.

Oxley, an antiorganization Democrat, and Commissioners R. W. Farmer, O. W. Roby and Thomas E. Hampton, all organization Democrats, voted in favor of financing the initial costs of the housing authority. Commissioner Walter Johnson, only Republican member of the county board, voted against the plan.

Hampton, who is board president, said the housing project was to be the first one in the country in a rural area. Immediate construction of 200 homes at a cost not to exceed $450,000 is authorized now by loan contract between the United States Housing Authority and the Montgomery County Authority, Hampton said.

Father a Year, He's Granddad

Robert E. King, of 3038 O Street Northwest, who didn't know he was a father until less than a year ago, became a grandfather yesterday.

His 20-year-old daughter, Mrs. Victor Stageberg, of 1101 K Street Northwest, who recently traced King to Washington after years of search, gave birth to a son at Columbia Hospital.

She was reported "doing nicely," as was her husband, who operates a valet shop at 625 E Street Northwest.

Mr. and Mrs. Stageberg moved to Washington from Denver, Colo., to be in the same city with her father after King and his daughter came face to face for the first time on a Nation-wide radio program in New York City last December 3.

When they met, King's first words were, "You are beautiful." The same goes for his grandson, he said yesterday.

King, who separated from his wife before the birth of his daughter, of whose existence he was not aware until she located him in Washington, commented thus on the birth of a grandson:

"It's a fine feeling to become a father and a grandfather within ten months.

FALSE TEETH were Untrue to Grandma Gray

BUT THE KIDS ALL LOVE HER NOW!

The kindliness of Grandma Gray
Made kiddies all adore her.
No wonder she was hurt when they Decided to ignore her.
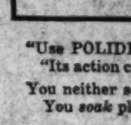
The truth was that they could not stand
The odor nor the sight
Of Granny's FALSE TEETH; though by hand,
She scrubbed them day and night.



"Use POLIDENT," her dentist said,
"Its action can't be beat.
You neither scrub nor rub; instead
You soak plates clean and sweet!"

Since Granny has, the kiddies make
Her life serene and nice.
If you wear PLATES, you too should take
This POLIDENT advice.

Cleans, Purifies Without Brushing
Do this every day: Add a little POLIDENT Powder to half a glass of water. Stir. Put in plate or bridge 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse, and it's ready to use.

13,398 MILES ON 5-QUART FILL OF OIL in the Certified
DEATH VALLEY DESTRUCTION TEST

Revolutionary New Oil tested against 5 other highly reputed brands.
6 new cars Destroyed to prove Economy and Lubricating Excellence.

In hot, dry Death Valley men carry their own oasis with them (top). But the test cars never got one extra drink of oil. Every mile, every move, was strictly watched (below). And the Death-Test mileage is impartially certified by Prof. H. M. Jacklin (right).

The oil that accomplished this amazing achievement of 13,398 miles on one regular fill, in the blazing heat of Death Valley, was proved to be an oil of the N*th* degree—an oil of new high character . . . Hence its name—

CONOCO N*th* MOTOR OIL

This dramatic test, supervised impartially and Officially Certified, was simple, yet harsh. 6 identical new cars were taken to Death Valley—down below sea level, where the heat hits record highs. To 5 of these cars were assigned five widely-known, highly advertised motor oils. The sixth car used new Conoco N*th* motor oil.

Each car was broken in on a brand of oil assigned to it by lot. Then after break-in, one 5-quart fill of this same oil went into the crankcase. And engines now were put under lock.

All of this under impartial official scrutiny, as was every step in the test, right on through the dramatic finish.

The cars were driven at 57 miles an hour until oil failure cracked up each engine—utterly wrecked it from lack of lubrication.

Here is what happened

New Conoco N*th* motor oil went the amazing distance of 13,398.8 miles. Not another oil came within 5,683 miles of this. One outstanding oil failed 8,268.6 miles sooner than new Conoco N*th* motor oil.

Stated percentage-wise, new Conoco N*th* motor oil outdistanced the five competing oils by 74% to 161%.

Why this Astounding result was possible

New Conoco N*th* motor oil contains a Conoco-originated synthetic (U.S. Patent 2,218,132) called Thialkene inhibitor. An inhibitor in motor oil acts pretty much as an inhibition acts on you. Inhibitions hold you back; police many of your actions. And so Conoco's Thialkene inhibitor polices Conoco N*th* motor oil . . . arrests the pollution that otherwise comes from all normal engine operation. And that's your aid against a dirty engine with inferior lubrication.

Are you an OIL-PLATING "fan"?

If you are, more power to you! Don't for a minute think you're being let down. For new Conoco N*th* motor oil also contains the famous synthetic that gives engines OIL-PLATING. And you know that OIL-PLATING comes from the magnet-like attraction that keeps it bonded to inner engine parts, so that it can't all drain down to the crankcase—not even overnight—not while you're using Conoco N*th* oil. This same famed OIL-PLATING is still yours to guard against wear.

Because of OIL-PLATING and [Thialkene inhibitor, one 5-quart fill of this new Conoco N*th* motor oil went the astounding distance of 13,398.8 miles. Of course, you'll never Death-Test your Conoco N*th* oil in sinister Death Valley, any more than you make your car repeat any other proving-ground tortures. As always, you'll still drain and refill at the intervals recommended by qualified authorities. But how you'll expect to stretch the distance before you ever add a quart, judging by this big fact:

5 heavily advertised oils in the Certified Death Valley Test were out-mileaged 74% to 161% by Conoco N*th* oil. Economy like that counts up into dollars! Change to N*th* oil today at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Company—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics

CERTIFIED The Engine Destruction Test in Death Valley, testing Continental Oil Company's new motor oil and five other well-known advertised competitive brands, was closely observed by me and my assistants during the preparation of the test fleet and during the entire period of the test.

The five competitive brands were bought by us at retail and handled only under our observation. Closest possible uniformity was attained in the cars and driving conditions.

I hereby certify that the work and tests were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated. H. M. Jacklin

Brilliant Young Player In Person at Keith's

Dorothy Comingore to Appear Here Friday; New Plays Are Springing Up on All Sides; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

TO ADD SPARKLE AND ZEST to the occasion, Dorothy Comingore, cast in the leading feminine role opposite Orson Welles, will appear four times in person on the stage at RKO-Keith's Theater on Friday, in conjunction with the inauguration of the popular-price engagement of "Citizen Kane" on Fifteenth Street. Coming to the Capital direct from appearances in Boston, Miss Comingore will meet her public face to face Friday at 1:25, 3:55, 6:30 and 9 p. m.

DOROTHY COMINGORE

Miss Comingore, it will be recalled by those who saw "Citizen Kane" at the time of its "road show" presentation here, is cast in the role of Charles Foster Kane's second wife. She gives a performance of such excellence that she was included among this department's nominations of young players entitled to future stardom on the screen. RKO-Radio, entertaining similar notions of the gifted young actress' future, has brought her East for a limited number of personal appearances in key cities with the first showings of the picture at popular prices.

Miss Comingore, after an earlier brief experience in the films under another name, was "discovered" by Charlie Chaplin in the Carmel Little Theater, in California. She was introduced to Orson Welles at a party and promptly given tests that resulted in what many of us believe to be the birth of a new star.

More of Miss Comingore after her arrival. The important thing, at the moment, is that she is on her way.

If it wasn't so long ago as to have been forgotten, promise of the results of the critics' ballotting on those future stars was made here weeks ago, for purposes of comparison with the exhibitors' choices. The exhibitors voted Laraine Day, Rita Hayworth, Ruth Hussey, Robert Preston, Ronald Reagan, John Payne, Jeffrey Lynn, Ann Rutherford, Dennis Morgan and Jackie Cooper into the 10 top spots out of a list of nearly 100. The critics of the country voted the honors of future stardom to the following young players, in the order named: Rita Hayworth, Laraine Day, Ruth Hussey, Ronald Reagan, William Holden, Stirling Hayden, Betty Field, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Jeffrey Lynn and Louis Hayward. So there it is, for what it may be worth. We agree no more than 50 per cent with either exhibitors or fellow-critics. So what?

Experts To Be Feted

Commander J. R. Poppen, (M. C.) United States Navy, and Mrs. Joy B. Hancock, expert on Navy procedure, will be guests of honor at a press luncheon given by the Warner Brothers executives in the Pall Mall Room at the Raleigh Hotel today at 12:30. Commander Poppen, one of the highest ranking naval flight surgeons, with 19 years' experience in that field, served as medical technical adviser throughout the filming of "Dive Bomber," opening Friday at the Earle. Mrs. Hancock checked the script at it was written by Frank Wead and Robert Buckner for accuracy from the viewpoint of the Navy Department. This cooperation makes for a true picture of naval pilots and medical officers and their work in defense and stamps "Dive Bomber" as something distinctly different in Navy Air Force films—so I am told, prior to any peek at the picture.

Twenty-four hours of retrospection has only served to increase this desk's admiration of "The Wookey," the new Frederick Hazlitt Brennan play, opening the season a step ahead of the thermometer at the National Theater. The largely pantomimic final scene, to this observer, seems far more eloquent of the basic purpose of the melodramatic study of London under the blitz than a few thousand well-chosen words would have been. It is the perfect consummation of a deep and penetrating character analysis—or so it strikes this typewriter. "The Wookey" is not perfect, but it comes as near being as any new play has any right to expect at the age of two days.

The boys and girls of the press, however, are not getting off with this single new work of the new season. There is "Village Green," starring Frank Craven, demanding attention at the Maryland Theater, in Baltimore, and next Monday night, here at the National, Brock Pemberton is popping another newly fashioned comedy at us in "Two Story House." Then next Tuesday night, also in Baltimore, they are breaking out still another new number in "The More the Merrier," to which the Washington fourth-row-on-the-aislers will be wheeled in a fleet of specially chartered motor cars—Mr. Ickes willing—provided by the management. At least, that is what Avant Courier Willard Keefe whispered in the National lobby Monday night. He liked "The Wookey," too.

You Can Find 'Most Anything On a Picture Studio Acreage

By Frederick C. Othman

United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—We went hoofing again today, up and down the miles of concrete alleys at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and we ended up with a wad of notes and corns on all our toes. And a chat with Hedy LaMarr.

Miss L. was dressed in a frock of the 1920's; you know, with a skirt ending around the knees, and black silk stockings and her hair done up in a bun at the back of her neck and still she looked scrumptious.

She hasn't done a lick of work in eight months. Her friends have claimed she was under suspension, her studio has claimed she was ill and Miss LaMarr has sat on her handkerchief, polishing her fingernails. She doesn't paint 'em; she polishes 'em. Claims men don't like ladies with red claws. Anyhow, she's back at work now in "H. M. Pulham, Esq.," movie version of last winter's hit novel of the stiff necks in Boston's back bay.

For playmates she has the blue-eyed Ruth Hussey, whom we last saw spanking Ellen Drew in another movie, and Robert Young, whom we somehow never had met before during our four years in these precincts. He plays Pulham and seems like an extra nice guy.

Down the street about 14 sound stages were Norman Taurog, the director, who has made his greatest successes directing children. This time, though, he had Rosalind Russell and Walter Pidgeon playing the leading roles in a comedy entitled "Her Honor." Miss Russell is a divorce judge who gives Edward Arnold's wife $5000 a month alimony. Arnold hires Pidgeon to go to work on the judge and maybe get those payments sliced down. So much for the plot.

The wronged wife is Mary Beth Hughes, the St. Louis lady with the Mae West curves. Pidgeon is the only man in Hollywood who wears a 13 brogan. Miss Russell is the girl who was home in bed the other night when the likes of us were phoning Las Vegas to see whether she'd eloped.

And the lady who struck our eye this morning on the set was Miss Barbara Joe Allen, whom you know on the radio as Vera Vague. She sounds like an old and fluttery hen, but when you look at her, by golly, she's a beautiful woman with perhaps the shiniest, blackest hair in these parts. When the light shines on it, it looks blue.

HEDDA HOPPER

Star Wants Toughies Tough

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 26. I was talking with Humphrey Bogart on the set of "All Through the Night" last week, and he told me that censorship had made a grave mistake in toning down the film gangster. Taking his "armory" away from him, as in the picture "High Sierra," he thinks is especially stupid.

HUMPHREY BOGART

Bogey pointed out that he, alone and armed only with a rifle had to face 16 cops with machine guns. "Audience sympathy," he said, "always goes to the underdog. There's nothing glamorous about a gangster in real life. They're ignorant, ruthless, sadistic and cowardly and to show them as they really are, would be the best object lesson in the world for growing kids . . . but the way they're toning them down now, they're running the risk of making heroes of them."

When Sam Goldwyn was looking for a title for his picture, Jed Harris tried to sell him "Out of this World" for $2500; but Sam said the price was too steep; so his own writers picked up "Ball of Fire." Now Harris wants to trade Goldwyn "Out of this World" for "Ball of Fire," but Sam's asking $2500 to boot.

Now that Stirling Hayden's pal, Jack Dixon, the Boston newspaper guy, has finished acting in "Reap the Wild Wind," he's gone home to get his seven dogs to star in a film. A Boston socialite is backing the pooch picture, which Dixon will direct for a major studio release.

Minouche, the mother cat who had her accouchement on the set of "Louisiana Purchase," wasn't so dumb after all. She and her two children, Minet and Minette, have been adopted by Irene Bordoni, who will take them back to New York with her.

Jack Oakie's getting up a social register, entitled "Whose Zoo," burlesquing the original. It will have sketches of outstanding personalities, snubbed by the bona fide register, cartooned as animals and he's trying to persuade Roly Young to write captions in verse.

Wonder if Hollywood is overlooking the fact that Alex Gottlieb, one of our youngest producers, has turned out two pictures in a single year that have grossed a million dollars each. They were "Buck Privates" and "In the Navy" . . . On her recent visit to the East, Nelson Eddy's wife explored the garret of his childhood home, found one of his tops. Now, she's building a rumpus room for Nelson around the toy. That's what comes of being the tops.

Bob Cummings has been notified by the Air Corps to hold himself in readiness for service . . . Warren William is in for a thrill August 29. He'll be in the car with Ab Jenkins, the speed demon of the world, when Jenkins endeavors to break the world's record of 4000 miles in 24 hours, at Salt Flats, Utah . . . Robert Taylor goes to northern Wyoming for a week's hunting. He'll park his station wagon and penetrate the backwoods country by pack horse.

'Shudder' Play Tops Incoming Theater Week

"TWO STORY HOUSE" Brock Pemberton's latest comedy production opens Monday evening at the National Theater for a week's engagement prior to its New York premiere. Parker Fennelly, an actor turned author, calls his play 'a shudder comedy because it strikes a balance between mirth and melodrama in a story of a bleak Maine farmhouse and the strange characters who inhabit it on a wintry night." Antoinette Perry, who has staged all the recent Pemberton hits, has directed a cast including Margaret Callahan, Howard Freeman, Arthur Hughes, Percy Kilbride, Frederic Tozere, Henry Levin, George Matthews, Howard St. John and Carlton Young. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Palace

"DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE." Spencer Tracy, Ingrid Bergman and Lana Turner have the starring roles in this new screen version of the Robert Louis Stevenson story. Victor Fleming directed the production, which promises unique camera tricks for the telling of the fantastic tale. Donald Crisp and Ian Hunter head the supporting cast. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"DIVE BOMBER." Errol Flynn and Fred MacMurray are costarred in this new Technicolor production about the United States naval air fleet's medical service. The film was photographed at the San Diego naval station. Ralph Bellamy, Robert Armstrong, Alexis Smith, Regis Toomey, Allen Jenkins and Dennie Moore are in the cast. Phyllis Coit headlines the new stage revue, with the Three Arnolds and the Roxyettes in a new routine—"V for Victory." Opens Friday morning.

RKO-Keith's

"CITIZEN KANE." The Orson Welles triumph returns to Fifteenth Street for a continuous, popular-priced engagement. This is the widely praised pseudo-biography of a powerful publisher, told with unique technical innovation. Author-director Welles heads the cast which includes Joseph Cotten, Dorothy Comingore and Ruth Warwick. Opens Friday morning.

Capitol

"LIFE BEGINS FOR ANDY HARDY." Eleventh in the family series, this new Mickey Rooney vehicle relates Andy's adventures in New York after graduating from Carvel High School. Judy Garland, Lewis Stone, Patricia Dane and Ray McDonald are important to the plot. Paul Haakon and Patricia Bowman headline the stage revue, with the Diamond Brothers, Fague Springman and Jimmy Edmonston and the Rockets in support. Opens tomorrow morning.

Metropolitan

"THE SMILING GHOST." Brenda Marshall, Wayne Morris and Alexis Smith head the cast of this new mystery-comedy of a bride whose grooms are being consistently murdered. Willie Best, Alan Hale, Lee Patrick, David Bruce, Helen Westley, Richard Ainley and Roland Drew are in the supporting roles. Opens Friday morning.

Columbia

"CHARLEY'S AUNT." The Jack Benny vehicle, none other than the Brandon Thomas farce, returns to F Street after two weeks at the Palace. In the supporting cast of the fabulous comedy success are James Ellison, Kay Francis, Edmund Gwenn, Arlene Whalan, Laird Gregar and Reginald Owen. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"INTERMEZZO." The atmospheric film which introduced Ingrid Bergman to the American picturegoer continues for a second revival week, with Leslie Howard playing opposite the Swedish actress. This is the film featuring the popular song, "Intermezzo."

Gayety

"THE MELODY PARADE." Hinda Wassau headlines the revue opening Sunday afternoon as the second production of the Gayety's season. The display artiste's supporting company includes Billy Hagen, Patricia Morgan, Fields and Georgia and Joe Forte. Vickie Wells and Mike Sachs are the current topliners.

Trans-Lux

"CANADIAN ROCKIES," with Lake Louise and Banff as the main stopping points will be the central short subject at the newsreel theater for the new week. "Sword Soldiers," with West Point Cadets explaining the art of fencing; a "Picture People" release starring Burns and Allen, and "The Pied Piper," a color cartoon, complete the supporting attractions. Opens Friday morning.

Open Air

"THIS THING CALLED LOVE." The Melvyn Douglas-Rosalind Russell comedy shares the drive-in theater's screen with "Hell's Angels" for the three final evenings of the week beginning tomorrow night. "The Great American Broadcast" and "The Last Mile" are on tonight's bill.

Camouflake Talks Open Tree Conclave

Such peaceful things as trees and shrubs entered into the stern picture of national defense as the Seventeenth National Shade Tree Conference began sessions yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

This is one of the first large groups to meet in Washington since Leon Henderson's recent appeal to local hotels asking that conventions be discouraged here because of what he described as overstrained facilities. The Shade Tree Conference reservations had been made a year ago.

The war with its increased use of air observation has brought the need of more intensive use of camouflage, said Vance I. Shield, president of the National Arborist Association, which is meeting jointly with the Shade Tree Conference.

Richard P. White, secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen, disclosed that the nurserymen have already offered their services to the Army and Office of Civilian Defense in a program for planting trees and shrubs as a camouflage measure around military posts and industrial plants throughout the Nation. Maj. R. P. Brecksenridge, of the Engineer Corps at Fort Belvoir, Va., will discuss this side of the program more fully tomorrow, it was announced.

More than 400 delegates to the conference were welcomed by Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia. Dr. E. N. Cory, of the University of Maryland, president of the conference, also addressed the delegates.

Other talks yesterday were by Dr. James G. Horsfall and Dr. George Z. Zentmyer, of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, on tree diseases, and by Prof. George S. Langford, of the University of Maryland, on the tolerance of shade trees to spray materials. Edwin S. Pirtle spoke on trees and taxes.

Last night the delegates and their wives took a moonlight cruise on the Potomac. Today's program, besides several talks, includes a trip to Hains Point to observe equipment used in certain arboricultural practices, it was announced.

LABOR DAY weekend means a three-day "torrent" to the employes at the amusement park, preparing for an attendance mark of 45,000 visitors. The Coster Dips, Flying Scooter and Whip are expected to be the centers of much activity, with the swimming pool, too, drawing its share of the visitors. Paul Kain's orchestra promises jam sessions for Friday, Saturday and Monday nights.

Wilson Line

A GIANT THREE-DAY celebration also is planned by the S. S. Mount Vernon and Marshall Hall amusement park over the weekend. The amusement park will conclude its season on Monday evening. The Mount Vernon's schedule offers trips down the Potomac at 10 a. m., 2, 5:30 and 8:30 p. m. The steamer's season will continue, although somewhat reduced, through Sunday, September 7.

Potomac Line

BOBBY DAY and his orchestra last night began a week's engagement aboard the S. S. Potomac's moonlight cruise series. The popular radio batonist will lead his orchestra nightly through Labor Day, sailing from Seventh and Water Streets at 8:45, with an added cruise Saturday midnight, sailing at 12:30 a. m.

Cross Roads

"THE OLD SOAK." With Arch McDonald taking time between his baseball game broadcasts to play the leading role in the Don Marquis comedy, this is the summer's final production of the Virginia barn theater. Ruth May, Fred Draper and Allen Andrews are the supporting players.

Roadside

"TENNESSEE'S PARDNER." Scott Marble's old melodrama of card players and miners is the current offering at the barn theater on the Rockville Pike, continuing through Saturday, September 7. Lansing Hall, Richard Walsh, Maccubbin Waters, George Farrington, Lois Alexander, Edward Stevlingson and Nathalie Sherman are in the cast.

Central Auditorium

"YARD BIRD REVUE." The first of the District Defense Council's productions designed for the nearby Army camps offers a preview performance tonight only in the auditorium of Central High School at Thirteenth and Clifton Streets. Curtain for the musical is at 8:15.

Poker, Bridge to Aid Morale? Randolph Prefers Checkers

A straight flush or a bid in hearts as builders of Army morale were greeted apathetically by the few Congressmen who could be found on Capitol Hill yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, Thirty-fourth Division commander, has declared that more poker playing would develop "real soldiers." Mrs. E. N. Carlson, of St. Louis, a bridge expert, replied that bridge is the game to build the Army's morale.

Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, said in effect yesterday, "A plague on both your card games."

"I play neither game myself," he said without much enthusiasm. "Checkers is my game. It develops concentration. What's the matter with checkers as a morale-builder?"

From no one could there be found official recognition of such a game as either bridge or poker.

"No Congressman ever officially plays cards," said one Representative as he dealt the deck for a little poker game in the House Press Gallery.

So it appears that those who envision poker-perfect panzer units or bridge-brilliant battalions will gain little support for their pipe dreams in Congress.

2 Receiving Ships Moved to Serve As Navy Housing

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Aug. 26.—The U. S. S. Seattle and the U. S. S. Camden, receiving ships which have been stationed at the New York Navy Yard in Brooklyn, were towed today to be incorporated into a recreation and housing development on the former Italian Line pier, which has been leased by the Navy.

The Seattle was built in 1902 as the armored cruiser Washington, and in June, 1917, was the flagship of the flotilla which accompanied the first American Expeditionary Force Division to St. Nazaire, France. She was decommissioned in June, 1927, and was attached to the Navy Yard for men on leave in New York and awaiting arrival of their ships.

The Camden was built in 1900 as a merchant ship for the German-Australian Line. She was seized in the United States in 1917 and was refitted as a submarine tender, and was brought to the New York Navy Yard in October, 1940, as an auxiliary to handle the overflow from the Seattle, caused by expansion of operations at the yard.

Dearer Milk

Washington, it appears, almost certainly faces a cent-a-quart rise in the price of milk by September 1. According to the Secretary of Agriculture, milk consumption in the Capital has been increasing rapidly and greater production is now needed to supply the growing demand. Moreover, to make this possible, says the Secretary, higher producer prices are required to offset the mounting costs of feed, labor and equipment. How great those costs have been is not ascertainable, but it is estimated that the contemplated price rise will bring producers additional revenues of approximately $1,000,000 a year. This is, of course, a considerable increment. District milk dealers, as might be expected, claim they cannot absorb the rise and so, inevitably, it will be passed along to consumers.

For many families the fact that home-delivered milk will cost 15 instead of 14 cents a quart will not seriously unbalance domestic budgets. But there is real danger that while total milk consumption in the boomtown Capital may increase, families on relief and others in the lowest income brackets will feel impelled to cut down their use of milk. It will indeed be a community misfortune if the price rise tends to hamper the movement to encourage cheap milk for those who are most in need of it. Relief clients who have been paying 5 cents a quart will have to pay 6 cents, and the Federal subsidy which has made this possible will have to be increased proportionately.

In fact, it ought to be increased sufficiently and extended, as The Post has frequently emphasized, to cover the needs of others, such as persons on the WPA who are denied relief milk if they hold jobs. Too, if the price rise reacts unfavorably on the drive to provide penny milk for school children—an established practice in a number of communities—the District will be the loser. For the sooner we supply undernourished children with milk at a cent a glass, the sooner health standards will rise as they should. Price rise or not, common sense dictates this nutritional guarantee.

French Revolt

In his radio address of August 12, in which he announced that Admiral Jean Darlan has been entrusted with dictatorial powers, Marshal Henri Philippe Petain spoke of an "ill wind" that has been "rising in many regions of France." This was his way of admitting that the people of France were manifesting an increasing measure of hostility toward the Vichy regime and its policy of collaborating with Hitler. But neither then nor since has the aged marshal shown any disposition to pay heed to the popular will.

For the marshal is at heart a totalitarian. His reply to the growing discontent of the French was to remove what vestigial traces there still remained in the unoccupied zone of the institutions and liberties which for so long have been associated with the name of France. Thus parliament was suppressed and payment of members suspended as of September 30; a Gestapo bearing the title of "commissars of public power" was created with the mission of "ferreting out and destroying obstacles which abuse of the rules of administrative routine or activity of secret societies can oppose to the work of national revolution;" Petain himself took over from the Riom tribunal the task of judging those allegedly responsible for France's defeat; and dictatorial power was entrusted to Admiral Jean Darlan, whose unpopularity Petain himself admitted. Later Petain ordered that the oath of allegiance required of all public servants be rendered to him, personally, rather than to the French state.

If Marshal Petain expected the French people to cower at the sound of his trembling voice and cringe when he lifted his hand he was very much mistaken. He has discovered that the people he is dealing with are not robots but Frenchmen. Since August 12, when, for the second time in a year France was sold down the river to Hitler, opposition both to the German conquerors and their French Quisling collaborators has grown. Acts of sabotage have multiplied. Paris has become an armed camp with 20,000 Nazi troops assigned by the German high command to aid the Paris police in an effort to crush agitation rampant in the metropolis. And the response of the people in unoccupied France to the arrest of tens of thousands and the setting up of drumhead courts-martial to try those guilty of acts of violence has been more acts of violence.

The French people were betrayed once and by the very men who now rule them. They have recovered sufficiently to fight those who are seeking to betray them again. The overwhelming majority of them on both sides of the dividing line between occupied and unoccupied France want no collaboration with the enemies of mankind. They know that France's only hope of freedom rests in a British victory. Indicative of this circumstance is the article which former Premier Edouard Herriot has written for the current American Mercury. Although ostensibly avoiding the contemporary scene, Herriot makes clear that Great Britain and the United States are the "two nations for which my admiration today is more fervent than ever." And it is of more than passing significance that, apparently under his leadership, more than 100 members of parliament have organized themselves in an opposition to the regime of Marshal Petain. In phoenix fashion France is rising from the ashes of defeat and betrayal to be herself again.

Presidential Rebuke

The President is to be heartily commended upon his veto of the latest piece of farm aid legislation. Farm aid has become so complicated that many members of Congress probably failed to understand the purport of the vetoed bill, which was a patchwork, anyway. In the Senate, indeed, Senator Barkley complained of the general misapprehension. Now, in the light of the President's veto message, the legislators are given an opportunity of reappraising their own votes. And we have no doubt that commonsense will reassert itself, and that there will be no attempt to override Mr. Roosevelt's veto.

The story of this particular bill goes back to the Congressional measure early this year to boost Government loans on basic crops to 85 per cent of parity prices. Parity is a concept having no relation at all to economics. It means the relation between farm and nonfarm prices which existed in the period 1909-14. Though the formula, for a variety of reasons, is meaningless in an economic sense, yet the goal, as the President says, has become acceptable generally as "fair and reasonable." The 85 per cent loan bill provided a decided spur to the attainment of this goal. But the Department of Agriculture warned our legislators that if this legislation were passed, steps would have to be taken to keep production under control. The reason was obvious. Farmers, with the bait of higher loan values, would simply grow more, and, since markets have contracted, that would have meant more holdings by the Government. Accordingly it was agreed that wheat farmers should be asked for the first time to vote upon a proposal to establish marketing quotas for the 1941 crop. The vote was taken, and the farmers approved. Under the plan a farmer who sells in excess of his quota is mulcted to the tune of 49 cents a bushel. Alternatively he may store his surplus himself and receive less than loan value on it—60 per cent of the 85 per cent of so-called parity.

This was all very logical. Obviously the farmers can't have it both ways. They can't ask the Government to boost prices of wheat far beyond the level at which it would sell in a free market, and then expect to grow as much wheat as they please, and dump the excess into storage bins at the expense of the Government. But the logic in the shape of the penalties soon began to irk the farmers. And they made their voice heard in Washington. The result was that a compliant Congress subscribed to a provision in the present vetoed farm measure which would have permitted farmers to grow wheat in excess of their farm acreage allotments for 1941 provided they used it as feed on the farm. The provision made a travesty out of the farm program. In the President's words, it "would place a premium on noncompliance with the wheat program, constitute a breach of faith with the large majority of farmers who complied with the program, and so relax the control features of the farm program as to adversely affect future participation therein."

This was not the only item in the farm bill that the President objected to. "Even more objectionable" was a provision designed to freeze the wheat and cotton stocks which the Government has accumulated under this lending program. Storage was always destined to be a device for stabilizing prices. The logic of the plan is to release supplies to the market when prices are threatening to get out of hand. But the farm bloc rebelled at the logic of "storage for stability" just as they rebelled at the logic of penalties for overproduction. When cotton prices began to advance by leaps and bounds to the highest levels attained in 11 years, and the Commodity Credit Corporation announced that this might be a good time to dispose of some of the Government's cotton stocks, the farm bloc raised a hullabaloo. And they succeeded in attaching to the current farm bill a freezing provision which the President rightly dubs a destruction of the original intent of farm aid legislation.

The President, in his veto message on the latest farm bill, has shown the farmers that they cannot have their cake and eat it, too. He may also have encouraged Congress to resist the pressuring from the farm bloc which has been one of the most notorious features of the legislative program this year. This particular bill reduced to an absurdity the logic underlying farm aid. Many farm prices are now above parity, yet no suggestion comes from the farm bloc to bring them down. Indeed, the general price-fixing bill shows how far the farm bloc has lost sight of its original goal. A provision has been inserted to guarantee the farmer against the imposition of any price ceiling on his products till those products have attained 110 per cent of "parity."

Goebbels' Dilemma

It begins to look as if Dr. Joseph Goebbels will go down in history as a great and selfless martyr to duty; the man who poisoned himself to save his countrymen from infection; the man who betrayed his Fuehrer in order to save him from betrayal. In a recent magazine article, explaining why Germans are sentenced to death when they are caught listening to British broadcasts, Dr. Goebbels wrote:

> Some Germans say they are strong-minded enough to listen to British lies and not be harmed by them. I reply that this is not true. British lies get into the blood, making listeners weak and tired of carrying on, thus showing that poisons transmitted by the British Broadcasting Corporation are beginning to work.

But, of course, Dr. Goebbels himself, as a matter of duty, has been listening to the British broadcasts. Otherwise how could he be sure they are lies, or even that there are any British broadcasts? But on Dr. Goebbels' own authority not even he is strong-minded enough to listen without being polluted. His blood, alas, is already full of British lies. In fact there is evidence that the good doctor is now little more than a tool in the hands of the malevolent British propagandists. Was it not he who ordered the painting of "V's" on all German army equipment?

If the doctor should now stop listening to British lies it would be a gross neglect of duty and a betrayal of the Fuehrer. It would be a certain sign that he has grown weak and tired of carrying on. But if he continues to listen, there is no telling to what treasons he may be impelled. That thought must be more than a little frightening to Dr. Goebbels in his more sober moments. For is he not the fountain of enlightenment in the Nazi system? When the fountain itself becomes polluted by poison propaganda—as surely it must under the Goebbels theory—it should be rather difficult to keep the streams of public enlightenment pure.

Lethal Sex

With what seems a rising accent of consternation, German bulletins from the Russian front continue to report the presence in large numbers of Amazons, or lady soldiers, among the Red army. Perhaps—considering the general reputation of the female of our species—this may account for the stubborn resistance of the Russians and the terrific slaughter inflicted on the invaders. Possibly the German high command now recognizes the fatal mistake it made in not multiplying its estimates of Russian reserves of man power by two in order to include the reserves of woman power. If so, it was a singularly stupid error. For, even in the last war Russia had the famous Battalion of Death girls, who were the pride and delight of all American rotogravure editors. The Battalion of Death, you may remember, was virtually the only unit in the whole Russian army which did not desert the provisional revolutionary government in its hour of greatest danger. Even after M. Kerenski and his ministers had thought it wise to make themselves scarce, the Battalion of Death ladies remained on guard outside the Winter Palace at Petrograd, and were still there when the Reds swooped down from the Smolny Institute.

But even if there had been no modern examples like the Battalion of Death or the women soldiers of Republican China, the Nazis have no excuse for being caught off base in this matter. In those fearful wars of remote antiquity the most fearful warriors were Queen Penthesilea's Amazons, whose shrill and terrible war cry on the plains of Troy froze the blood of the Greeks with terror. If you have ever watched the carnage at a lingerie counter about 10 o'clock of a bargain Friday morning, you will get some idea of how the Greeks felt about the Amazons. Among the places that were frequently raided by the Amazons was ancient Scythia, which is to say Russia, and the example may have lingered in the unfathomable Russian consciousness all these many years.

THE PRISONER

Far off the cannons cry
with a madness of their own;
hawks around me die
with wings turned to bone.
How still the world grows, how slow the darkness comes,
the hot breathed wind blows
the sound of dying drums.
The stars with winking eyes look down upon my hands, and out of these chains my soul cries,
"the prisoner falls, the spirit stands!"

Shooting Means War

I agree with President Roosevelt that convoys means "shooting". Ingenious substitutes for convoys also will mean shooting. I am naive enough to believe that shooting is war.

President Roosevelt promised during his campaign last year that he would not send our boys to fight on foreign soil. Of course, they can die on the sea and in the elements and still not be on foreign soil. But isn't that getting damn technical? Blood is blood even thought it is mixed with H2O and ballyhoo.

Knox and Stimson deem the neutrality act a stupendous blunder because this act has been and is an annoying impediment to provocative incidents which are essential to war psychosis. Freedom of the sea is the freedom of demagogues to dupe the people into a vain, bloody disaster.

I challenge the interventionists and warmongers to do one more peace prance short of war. The next little wobble will spontaneously generate war—a "preventive"—or perhaps they will call it peaceful belligerency or all shooting short of slaughter on some war short of big war or a historical crusade against pirates.

I had rather see mammoth military equipment destined for England sent to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean than to see one American boy sacrificed on the Churchill altar. Mr. Churchill is practical enough always to put England first; but wants us, under the inspiration of rehashed, inane idealism, to put America last.

Eighty-five percent of the American people are not only religiously and philosophically opposed to another expeditionary force; but are also opposed to it from a practical angle. They devoutly believe that American crusades to remote corners of the world would end in a fatal calamity, namely: the irretrievable loss of own liberties and a government by troops for political messiahs; the slaughter of untold millions; the aggravation, extension, and prolongation of the war; the universal triumph of chaos, disease, and famine; and finally a generation of cretins and neurotics—impotent savages—too simple to survive and too devilish to die.

Democracy cannot survive within the framework of an unlimited emergency. Militarism and an unlimited emergency are the lecherous parents of Nazism. For confirmation of this statement, I refer you to Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson.

Not all of those who deem another expeditionary force highly expedient are willful warmongers. Some of them are innocent dupes deluded by damnable dupers; some of them are hysterical harbingers of a new world—the proud possessors of more zeal than they have brains; some are unctuous demagogues who allegedly stay in tune with almighty God; a few are mesmerized mothers who have an irresistible urge to get their pictures in the papers; the rest are just plain old sleazy warmongers.

Shameful Waste

Mr. Pegler, in his article, "Society Tosses Berry Pie," in the Washington Post August 16 issue, reveals to us the strange life of a kind of "society people" whose conduct and manners are more than disgraceful. Their arrogance and vulgarity make them unwelcome, of course, to every neighborhood and club. Indeed we know the type—those poor, wealthy, blase people whose youngsters seem to be in a decrepitude of age. Nothing on earth seems to be good enough to interest them; their brains are working only for the purpose of more imaginative and crazy entertainment. On certain magazines there can be seen some very elaborate pictures of the last most exciting bacchanal party when "Life Goes to a Party."

Well, refinement and decency cannot be bought with money, and of course we have full freedom spending our dimes or dollars the way we can or like, but there is something intolerable when thinking that there are so many people who can afford, "just for enjoyment," tossing food to each other, in a dropping-formality way, I should say, while everywhere on earth there is a begging for food and right here in this country so many families go half starved every day.

I would like to suggest to these wasting people something very thrilling for their next "novelty party." Why not get as many hungry kids as they can find and throw to them pie, cake and even bread? I am sure that the kids would enjoy it to the last crumb of the party—even treated with ungallant manners.

Ceding Arlington

Your editorial Sunday morning, August 17, "Bring Arlington Back," has been a very live question for years in the minds of some very thoughtful people in Arlington and northern Virginia. As you know some two or three very feeble attempts have been made in recent years for Virginia to cede Arlington back to the District.

The writer was president of a small group to that end, about 15 years ago. Back in those days the total Arlington County revenue was less than $400,000 a year. Then we had no sewerage or streets worthy of the name. We asserted that if Arlington County was restored to the Federal Government as George Washington and his Virginia coworkers had so wisely planned back in the 1790's, we would have long since been a city on this south side of the Potomac where the United States Government would be spending for improvement millions of dollars where we, then, a small county, had only a few thousands for schools, roads, streets, water and sewerage.

The plains leading back to the mountains and the Skyline Drive and Shenandoah Park furnish some of the most attractive landscapes in all America. It would draw many of the wealthy from Washington and have special appeal to the newcomers who will soon increase the population of the Nation's Capital to one million. Thirty or forty miles out from the Capitol dome means nothing when a good automobile needs exercise. We have got to cede back to the District of Columbia, or at once incorporate into a modern city form of government.

We have the proximity, the elevation, the health-giving space and air, easily and quickly reached from Government offices and business centers of Washington, D. C. In the shade of the Monument to him who established a site for the greatest capital the world has yet seen, let us people of the "Old Mother State" fulfill the vision of George Washington and the "great mission" he planned.

Assume Offensive

Aid to Britain "short of war!"

The qualification has become the primary consideration among the weak-kneed of our people.

But why aid Britain? The reply must be, "To protect from Britain's foes, first, the United States; second, the American hemisphere." And how? "By the defeat of the Axis." What first? "Hitlerism—the corruption of nazilism and fascism; then Japanese imperialism." By what method? "Not to await attack but to assume the offensive against enemies."

It is conceivable that Russia's war aid may result in a sudden hysterical rupture of morale in Germany such as occurred in the early days of November, 1918; or, not nearly so important, in Italy; or even that successful insurrections may happen in occupied countries. But only the first of these very uncertain contingencies would bring an end to the European war and it might not cause the collapse of aggression in the Far East.

It seems far more probable that Germany must be decisively beaten by attack, not by defense; and that this attack must be on her own ground. That involves the establishment of a great bridgehead on the English mainland and large forces which will have to march fighting long distances on a broad front to their conquest.

Superiority in the air and on the sea might by itself be enough to break German morale but not otherwise to secure victory. It would be indispensable to attack by land. By the United States and Britain, control of the waters, except in the Pacific, can be assured now; of the air and of all the seas not long hence. So it seems certain that close cooperation of the naval and air forces should be made more effective at once even though that should acknowledge openly our participation in a "shooting war."

That would, of course, bring the realization that our marching troops probably might have to fight to clinch victory. It would bring an end to most of the emotional feminine and cowardly political undermining of the morale of the Army. It would convert our fault-finding "trainees" into fighting soldiers who would know that their future depends upon their spirit and efficiency, both individually and in the team.

Treated Like A Germ

Not so very long ago I walked out of my boss's office. He gave me my last pay check. It was a fairly large check for a week's pay, more than $50. He shook my hand and told me he was proud of me. I was entering the Army of the United States. I felt proud, too.

But I don't feel proud today. To be honest, I feel like a bum. I found that the Army is no picnic. It's a tough life. Yet I don't mind that. I feel that in time many of the difficulties can be corrected.

However, what does burn my hide is the attitude of many people toward a man in uniform. For instance, in one of the "better places" of Washington I used to walk in with my civilian clothes and was treated royally. Today I walked in with my uniform and the cold treatment I received was enough to freeze me outside of the place. That happened in so many places.

I was so darned angry I could have kicked every civilian on the street. Now I'm cooled off and can be more tolerant. Yet I can't help feeling the injustice of such treatment. Somebody has to be in the Army. And I'm no shirker. I'm willing to do the best for my country. But for Hooligan's sake, why treat me like a germ?

The Post Impressionist

"Forever England"

"There is a corner in a foreign field
That is forever England!"

During my recent sojourn in the Far East, where I was privileged to visit at British homes in Hongkong, Singapore, Penang, and Bombay, I learned that the poet, Rupert Brooke, had not merely indulged in poetic license in penning the above lines. It was a fact that, in every home where I was a guest, there was more than a decor that was British. There was a spiritual essence that was, indeed, "forever England."

Perhaps this was not so surprising when one remembered that both my host and hostess in each of these places had been born and bred in the British Isles. But, with my friend in Colombo, it was different. She had never been off the Island of Ceylon, often called "the Pearl of India," until the year before my visit when, as a delegate to a convention of girl guides, she had gone to London for a brief stay. Her mother and aunt and young cousin, with whom she lived, had never been off the island. They—and their parents—and grandparents before them—had been born in Colombo. Yet, my friend's house on Colombo's Flower Road, along which Cingalese in sarongs and saris, stroll in the hot sun under the cocoanut palms and royal ponciana trees, was, most strikingly, of all the homes I visited out in the East, "a corner in a foreign field—that is forever England."

Nowhere, I am sure, in the British Isles themselves is there—or was there ever—a house quite like the bungalow to which I was driven in an American Austin of ancient vintage, when my friend met me at the pier in Colombo, her "car watcher," a lithe Cingalese boy, curled up in the back seat.

"May I look about?" I asked my hostess' mother when she had cordially received me as "the good American friend my daughter made on her visit to London last year."

"Ah, yes, indeed!" she assured me in that pleasing speech that is British in accent and something else besides—the speech of the Ceylonese Britisher. "I hope," she added, rather wistfully, "that you will like our place here. I have tried to make it seem as truly English as possible—and my daughter told me, when she returned from London, that I had fairly well succeeded."

She had. I quoted Rupert Brooke's lines to her.

"Quite true," she smiled. "And we who have never been in the homeland—who may never go there—we are—don't you think?—'forever English.'"

I agreed with her as, fascinated, I began my inspection of the bungalow. The bedrooms, I observed, were built around a central unit consisting of a parlor and dining room, the former entirely open on three sides. Birds flew casually through this large room, above the typically English furnishings. My hostess explained that the birds had their nests somewhere up in the beams of the ceiling.

"They might be English sparrows," her mother laughed. "They were quite untame at first, but now behave with true British decorum."

Back of the main dwelling was a cookhouse surrounded by lush vegetation and presided over by a Cingalese boy who had been ably taught to prepare typically British dishes and to bake cake and buns not only in accordance with recipes clipped from modern English periodicals but following "culinary directions" that had been brought to Ceylon from London by my friend's great-great-grandmother, who had come out to the island as the wife of the owner of a rubber plantation.

The garden, in which the bungalow stood, seemed at first sight to be the usual sort of tropical garden. Bougainvillea, hibiscus, giant ferns and fairylike orchids were there in profusion. There were also a few cocoanut palms and less familiar trees, laden with exotic fruit. But as my hostess led me about I forgot all these. I saw only the flowers that had been raised from seed sent out from the British Isles—flowers such as might have bloomed in some vicar's garden in an English university town. Indeed, the spirit of that garden on the Flower Road in Colombo was English, as was the spirit of the household itself.

I thought of how my friend, who had been born and lived all her life on this remote island in the Indian Ocean, had spoken of feeling "immediately at home in London." "It is England," she had said, "and so is where we live in Colombo."

Just this morning I have had a letter from her—the first in a long time because of the mail service's being interrupted by the war.

"I am teaching," she has written, "as usual, in the Cingalese Industrial School. It seems, at present, to be where I am most needed. But all my spare time is given over to defense work. I have been trained for and am fully prepared to go at any time on active duty anywhere I might be useful. It is true of all of us here. My small cousin, whom you will remember, remarked last evening, 'Do you see how extra tidy my room is kept? It is because I want it in readiness if anyone should want to come over from London and rest a while—perhaps some girl like me. She'd not feel strange here, I'm certain. This, too, is England.'"

It was—and is—"forever England."

War Effects On Britain

By Ernest Lindley

Trends, Domestic And Diplomatic

AMERICAN observers of high standing, recently returned from England, agree substantially about British morale and political trends. In at least two respects their findings differ from impressions widely held only a few months ago both in Washington and in American business circles. They do not see a social revolution developing in Great Britain, and they do not regard Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor and National Service, as the second strongest man in the British Government and probable Prime Minister if misfortune should overtake Churchill.

LINDLEY

The notion that Britain was going radical was thoroughly disparaged by Wendell Willkie after his trip of inspection. To anyone familiar with the British character there was never any basis for the fear, expressed for some conservatives here, of a horrendous revolution of a quasi-Communist character.

THE IMPRESSION has lingered, however, that England would come out of the war rather thoroughly socialized, with a Labor government ready to go the rest of the distance in one leap. This view was popularized among American intellectuals by Harold Laski. He said, in substance, that the full fighting energies of the British could be released only by the guarantee of a far more equitable social and economic order.

Laski's views, through his writings and his close association with Felix Frankfurter and other New Dealers, were accepted as gospel by some members of the Administration. They were reflected by the President in conversations with his advisers, and influenced the selection of John G. Winant as Ambassador.

Other Britishers — not only members of the Conservative Party but Sir Walter Citrine, head of the British Trades Union Congress, which is the backbone of the Labor Party—sought vainly to remind American officials that Laski has no popular following of importance in England. Their testimony is now confirmed by reliable observers whose views carry weight in the Administration.

THEY REPORT that the British people, from top to bottom, are united in the determination to win the war, and that what they seem to be thinking about is not going forward to a bright new world, but getting back to the good old days.

Many of the changes wrought by the war may stick. British economy is now on a semi-socialistic war basis. Taxation cuts heavily into large incomes. It is impossible for anyone to have an income, after taxation, of more than about $25,000. The feeling that everyone is together on the front line—due chiefly to aerial bombings—has tended to bridge the silent chasms between classes.

Laski may be a prophet, but he is not, according to these latest reports to American high officials, an accurate analyst of the visible political trends in England. Winning the war is the overwhelming concern of the British, and no one is giving much thought to anything else.

That Ernest Bevin is not a radical but a hard-headed union leader has been reported by many. But, according to recent observers, he has not yet shaped into the potential strong man to succeed Churchill. In their opinion, if misfortune should befall Churchill, Anthony Eden probably would become the next Prime Minister. This would seem logical, in view of the Conservative Party's majority in Parliament.

But a change in government seems highly improbable as long as Churchill lives—and his health is reported as excellent—and the British remain undefeated. He has become a symbol, unshakable by such setbacks as the debacle in Greece and the fall of Crete and the continual controversies over armament production and other domestic questions.

THE outstanding trend in British thinking of interest to Americans is the growing conviction that the future of Britain and the commonwealth and empire lies in partnership with the United States. The President and other high officials have been informed that this conviction is spreading rapidly through all classes in Great Britain. It supposes, of course, that we enter the war as a full belligerent—which the British public is overwhelmingly confident we soon will do. But it looks forward, according to these reports, not only to winning the war and organizing the peace, but to the decades which follow.

Whatever grew out of it, if this view of the future is, as highly competent observers report, really taking hold in Great Britain, it is a development of the highest importance to us.

Iran's Oil Forced Contact With Ways of Western World

The advance of British and Russian troops across the barren mountains and burning deserts of Iran (Persia) extends the war to an oil-rich nation which only recently has started to emerge from centuries of virtual isolation.

Describing Iran as a picturesque but rapidly modernizing country which is a vital link in Britain's Middle East supply lines, a bulletin from the National Geographic Society points out that it is the world's fourth largest producer of oil. The principal fields, operated under a British concession, extend along the western frontier and near the Persian Gulf, whence the oil is shipped to India and other British strongholds.

On Asiatic Plateau

"Iran and her eastern neighbor, Afghanistan, form a vast plateau between Turkey and Iraq on the west and India and Tibet on the east," the bulletin says. "To the northwest is the Russian Caucasus, whose oil fields are even richer. The Caspian Sea and Russian Turkistan complete the northern border, while on the south the hot Persian Gulf empties into the Arabian Sea.

"Iran is almost three times as large as France, yet on its arid land live only a third as many people. The population figure of 15 million is only an estimate, for it is hard to count nomadic herdsmen who make up perhaps a fourth of the total. Careful irrigation has increased the amount of farm land and has helped persuade wandering tribesmen to settle in villages.

Women's Veils Banned

"Renowned since Xerxes built his empire there 26 centuries ago, ancient Persia was crossed by the Great Silk Routes in the days of caravan travel. Today, asphalt highways carry heavy truck traffic amid clouds of dust. The 888-mile Trans-Iranian Railway from the Persian Gulf to the Caspian Sea was completed three years ago. A branch line connecting this road with the Caucasus is almost finished.

"Along with improved transportation, opening of the vast oil fields was responsible for forcing contact with the Western World. In Iran's modern awakening, women have cast off their veils, men have donned European clothes, schools have been opened under English supervision, and cotton mills, sugar and tobacco factories are rising in cities where the artistic hand weaving of Persian rugs once was the chief occupation.

"Teheran, the capital, lost its lovely tiled gates as hotels, hospitals, and fine new government buildings were erected. Camel trains now stay on the edge of the city. Even the graceful peacock throne of the Shah is obscured by a new jeweled chair."

Lease-Lend Aid To Be Itemized For Public, Sept. 1

By the Associated Press

Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, announced yesterday that a "full account of expenditures under the seven-billion-dollar lease-lend bill" would be made public September 1.

The Virginia Senator, who has been critical of defense production and operation of the British aid program, said he had received this information from Maj. Gen. J. H. Burns, "representing Mr. Harry Hopkins," after a request for the information.

Byrd said that while he favored "all possible aid in equipment and supplies for Great Britain, yet I expect to insist that the provisions of the law be complied with and that Congress and the people be fully informed respecting an accounting of this fund before new additional lend-lease appropriations are made, as now contemplated, when billions of existing appropriations remain unspent."

Fair Enough

Mr. Fadiman's Credo

OUR fat friend, Hendrik Willem Van Loon, comes lumbering to the defense of his wounded comrade, Clifton Fadiman, the killingly clever pundit of the air, the screen and the printed page. But just what Mr. Van Loon defends him against I am unable to say. Mr. Van Loon, who calls himself a student of abnormal psychology, declares that I recently attempted to assassinate his comrade's character. I would be the last to deny that Mr. Van Loon is a student of, indeed an authority on, abnormal psychology, for he has had inviting opportunities to pursue his studies in the circle of his acquaintance and in the realm of introspection. Any man so obsessed would be bored by normal men and normal men, in turn, find themselves ill-at-ease or, in a word, ill, in the presence of abnormalities. Now that Mr. Van Loon mentions it, I realize that this could have been why I have always felt a robust aversion to this moist and buxom continental with his lacy mannerisms and his flouncing furies. The normal man simply cannot interest himself in the repulsiveness of abnormality, so I am utterly ignorant of Van Loon's specialty and rather glad of it.

Possibly this boast of Van Loon's explains why he resents as character assassination the simple presentation in print of some political sentiments which his comrade, Fadiman, wrote for the Communist publication, The New Masses. To the normal mind, a man's professed beliefs are his privilege and his boast. You do not charge a man with his professed beliefs, but Van Loon, his mind dwelling on the abnormal, seems to hold that there is something shameful in Mr. Fadiman's principles, noisily declared in Communist company in a Communist publication, and that it is vicious to take him at his word.

IN presenting Fadiman's credo, which to me was incoherent, I did not suggest that it was a confession of guilt. I assumed that he would maintain his faith. I just quoted him back to himself and asked him if he recognized these sentiments and remembered who wrote them. Before I published this memoir, however, I telephoned Mr. Fadiman to invite his comment. His reply was that he had written this declaration quite a long time back and that he did not know that The New Masses intended to publish it under a heading which committed the contributors to communism.

For what it was worth, in the judgment of the readers, I presented his explanation, remembering, however, for myself, that the non-Communist takes all the risk in believing any disavowal or recantation by anyone who knowingly and willfully associates with Communists. There is a cousin-breed of cats known as fellow-travelers which runs with the Communists and observes their social and moral forms but lives on better fare.

BUT I am sure Mr. Van Loon would not call his comrade a fellow traveler, for they are held in contempt by Communists and non-Communists alike as a flinching, mincing lot who lack the courage to join the party and run like hares from the red-baiters. I did not attempt to classify Mr. Van Loon's comrade, therefore, but just presented his own declaration and the explanation and let it go at that, although I thought it significant that he chose a Communist publication in which to state his position.

I am afraid I can't allow Mr. Fadiman to recant as glibly as he tried to and my authority for this position is Mr. Fadiman himself in an essay published only last week. Discussing a new book by Dr. Hermann Rauchning, the backslid Nazi, entitled "The Conservative Revolution," Mr. Fadiman coldly rejects Rauchning's statement that he really didn't mean it when he was practicing Hitlertism in Germany.

"SUPPOSE, Dr. Rauschning," he writes, sternly, "we stop being subtle and hochphilosophic and state a simple fact or two. It would seem to most people that anybody who is familiar with Hitler's speeches (as you must have been) was aware that his central appeal lay in an inflammatory invitation to murder a helpless minority." He then holds Rauschning irrevocably bound by his earlier choice and I now find Van Loon accusing me of character assassination in applying Fadiman's own rule to Fadiman, himself.

But surely Van Loon dishonors his comrade by this defense, for he craves an indulgence that his pundit friend bitterly withholds from another. And he argues that his friend's declared beliefs were somewhat despicable which is a hell of a way to treat a comrade.

Van Loon, out of his knowledge of the abnormal, suggests that in my youth I may have wished to be a policeman or a writer. I believe that is what the abnormalists call the field of suppressed desire and the fact is that I did have a longing to be a ball player. I Suppose Van Loon, too, may have wished to be something else, say a milliner, or a nurse.

Traffic Planners Consider Hazards

Traffic hazards are commanding more and more consideration with the acceleration of traffic accidents.

According to planners the trend toward home sites in protected areas results from an effort to escape the hazards of high-speed traffic thoroughfares or those of principal streets where traffic may not be necessarily fast but is heavy and dangerous.

The Plea For Unity

By Mark Sullivan

What Constitutes Defense Need?

A CLEAR, if not wholly complete, statement of an imminent condition is contained in the following words by Mr. Walter Lippmann:

"There will have to be a showdown in this country and it will come in a few weeks, as soon as Congress has finished with its holiday. It will be a showdown to decide whether our political leaders are going to permit the American people to unite in defense of their vital interests; or whether, in face of an alliance of hostile powers, our leaders are going to divide, distract and demoralize the Nation by an internal political feud."

SULLIVAN

That condition exists, grows more tense, and is, as Mr. Lippmann says, due for some kind of a showdown. But if the condition is to be understood, and corrected, the factors composing it must be recognized.

While there are conspicuous exceptions, most of those in Congress who oppose the President do not oppose him on the defense issue. Without checking the record, it is safe to say that on practically all the strictly defense measures Mr. Roosevelt has proposed to Congress during 2½ years, the opposition has not been much more than a handful.

AND when opposition has appeared in some force, it has not been opposition to defense, as such. The lease-lend bill is an example. The opposition to that was not, primarily or even to any great extent, opposition to more help for Britain. It was opposition to more powers for the President. And we must refine still farther. The opposition was not primarily opposition to granting powers to the President for the effective prosecution of defense. It was opposition to use that might be made of these powers in domestic matters. In this case, after there had been sufficient debate to serve as protest and warning, and after the powers granted in the original form of the bill had been reasonably trimmed down, the bill in its final form was passed by majorities large enough to constitute reasonable support of a defense measure.

Everybody knows that during the years of the New Deal preceding the outbreak of war, there was constant reaching out for more power for the Executive, for more centralized form of Government; for, as many believed and said, a changed form of society. This occasioned alarm —on one expressed the alarm in words of graver concern than Mr. Lippmann.

THEN came the emergency of war bringing with it legitimate reason for expansion of the powers of the Presidency. It can hardly be surprising if many felt apprehension that powers asked for as an incident of preparedness might be used for the purpose for which greater powers had been sought during six years before.

It is impossible—and this is the bedeviling thing—to separate use of a power for a war purpose from use of it in internal matters. An example is the shipbuilding strike at Kearny, N. J. There, a Government body, the National Defense Mediation Board, took the position that an employer should discharge, upon notice from the union, any member of the union who had failed to pay is dues or otherwise failed to abide by union discipline. That was an extraordinary and far-reaching step for any Government body to take. The Mediation Board was intent upon the motive of defense; they made this recommendation as, so they thought, a means of settling a labor controversy quickly, of getting quick production of war materials.

BUT the effect, coupled with the action of the President in later taking over the plant, is to give Government sanction to an extreme obligation upon employers, an extreme limitation upon the right of a worker to resign from a union if he chooses to. If this were incorporated permanently into the American system, the American system could hardly continue to exist.

There occurred this week an example of the most extreme difference that can take place between a President and Congress—enactment of a measure by Congress, followed by veto by the President. The measure had nothing whatever to do with defense. It was an attempt by Congress to reduce a penalty put upon farmers who raised wheat in excess of the quota imposed upon them by Triple-A. Is Congress to be expected to refrain from such steps as this, merely upon the plea of unity for defense?

THE PLEA is for unity for defense. But much of Congress is apprehensive lest the New Deal, if granted unity for defense, would use that unity for purposes beyond defense. The other day President Roosevelt jointly with Prime Minister Churchill proclaimed a statement of common aims, the Eight Points—supposed to have to do wholly with war and the peace to follow. Commenting upon the Eight Points, a journalistic intimate of the White House and of the New Deal, Mr. Ernest Lindley, wrote the following sentence:

"What Roosevelt and Churchill have proclaimed is a cooperative international New Deal, protected by the joint power of the British Commonwealth and the United States."

Is Congress expected to confer unity upon any purpose so far-reaching as that?

The Gallup Poll

Voters Favor Direct Selections for Annapolis And West Point Instead of Through Congress

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 26.—A large majority of American voters polled in a Nationwide survey believe that young men who wish to enter West Point or Annapolis should be allowed to apply direct without having to secure an appointment from their Congressman.

Although a few men are taken directly from the Regular Army each year, the great bulk of those entering the Army or Navy Academy at present must obtain appointment from a Congressman in their area.

In this session of Congress a bill was introduced by Senator Robert Reynolds, Chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, to authorize the Secretary of War to fill about 180 vacancies at West Point without the usual routine of Congressional appointment. The bill passed the Senate and was favorably reported by the House Military Affairs Committee. But the House opposed the measure and killed it July 16.

Voters Shun "Politics"

The Institute survey put the following issue to a vote among a cross-section of the population from coast to coast.

"Should young men who want to go to West Point or Annapolis be permitted to apply directly for entrance, or should they first be required to get an appointment from their Congressman, as at present?"

The results were:

Apply Directly	64%
Through Congressman	19
No Opinion	17

The public's desire to have these appointments placed on an open competitive basis stems from a belief that "politics" should not enter into military training. By far the most frequent comment made by voters in explaining their opinion is that selection for West Point or Annapolis should be entirely removed from all consideration of politics.

"Undemocratic" System

"Everybody who wants to go may not know a Congressman," is the way one typical voter puts it. Another, a housewife interviewed in Ohio, said:

"What's a Congressman got to do with whether a man's a soldier or not? He can't tell."

A substantial number also believe the present system is undemocratic, that all do not have an equal chance at present and that "standardized qualifications rather than pull should count."

Those on the minority side, who uphold the present system, claim that with Congressmen from every State entitled to make appointments, the Academies get a better cross-section of the country's young men than might otherwise be the case; that the present method has proved satisfactory thus far; and that direct application would burden the Academies with too much paper work and require them to spend too much time "weeding" out applicants.

Lindbergh to Talk In Oklahoma, Even 'If in a Pasture'

Oklahoma City, Aug. 26 (AP).—Charles A. Lindbergh will speak in Oklahoma Friday, "even if he has to use a cow pasture," a spokesman for the America First Committee said today after the city council canceled a permit for use of the Municipal Auditorium.

"If we can't get a place here we'll go somewhere else, but we definitely will speak, and it will be in Oklahoma," added Herbert K. Hyde, a former United States district attorney and Oklahoma City chairman of the America First Committee.

The council acted unanimously on protests submitted by two local American Legion posts, the Women's Ambulance and Transport Corps of Oklahoma, Harmony Chapter, No. 3, of the American War Mothers, and the Knights of Pythias.

Councilman A. P. Van Meter, moving the cancellation, said:

"We're not denying the right of free speech by refusing to rent a public building.

"Let him go elsewhere to speak, and when he gets tired talking, he can go home."

More Ship Contracts Let

New Ways Planned

Copyright by New York Times

PRELIMINARY negotiations have been concluded by the Maritime Commission, it announced yesterday, for construction of 566 additional ships in the maritime program, or sufficient to keep a full work program in expanded yards going through 1943.

Progress on this new program, which brings the entire ship construction program for the merchant marine to approximately 1400 vessels, was announced within 24 hours after President Roosevelt signed the $7,500,000,000 supplementary appropriation bill. That law carries funds and authorizations for the ship program aggregating $1,698,650,000.

As first steps in implementing the enlarged program, the commission already has concluded negotiations for building 66 of the authorized ships and for construction of more than 20 additional ways in existing shipyards. The ways must be constructed ahead of the ships, since all available facilities will be occupied at least through 1942 on existing contracts. Many other ways will be ordered in the near future.

NEW WAYS announced yesterday as already allocated and whose cost is estimated at one million dollars each are as follows:

South Portland Shipbuilding Co., South Portland, Me., two ways.

Bethlehem Steel Co., Sparrows Point, Md., two ways.

Alabama Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., Mobile, Ala., eight ways.

Ingalls Shipbuilding Co., Pascagoula, Miss., two ways.

Delta Shipbuilding Co., New Orleans, two ways.

Richmond Shipbuilding Corporation, Richmond, Calif., three ways.

THE COMMISSION announced that "expansion of other existing shipyards will be authorized as rapidly as practicable, until sufficient capacity has been provided to meet the requirements of the construction program."

The 66 new cargo carriers for which negotiations have been completed will be of the standard commission "C" type, costing between $2,200,000 and three million dollars each and conforming with the high-speed and performance standards set by the commission for ships before the emergency program began.

These ships will be built by four companies which have specialized in this type of construction. The Consolidated Steel Corporation will construct 26 of these, all of the C-1 type. The Gulf Shipbuilding Corporation, of Mobile, will build 16 of the C-2 type, and the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corporation and the Bethlehem Steel Co. will construct 10 and 14, respectively, of the C-3 type of ships.

THE COMMISSION said that specifications for the remaining 500 newly authorized ships would depend largely upon availability of materials for the various types. A survey will be made to determine how much turbine and gear production can be obtained for additional ships of the "C" type and how many must be of the older types, now known as "Liberty ships." There also is an unanswered question as to the over-all amount of steel that will be available for ship production.

"In the construction of Liberty ships," the commission added, "yards already engaged in building that type will be finished with their present contracts, it is estimated, by the end of 1942.

"The additional vessels of this type, to be constructed under the authorization of the bill just signed by the President, is intended to keep a steady work load in the yards constructing Liberty ships throughout 1943. It will be necessary to place contracts for additional ships in those yards by the end of the calendar year 1942.

"Addition of the ships contemplated under this appropriation bill to those in the existing Maritime Commission program brings the total planned production by the end of 1943 up to nearly 1400 ships, an average of about 2 ships a day."

Action In Iran

By Barnet Nover

A Preventive Occupation

IN HIS GREAT speech of Sunday, August 24, Winston Churchill spoke of "the difficulties of geography which stand between Russia and the aid which the Western democracies are trying to bring." But he went on to say that: "We shall strive our utmost to overcome all difficulties and to bring this aid . . . No barrier must stand in the way."

NOVER

A few hours later British and Russian troops were moving into Iran, which controls one of the few available routes over which supplies from Britain and this country can reach Russia. And circumstances of weather and war may make it, before very long, the only feasible route. Vladivostok is ice-bound a good part of the year. Even in good season it is more than 3000 miles removed from the present Eastern Front. Murmansk is closer both to British and American industrial centers. But it is problematical whether and for how long that Arctic port can be held by the Russians in the face of the present German and Finnish drive in the north. In other words, the Iranian route, far from satisfactory though it is as a lifeline connecting Russia with the nations that are pledged to aid her, may sooner or later be as vital to the Red armies as is the Burma Road to the forces commanded by Chiang Kai-shek.

THAT IS ONE reason why both Russia and Great Britain became so alarmed over the recent arrival in Iran of a large number of German "tourists" and of other pro-Axis individuals such as Rashid Ali of Iraq and the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem. Neither Moscow nor London could ignore the possibility that these Fifth Column elements could seek to repeat at Teheran the coup staged with German support in Baghdad some months ago.

That development proved extremely troublesome to the British. They had to wage a small scale war in Iraq to regain a position which they should never have allowed themselves to lose and which they would not have lost had they been faster on the trigger.

As it happened, Rashid Ali's pro-Axis coup in Iraq did not prove permanently damaging to the British. But it underlined a lesson taught them at great cost in Norway, the Low Countries, the Balkans and French Indo-China. That lesson they have at last taken to heart and, in company with the Russians, have applied in Iran as the United States had applied the same lesson in relation first to Greenland and later to Iceland.

THE OCCUPATION of Iran is a move to prevent the isolation of Russia from her British ally and the American arsenal.

Of equal importance, it creates a barrier in the way of a German drive to the Persian Gulf and India, a barrier likely to prove of tremendous value should Hitler's armies succeed in taking over all of the Ukraine and the Caucasus or attempt to use Turkey as a corridor to the Middle East as they used Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria as a springboard from which to launch an attack on Greece and Yugoslavia. Indeed, the presence of an Anglo-Russian force in Iran will make it easier to defend the Baku oil fields whose loss could be a tremendous blow to the Russian army, Russian industry and Russian agriculture.

In view of Iran's strategic position it is difficult to see how the Allise could have done otherwise than they did. For the Teheran government's policy of neutrality would not have saved her had Hitler been in a position to move into Iran. In this instance Hitler's enemies acted first. The outburst of wrath in Berlin, the crocodile tears which Dr. Goebbels' mouthpiece is shedding over this "criminal assault" on a neutral nation suggest that the Nazis have been unpleasantly surprised and disturbed by the Anglo-Russian move.

IRAN'S position was admittedly difficult when Moscow and London began to put pressure on her to expel the German "tourists" in her midst. The Iranians are a people of ancient lineage and tenacious memory. They have not forgotten that it was not so many years ago that their country was the cockpit of international rivalries that made it difficult for them to maintain more than a shadow independence.

Since Reza Khan Pahlevi's rise to power 16 years ago considerable progress has been achieved by Iran in the direction of modernization. At the same time a constant effort has been made to restrict and remove foreign influences, particularly those emanating from Iran's nearest and most powerful neighbors—Russia and Great Britain. And it was because Germany was then far away that German influence in Iranian affairs has risen during these same years.

That did not matter while Germany remained within her borders. It matters very much today, particularly in view of the Nazi technique of conquest from within, a technique displayed with such terrifying results in so many countries.

Iran sought peace through isolation and neutrality. As long as the war was confined to Western Europe she had her wish. But isolation and neutrality could not save Iran when the storm began to sweep in her direction.

Iran's position today is what Turkey's position threatens to become tomorrow. Indeed, the Turks are worried that Hitler may use the Anglo-Russian occupation of Iran as an excuse to march into Turkey. That danger exists. Yet what happened in Iran may, in the long run, work to Turkey's advantage rather than her undoing. For Hitler can hardly spare the men at this time for a march across Anatolia, and the longer he delays the more likely it is that should his armies march across Turkey they would find a powerful Anglo-Russian force awaiting them at the end of the long and difficult road. If, on the other hand, Hitler decides to move now he can only do so by weakening his forces on the Russian front or by reducing the garrisons which are now forced to cope with increasingly rebellious populations in the lands Hitler has conquered.

100,000 Bales of Frozen Silk To Be Bought by U. S. Agency

The Defense Supplies Corporation, an RFC subsidiary, yesterday prepared to buy up 100,000 bales of raw silk, now frozen by Federal order.

Charles J. Huber, vice president of the United States Testing Co., selected by DSC as its buying agent, said the agency would pay the Federally fixed ceiling price of $3.08 a pound for the basic grade silk.

Silk purchased through DSC is expected to be allocated through OPM's priorities division to defense manufacturers.

Meanwhile the Agriculture Department announced that it would pay a subsidy of 2 cents a pound on a maximum of 14 million pounds of surplus Puerto Rican coffee shipped to the United States between now and next June 30.

The department also announced plans for purchasing apples from the 1941 crop under a program designed to offset the loss of foreign markets. Officials did not indicate the full extent of the purchasing program, but said the apples would be available for distribution in domestic relief programs and for lend-lease shipment to Britain.

From Soda Straws to Defense: It's Done in D. C.

(This is the second in a series of articles about Washington industries which have adapted peacetime methods and equipment to make products necessary for national defense.)

By George W. Thorpe
Post Staff Writer

General view of girls working on tubes for defense purposes.

WHEN Marvin C. Stone invented the paper drinking straw one day in 1886 and tested it out critically on a mint julep, he wasn't thinking in terms of national defense.

If he were drinking that julep today, he probably would be.

The little shop on Ninth Street where Stone used to roll straws by hand has grown, in the meantime. Until 1925 a complete monopoly as the only producer of paper straws in the world, the business burgeoned over the years.

In fact, business became so good the Stone Straw Corporation, now housed in a block-long plant at 910 Franklin Street Northeast, decided to branch out and make other paper products besides straws.

IT IS because of the demand for these items that the wheels spin faster and faster at Stone Straw Corporation these days. Now, two-thirds of the company's personnel are manning machines that make articles for national defense.

There are between 2000 and 3000 of these articles of paper composition, all indispensable to defense but in a way that wouldn't occur to the layman.

Miss Lola Dean holds some projectile liners

For instance: Vital to the functioning of the generator in a gasoline engine is a small paper tubing Stone Straw Corporation makes that insulates the electric coils. The connection between generators and the Army's mechanized equipment—such as the huge artillery prime movers, the rambunctious little Jeep cars—is obvious.

ALL the paper items are like that. In a detailed but vital way they fit into other products used by the Army and Navy.

Not all Stone products go to the American defenders. A cardboard cylinder, apparently for a shell, which has found its way to England in large quantities, is called the "hush-hush" item by company officials because British officers naturally are very tight-lipped about its use.

But by-products of the peacetime drinking straw that go directly to this country's defense stretch the imagination: Paper containers for powder and chemicals, paper casing for bandages and medicines, paper caps for radio tubes, the paper that is now replacing aluminum in radio mechanism.

THERE are hundreds of items which protect delicate defense products that are subject to wear—such as the threaded parts that go into a machine or gun. Stone Corporation paper corkscrews over the metal to prevent corrosion in a gun that might win or lose a battle.

One of the paper products most directly concerned with the war is the cardboard casing for a glass iodine phial. The wounded soldier squeezes the paper casing, breaking the phial inside, and as the iodine seeps out through openings in the casing, he pours it onto his wound.

SMALLEST of the items—a washer .046 inch in diameter—is a constant joy to the freight charge estimator. A million or so of these washers can be shipped off by air to the West Coast, Sitka, Alaska, or Panama in a small cardboard box (also made at Stone Straw Corporation) at a negligible rate. Washers, box and all, weigh only a couple of ounces.

Having no connection with paper products, but certainly with national defense, is a plant in Georgetown whose controlling interest has been acquired by Stone Corporation. The concern makes oil filters for gasoline and diesel engines and officials are very enthusiastic about its product. They claim you can go on using the same oil indefinitely if your car is equipped with one of these filters.

They have mentioned the matter to Harold Ickes.

Lady Mountbatten Visits Red Cross, Cites Value of First Aid to Britain

LADY LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN, of London, in an interview yesterday, pointed out the importance of women trained in first aid. "We would never have gotten through last fall without women trained to nurse. As it was, we felt it almost too late."

Lady Mountbatten, official representative of the British Red Cross, is here to thank America for the 25 million dollars worth of medical supplies and clothing sent to England by the American Red Cross.

LADY MOUNTBATTEN will make a speaking tour through the United States under the direction of Norman Davis, president of the American Red Cross. Although there is a shortage of men's clothing, she doesn't intend to ask for anything. "There's no need to make an appeal," she said. "Everybody is most generous."

Lady Mountbatten wore the uniform of the Ambulance Division of the Order of St. Johns. She kept her white gloves on and throughout the interview, in the offices of the American Red Cross, put on and took off her dark glasses. She entered the motor corps at the time of Munich, and she wishes, she said, that more women in England had done the same thing. She holds certificates for first aid, home nursing, gas treatment and ambulance driving.

Lady Mountbatten (right) confers at American Red Cross headquarters with Mrs. Dwight Davis, director of volunteer service, and Norman Davis, chairman

"THE emphasis in training of this type should be laid on first aid," she said. "Regular nursing is not so important. I imagine you have enough registered nurses in America. But what is needed is women to take care of the fractures and cuts and other injuries resultant from bombs.

"Recently we have added childbirth to our list of first-aid training," she said. Then with a little pride she added, "Some of our 17-year-old girls do as good a job as the best registered nurse."

REFERRING to the need for men's clothing, Lady Mountbatten commented, "Men are so conventional, especially in England.

"Although," she added, "you would be surprised at the costumes I have seen after an air raid."

The Order of St. Johns, of whose London division Lady Mountbatten is president, was founded in the days of the crusades. It is a nursing order.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wife Is More Alarmed Than Piqued by Husband's Emotional Disinterest in Her; Once Acquiescent In Affectional Exchanges, Now He Holds Aloof

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I shall try to combine frankness with delicacy in stating my problem. My husband is 33. I am 27. We have been married three years. Whether the trouble is psychological or physiological, I do not know,—but my husband holds himself aloof from me to such an extent that I am alarmed, rather than piqued.

He was never ardent. Ever since we were married, I have taken the initiative in any affectional exchanges. This was for two reasons,—because he encouraged me to, and because I realized that a cooperative attitude is necessary for achieving a good emotional adjustment in marriage. But for the past year, his passivity has taken a turn toward indifference, if not actual reluctance. However, he assures me he loves me; which leads me to believe that he must be just sexually anemic.

The situation worries me because it gives our marriage a queer sort of emptiness. The reason I suggest that he may be anemic is because of his general behavior. He walks with a slouch. He sleeps a frightful amount. He takes no exercise, although his work is sedentary. His whole outlook seems to be negative. He isn't enthused about anything. And it grieves me that he should have so little interest, and so much difficulty, in expressing his love for me on the physical plane. Please help us, Miss Haworth. I know not where else to turn for understanding advise.

V. A. E.

Case of Encroaching Personality Atrophy

DEAR V. A. E.: Inasmuch as your husband is able to hold a job (which presumably he must do, in order to meet his financial responsibilities), it is unlikely that he is organically ill to an alarming degree. Which is to say that his sexual apathy probably cannot be rightly attributed to physical debility.

Rather, it seem: that his negative attitude toward your desire to be normally loved is but one of many symptoms of his generally lethargic indifference to the normal pursuits of robust mankind. Such withdrawal from life (which amounts, indeed, to toleration of steadily encroaching personality atrophy), is definitely suggestive more of psychological than physical root causes of distress.

However, there is a possibility that, by now, a "vicious circle" of debilitating influences is sapping his vital energies. The phenomenon of bodily action and reaction is such that one who for psychological cause, assumes a lackadaisical or pallidly passive attitude toward his environment, thereby sets in motion an organic and glandular depression, which sympathetically reflects his depressed mental or emotional state. When that condition obtains, the patient is said to be "functionally" ill, in addition to being psychologically disturbed.

The question may then arise as to whether he most needs the services of an internist (i. e., a medical man) or a psychiatrist. I should say that an internist (providing he is a really good diagnostician with psychiatric understanding of "functional" illness) might administer medical treatment which would temporarily lift him out of his "functional" depression, to the extent that he would be heartened to vigorously undertake the permanent solution of his fundamental psychological distress,—by employing psychiatric aid in digging, as it were, for the thorn in his spiritual side that is poisoning his mental and emotional processes.

Your husband's inclination to drift with the tide of his increasing inadequacy is perhaps the most discouraging aspect of the situation. His reaction would be healthier if he fretted as you do about his psychic impotency; if he were embarrassed and contrite; anxiously eager to make amends, and to do all possible to revive his waning vigor. Until that is his attitude, there is little you can do, directly, to improve the relationship—unless, perhaps, to refrain from molesting him with any further gestures at lovemaking. By graciously leaving him alone, by tactfully practicing self containment, by accommodating yourself quite pleasantly to a neutral status, you may capture his attention and kindle his ardor to a far more heart-warming degree than heretofore.

It is possible, indeed, that by your well meant, aggressive past efforts at conjugal cooperation, you have continuously given unwitting offense to his sick sensibilities, thus reducing still further his powers of spontaneous address,—by making him feel, at first, tiredly and tolerantly obligated to try to please you (instead of genuinely and tenderly responsive): and, as time went on, increasingly on the defensive, until now his principal reaction is one of indifference verging on distaste.

If you were to freely release him from the psychic pressure of your anxiously expectant attitude regarding lovemaking, by adopting the attitude, hereafter, that you are as gently indifferent to such matters as he seems to be, you might invoke a gratifying change in his performance. If you were to leave the initiative entirely to him and even coquettishly evade (in merry humor), such first tentative overtures as he would undoubtedly eventually make to you, it is possible the beginnings of a properly balanced relationship might thus be established.

Since you wisely desire to know whether and how the relationship can be normalized, I advise you to discuss the situation thoroughly, at first hand, with a psychiatrist or diagnostician, in order (1) to get an estimate of your husband's condition, and its chances of cure; and (2) to learn how to conduct yourself, for best results, in meeting the problem his passivity presents.

Actresses Find Crinolines Aren't Romantic to Wear

Hollywod, Calif.—The Fashion Legend has it that every girl in the world wishes she'd been born a century ago and could have worn the romantic crinolines of yesteryear.

But several Hollywood stars take exception to his sentimental thought. Jane Wyman, for one, because she sweltered during the hot days of early spring under the bouffant skirts and starched petticoats demanded by her role in a new costume picture.

And currently Martha Scott, in the garb of 1904, hurries off the set and home to the coolest pair of lounging pajamas she can find.

Olivia de Havilland isn't happy about the hoop skirts and fur tippets she wears in a costume picture. She's glad she was born to the air-cooled fashions of 1941.

The girls will argue with sentimental males who contend that the women of those bygone days were "more feminine."

"Femininity," says Martha Scott, "is an attribute of the girl herself, not of her clothes. She may look more charming in a full-skirted evening gown but she may still be very feminine in her tailored slacks."

And nothing could have been more feminine at that moment than Martha herself in a pair of turquoise crepe afternoon trousers with a rambler rose design and sparkling pink roses in her ears.

Food Faddists Take Joy Out of Eating

By Ida Jean Kain

DIETITIANS and nutritionists have been accused of lacing in tight, unbending stays and taking the fun out of eating! Paul V. McNutt, in his opening address before the nutrition conference, complained that something frequently happens to good food when its selection is distilled through the coils of an expert. And that food loses its gastronomic gusto. Those were his words.

This stalwart Hoosier claims that in his State they've gotten their vitamins for years, all that could possibly be strung together, before they ever knew one by its first initial, but that the meals also contained an extra vitamin, one that could not be found in the laboratory—the psychological vitamin of human satisfaction. He termed it vitamin Z—for zest, no doubt.

Well, hold on a minute, Governor. You've got something in the idea that every meal should have that all important vitamin Z. And we know that Indiana food has what it takes. But what ever gave you the idea that nutritionists didn't go in for good eats? Did you ever sit down to a meal served up to us when we get together? I thought not. A number of nutritionists had dinner the other night at the country home of a member who has a string of degrees after her name, and this is what we ate: Golden brown chicken, fluffy hot biscuits and gravy, corn on the cob, a tossed green salad with snappy cheese, iced tea and honeydew melon. You can't do better than that in Indiana.

And it isn't a case of do as I say, not as I do. Every nutritionist worth her salt makes it her business to plan meals replete in the vitamin Z that makes for rounded gastronomic satisfaction. We believe food should be so good the family will want to eat for the pure joy of eating.

Faddists Are Blamed

It is not the nutritionists who have taken the fun out of eating. But I'm afraid a lot of people have the idea that nutrition means something that is "good for you," but not too tasty. The food faddists are to blame. They have harassed the public with ridiculous and far-fetched notions about what they should and should not eat. Some of them expound the theory that all food should be eaten raw. Nothing could be more unappetizing or idiotic! Others credit vegetable juices with virtues which the vegetables in their natural form do not possess. Some oppose the eating of meat—it isn't the nutritionists who try to take away your juicy steak. Still others oppose the mixing of protein and starches, whereas the scientists stress that we get along best on a varied diet and that the less we think about our digestion the better.

The exponents of these eccentric diets are the food faddists, not nutrition specialists. I only hope this nutritional education campaign will make the people so well informed about food they will not be fooled by the faddists.

Overemphasis a Fault

Perhaps in our enthusiasm to sell the public on good eating habits and make strong men drink their milk, we have been a bit insistent on the balanced diet. But we are just as insistent on good food. Good food and good nutrition are synonymous.

"The Market Basket," which is a bulletin put out by the Bureau of Agriculture, and edited by as smart a bunch of nutritionists as you will find in the country, came out with an issue on ways to make eating more fun. I'll tell you about that tomorrow.

Mitts for School

The giddy "Mop 'em" shown above are just what their name implies. They are really the housewife's dust mop transformed into colorful mitts for the school girl. Unlike the colorless dust-catcher, however, they come in such gay colors as yellow and brown, biege and brown, red and white, all red and all beige. They have beccome a Washington fad and college girls by the droves are buying them to take back to school. Besides being novel in appearance, they really are warm!

Slip Covers Easily Made

THOSE end-of-summer blues, when faded worn chairs look so hopeless! What to do? Why, cover your bedraggled orphans with new slip covers in smart year-'round styles.

Nothing's easier if you make them the pin-on way—and know a few professional tricks for fit and wear.

In covering any chair or sofa the pin-on way you simply remove cushions and smooth fabric down front of back and over seat, right side out if you plan to use bound seams. Then pin in place along lines of the upholstery and cut 1½ inches outside pins to allow for seams.

Our 40-page booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully," gives complete directions for covering any chair or sofa the pin-on way. Tells how to make pleated and swag flounces. Suggests smart fabrics, trimmings.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Young Set Beats Heat With Swim and La Conga

By Patricia Grady

The Washington social summer rolls merrily on its way, leaning heavily on the backbone of its existence—the young set. Yesterday a number of the group that is always active no matter what the thermometer reads, hied themselves out to Wyncrest to dance and swim with Padget Schall.

Wyncrest, the University Park home of Padget's mother, Mrs. Thomas David Schall and the late Senator Schall of Minnesota, was apparently built with yesterday's party in mind. The lodge behind the swimming pool is perfectly suited for a dance after a dip and wienies and sauerkraut were ready or young appetites whetted by the American crawl or La Conga. Assisting Mrs. Schall were Mrs. William Langer, wife of the Senator from North Dakota and Mrs. Ernest Lundeen, wife of the late Senator from Minnesota.

Also in the Senatorial contingent were Chiyo Thomas, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Elbert D. Thomas of Utah; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chase—she was before her marriage, Jane Holt, sister of the former Senator from West Virginia, Rush Holt; Mr. and Mrs. David Lynn—she was Barbara Burke, daughter of the former Senator from Nebraska and Mrs. Edward R. Burke, Cornelia Langer and Joan Lundeen.

Hoe-Down Square Dance Planned in Near Future

Others at the party were Mrs. Ann P. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Don Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alexander, Mimi Norton, Ruth Ellen Lonergan, Betty Shuey, Izetta Jewell, jr., who has been emulating her well-known actress mother this summer at the Cross Roads Theater and will soon be off for New York to look for fall roles, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bierman, William Young, Bart Hewitt, Don Gardiner, Leo Brady, Reginald Allen, Hobart Walker, Bernie Harrison and John Gaunt.

So successful was the informal dancing yesterday afternoon, that Padget is planning a hoe-down square dance in the near future.

Another of yesterday's young set parties was the bridge-luncheon given by Mrs. Frank Weller—nee Amelita Alfaro—for her sister, Yolanda Alfaro. The daughter of the former Panamanian envoy to the United States and Mrs. Ricardo will marry Ensign Henry Cabell Maddux, jr., Friday. Ensign Maddux has been at sea until recently. He is now stationed at the Washington Navy Yard.

Miss Patricia Herbert Gives Luncheon Today

Among those at the party yesterday which took place in Mrs. Weller's home in Kensington, were Mrs. W. A. Burton, Mrs. Victor Alfaro, Mrs. Clark Worthington, Mrs. John L. Hamilton, Billie Byrd West, Doris Beekwith, Rubby Harris, Patricia Prochnik, Margaret Gordon and Peter and Marion Norris.

Today, Patricia Herbst, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William P. Herbst, will entertain informally at luncheon at her parents' home on Foxhall Road.

Another party on yesterday's calendar was the bridge-luncheon given for Mrs. Tomas Cajigas by Mrs. Felipe Rotalde in her apartment at 2311 Connecticut Avenue. At the two tables were Mrs. Warren Andrews, Mrs. W. B. Perraceli, Mrs. James B. Akers, Mrs. Charles L. Shah, Mrs. Marion Nailor Bailey and Mrs. Laurence Clayton.

Dr. and Mrs. Cajigas will leave for a fortnight's sojourn in Atlantic City toward the end of the week. They will join their children, Anita, Tommy and Paul, at the cottage they have taken there. The children of the family are scheduled to leave for the beach resort today or tomorrow.

Horse Show Parties Slated

A number of dinner parties will be held Saturday evening before the dance at the Blue Parrot to be given in connection with the opening of the Warrenton Horse Show. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thornton Greene will be hosts at a dinner party as will Mrs. E. Douglas Prime who will be hostess at her home, Eastwood. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McGrath also will entertain at dinner.

Preceding the dance Mr. and Mrs. Melville Bearns, jr., will be hosts to a group. Miss Dorothy Neyhart, who is in charge of arrangements for the dance, will entertain a group of her friends at dinner beforehand. Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hamilton will entertain at Dunnottar, their home, and Mr. and Mrs. Melville Church 2d, will have a party at their home, Northcliffe, near Rixeyville, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, of Clovelly, Warrenton, will start the ball rolling for Horse Show week Saturday when they entertain at luncheon for the judges, officials and a number of well-known exhibitors who are coming out from town. J. North Fletcher, president of the Warrenton Horse Show Association, will entertain for the same group at Crestone at a tea following the show on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Frances Thomas and Mrs. James C. Hamilton will join forces and entertain at the Thomas home, North Rock, on Monday for luncheon in honor of the officials, judges and out-of-town exhibitors.

Officers of the Horse Show Association and the entertainment committee, the latter composed of Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, Miss Jane Wilbur, Mrs. Melville Church 2d, Miss Dorothy Neyhart, J. North Fletcher, Mrs. Randolph G. Duffey, Miss Lucie B. Duer, Mrs. Francis T. Greene, Mrs. E. Douglas Prime, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Black, Mrs. Melville Bearns, jr., and Mrs. Frances Thomas, will bring the horse show weekend to a delightful close Monday afternoon following the awarding of the tricolored rosettes—closing events of the show—with a cocktail party for out-of-town exhibitors, judges and officials at the Winmills' Clovelly Farm, on Spring Road.

Miss Tobey, Mr. Munson Are Married

Dr. and Mrs. Edward TenEyck Munson are on their wedding trip through the White Mountains and upon their return will live at 164 Genesee Park Boulevard, Rochester, N. Y. The wedding of the former Miss Francelia Tobey, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Charles W. Tobey, took place Monday afternoon at their ancestral home built in 1789 in Temple, N. H. Dr. Munson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Van Voorhis Munson of Rochester, N. Y.

Bishop George W. Davenport of Maryland officiated at the ceremony. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of old ivory silk muslin, Gibson girl style, made with a high lace collar and V shaped neckline. Her ivory tulle veil was caught with small garden flowers and she carried a bouquet of white sweet peas and gypsophila.

Miss Louise Tobey, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore one of her mothers trousseau gowns in candy-stick stripes in pink on a white background with black velvet ribbon run through the lace on the bodice. It was fashioned with a many tucked full skirt ending in a slight train. She carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas. The ringbearer, Stephen Tobey, was dressed in all white. John Munson, of Grand Rapids, Mich., served as best man for his brother.

A reception followed on the lawn of the lovely estate under several elms. Vases of wild flowers marked off the aisle for the bridal procession. Mrs. Tobey wore a blue flowered chiffon frock with a matching hat and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Mrs. Munson wore a beige crepe ensemble and sweetheart roses.

The bride attended Manchester, N. H., high school, the University of New Hampshire, the Peter Bent Brigham School of Nursing and Hesser Business College. Dr. Munson was graduated from the University of Rochester and the University of Rochester Medical School.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

The "Spinsters Dance," the past weekend at Goose Creek Tavern, was enjoyed by a huge crowd of young people and turned out to be one of the most gala parties of the summer. The girls and boys came in Saidie Hawkins and Li'l Abner attire, as they were asked to and it would have been hard to have picked out the prettiest girl in "Dog Patch." So many lovely Daisy Maes arrived from all parts of the country. The costumes were scant but ideal for a warm night and the informal occasion was intriguing to watch. From 10 to 2:30 o'clock they danced to the strains of the George Washington Hotel orchestra and the time passed all too quickly.

Among the guests from a distance were the Misses Natalie Sutherland, Patricia Ord, Patricia Prochnik, Billy Byrd West, Isabel Badger, Martha Bell Moore, Lititia Knox, Mary Gruman, the three Norris sisters, "Peter," Mary Theresa and Laira May; Yolanda Alfaro and her fiance, Cabell Maddux, who are to be married this week; Jack Segar, who brought as his guest the Archduke Felix of Austria; Edgar Prochnik, jr., Tinsley Adams, Albert Berry, Jack Regan, Meade Patrick, Thad Brown, jr., Judson W. Bowles, Jack Nevius, Gene Barnes, Jimmy Ord, Hal Crowell, Lieut. Wingate Clary Holt, and others all from Washington; Miss Landon Mason Burke, Miss Helen Henry, Dick Moncure, Columbus Beverley, Gordon Rust and Charles Barrett, of Alexandria; Miss Clarissa Macy, of New York; Miss Patsy Duncan, of Duncannon, Pa., who is visiting Miss Courtney Seigl; Miss Julia Ravenel, of Charleston, S. C., who is the house guest of Miss Lelia Turner at the Plains; Miss Betty Honocon, Miss Betty McConnell, of Middleburg; Claude Hobbs, of Washington and Lee University, now with the State Department in Washington; Johnny Rhodes, of Winchester; Richard Tayloe, Colin Montgomery and Malbon Wood, of Baltimore; Sam Marshall, jr., of V. M. I.; Rhey Adams, Stirling Harrison, Alan Seigle, Buddy di Zeraga and many more.

HORACE MOFFETT of Marshall, Va. known as one of the best all round horsemen in Virginia, will hold a "Complete Dispersal Sale" of his hunter stable on Friday, August 29th,—the day before the Warrenton Horse Show, at 2:00 p.m.—rain or shine—at the Marshall Fair Grounds, Marshall, Va.

This sale will be of great interest to all horsemen and anyone wanting a good hunter for the coming foxhunting season, for Mr. Moffet will put up for sale 32 horses from his stable. Mr. Moffet is noted for the fine hunters he makes and sends out as hunters, point to point, steeplechase and racing prospects and no one knows the horse and hunting game better than he does.

The horses to be sold on Friday have been slowly and carefully schooled as pleasant hacks and dependable hunters. They are horses that have not changed hands and whose schooling has been done thoroughly, quietly and systematically. Mr. Moffet is a member of Orange County and Piedmont Hunts and two years ago he started a new pack for Raymond Guest over in Clarke County which is proving a great success. It is certain that this sale of fine horses will bring out a large crowd for everyone knows that the best are to be sold that day. The horses can be inspected and tried at Mr. Moffet's farm until the day before the sale, after which horses may be seen but not tried at Marshall Fair Grounds.

Mrs. Dorsey Arrives For Visit in Newport

New Jersey Society To Meet This Evening

A meeting for the reorganization of the New Jersey State Society will be held this evening at 8, in the Garden Room of the Wardman Park Hotel. New Jersey citizens living in Washington, Virginia and Maryland, are invited to attend.

The charter members of the society will be present. Vincent Walsh will preside, assisted by Robert Thomas.

Janet Cunneen Becomes Bride Of Lieut. Hahn

St. Matthew's Cathedral was the scene of the wedding of Miss Janet Padien Cunneen yesterday at 12:45 p. m. to Lieut. Harry Barrett Hahn. Two standards of flowers intermingled with ferns adorned the church for the ceremony, at which the Rev. J. Gerard Cole officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank James Cunneen, of this city. Lieut. Hahn is the son of Harry Hahn, of New York.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Spode blue crepe frock with a cluster of white orchids. Her maid of honor and only attendant was Miss Anne W. Cunneen, her sister, who wore a plum crepe ensemble with a cluster of green orchids. Lieut. Roy H. Burgess served as best man.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Cunneen wore a purple crepe frock and a corsage of gardenias. The fireplace was banked with ferns and a large bouquet of white flowers.

The bride attended Western High School and Smith College. She was selected as color girl at the Naval Academy in '37. Lieut. Hahn attended St. John's Prep and was graduated from the Naval Academy.

When the couple left on their wedding trip to Seattle, Wash., the bride wore a tomato red wool suit trimmed with mink tails and matching accessories. They will make their home in Hawaii. Among the out-of-town guests at the ceremony were James F. Howley, of New York; Mr. Hahn, father of the bridegroom; Miss Mary Virginia Hahn, of New York; Miss Barbara Signor, of Albion, N. Y., and Mrs. Eugene Wilson of Forest Hills, N. Y.

Funeral Today For F. D. Strader, Revenue Official

Funeral services for Frank D. Strader, 61, assistant general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the C. J. Ives funeral chapel, Clarendon, Va.

Mr. Strader died Monday at his home, 1508 North Garfield Street, Arlington, Va.

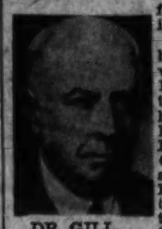
Former auditor of the Wisconsin State Tax Commissions, he came to Washington 18 years ago and joined the Internal Revenue Bureau. He took a correspondence school law course at the age of 46, passed the Virginia bar examinations and rose to the high legal post in the bureau which he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Strader was born in Augusta, Wis. He lived in Arlington for the last 14 years.

He was a member of the District of Columbia, Virginia and American Bar Association and of the National Press Club.

Dr. W. T. Gill's Funeral Set For Tomorrow

Dr. William Tignor Gill, 76, one of Washington's pioneer medical men, died yesterday in his home 2200 Thirty-ninth Street Northwest, following a brief illness.



DR. GILL.

Dr. Gill was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1865 and came to this city with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Gill, at the age of 1½ years. His death brought an end to 55 years of active medical practice in the District.

He attended the elementary schools of Washington and in 1887 was graduated from the school of medicine of Columbian College, now George Washington University. For some time he did post-graduate work and served as intern here at Children's and Emergency Hospitals and later at Bellevue Hospital in New York City.

The physician was a member of the Washington Society of Fine Arts, American Art and Archeological Association, American Medical Association, District Medical Association, George Washington Medical society, a patron of the Central Union Mission. He also belonged to other local civic organizations.

Art, especially painting, was Dr. Gill's chief avocation and he was regarded as a connoisseur in this field. In later years he also took an active interest in photography. During his extensive travels in Europe, Alaska, Canada, Central America and the United States he amassed an extensive collection of motion picture films.

He leaves his wife, Antoinette F. Gill, two sons, Dr. William T. Gill, jr., Richard C. Gill, and one sister, Miss Emma B. Gill, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. from his residence. The Rev. Dr. George S. Duncan of American University will officiate and burial will be in the family lot in Rock Creek Park Cemetery.

Cuban Consul Hurt

Mrs. Morgan, 76, Clubwoman, Dies In Chevy Chase

Mrs. Mary Abell Morgan, 76, civic worker and clubwoman, died yesterday morning at her home, Dudlea, in Chevy Chase, Md. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, and interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

The granddaughter of A. S. Abell, founder of the Baltimore Sun, Mrs. Morgan was born in Baltimore County, Md. She married the late Dr. James Dudley Morgan, of Washington, in 1891. She was a former vice president of the Christ Child Society, and was an active member and early sponsor of the Community Chest. She also belonged to the Chevy Chase Club, Colonial Dames of America, Audubon Society, Garden Club of Chevy Chase, and the Columbia Historical Society.

She leaves three sons, Edwin F. A. Morgan, of Baltimore; William D. D. Morgan, of Tulsa, Okla., and Charles C. Morgan, of Washington; one daughter, Mrs. Bertram Long, of Berkshire, England, and three grandsons and two granddaughters.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Brown

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, widow of Joshua H. Brown, will be held today at 10 a. m. in the W. W. Deal Funeral Home, 4812 Georgia avenue northwest. Mrs. Brown died Monday at the home of her son, Bailey E. Brown, 1207 Delafield place northwest.

Mrs. Brown was born in Cookeville, Tenn., April 14, 1856, and came to Washington in 1914. She formerly lived at 1324 Massachusetts avenue northwest. She was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Besides her son, Mrs. Brown is survived by a sister, Mrs. T. Yeargin, of Cookeville, a granddaughter and several nephews and nieces. Bailey Brown is senior biochemist in the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture. The burial will be Friday in Cookeville.

Dr. De Einedo Returns From U. S. Tour

Contract Bridge

When Mrs. Olive Peterson, one of the officers of the American Contract Bridge League, held the North cards of today's hand, she was able to win her four-spade contract. How would you play to take ten tricks after the defense cashes three rounds of diamonds and switches to a trump?

Today's Hand

Neither Side Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

NORTH: ♠ K Q J 10 8 6 ♡ J 5 ◇ 6 5 3 ♣ 5 2
WEST: ♠ 7 4 3 ♡ K 10 9 ◇ A K Q ♣ Q J 6 4
EAST: ♠ 2 ♡ 8 7 6 4 ◇ J 10 9 7 ♣ 9 8 7 3
SOUTH: ♠ A 9 5 ♡ A Q 3 2 ◇ 8 4 2 ♣ A K 10

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Dble	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: J ◇.

The Answer

Declarer made her four-spade contract by squeezing West, using the Vienna coup technique.

North won the fourth lead in dummy with the ace of trumps. She saw that the heart finesse would probably lose as West had made a takeout double during the bidding; so, one trick shy of her contract, she decided to try for a squeeze on West in high clubs and the heart king.

Declarer cashed the heart ace (the Vienna coupe as it set up the adverse king) and then ran her five remaining trumps. On the last spade lead West was squeezed; he had to discard the heart king, allowing declarer's jack to take a trick in addition to dummy's ace, king of clubs; or throw away his last guard to the club queen, jack, letting Mrs. Peterson cash all three clubs, ace, king and ten.

North made four spades, losing only three diamonds.

Forecasts

For the District of Columbia—Cloudy, with occasional showers Wednesday morning followed by clearing and cooler Wednesday afternoon; cooler Wednesday night; Thursday generally fair and continued cool; moderate northwest winds.

For Maryland—Cloudy with occasional showers followed by clearing in north portion Wednesday afternoon and in south portion Wednesday night; much cooler Wednesday afternoon and night; Thursday generally fair, continued cool.

For Virginia—Cloudy and cooler with showers and local thunderstorms in the south portion and occasional showers ending in north portion Wednesday; cooler in south portion, much cooler in north portion Wednesday; Thursday generally fair, cooler in south portion.

Weather Conditions for Last 24 Hours

A trough of relatively low pressure is moving rapidly eastward over the North and Middle Atlantic States, 29.59 inches, over Maine, and extends westward over the lower Ohio Valley to a weak disturbance in Oklahoma. Numerous showers and thunderstorms have attended movement of this low pressure system with the heaviest rainfall continued generally to the region from Missouri eastward over the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic States. Some local thundershowers occurred within the warm, moist air mass which persists over the Southern States, and there have been showers also in the northern Rocky Mountain region, the Pacific Northwest and portions of the Northern Plains States. An extensive mass of much cooler air has spread southward over the Plains States and upper Mississippi Valley during the past 24 hours and was advancing eastward into the Middle and North Atlantic States in the Ohio Valley. The temperatures are much below normal and this cool air mass, and the highest pressures are found over North Dakota and Minnesota, 30.30 inches.

Young Set Beats Heat With Swim and La Conga

By Patricia Grady

The Washington social summer rolls merrily on its way, leaning heavily on the backbone of its existence—the young set. Yesterday a number of the group that is always active no matter what the thermometer reads, hied themselves out to Wyncrest to dance and swim with Padget Schall.

Wyncrest, the University Park home of Padget's mother, Mrs. Thomas David Schall and the late Senator Schall of Minnesota, was apparently built with yesterday's party in mind. The lodge behind the swimming pool is perfectly suited for a dance after a dip and wienies and sauerkraut were ready or young appetites whetted by the American crawl or La Conga. Assisting Mrs. Schall were Mrs. William Langer, wife of the Senator from North Dakota and Mrs. Ernest Lundeen, wife of the late Senator from Minnesota.

Also in the Senatorial contingent were Chiyo Thomas, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Elbert D. Thomas of Utah; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chase—she was before her marriage, Jane Holt, sister of the former Senator from West Virginia, Rush Holt; Mr. and Mrs. David Lynn—she was Barbara Burke, daughter of the former Senator from Nebraska and Mrs. Edward R. Burke, Cornelia Langer and Joan Lundeen.

Hoe-Down Square Dance Planned in Near Future

Others at the party were Mrs. Ann P. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Don Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alexander, Mimi Norton, Ruth Ellen Lonergan, Betty Shuey, Izetta Jewell, jr., who has been emulating her well-known actress mother this summer at the Cross Roads Theater and will soon be off for New York to look for fall roles, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bierman, William Young, Bart Hewitt, Don Gardiner, Leo Brady, Reginald Allen, Hobart Walker, Bernie Harrison and John Gaunt.

So successful was the informal dancing yesterday afternoon, that Padget is planning a hoe-down square dance in the near future.

Another of yesterday's young set parties was the bridge-luncheon given by Mrs. Frank Weller—nee Amelita Alfaro—for her sister, Yolanda Alfaro. The daughter of the former Panamanian envoy to the United States and Mrs. Ricardo will marry Ensign Henry Cabell Maddux, jr., Friday. Ensign Maddux has been at sea until recently. He is now stationed at the Washington Navy Yard.

Miss Patricia Herbert Gives Luncheon Today

Among these at the party yesterday which took place in Mrs. Weller's home in Kensington, were Mrs. W. A. Burton, Mrs. Victor Alfaro, Mrs. Clark Worthington, Mrs. John L. Hamilton, Billie Byrd West, Doris Beckwith, Bubby Harris, Patricia Prochnik, Margaret Gordon and Peter and Marion Norris.

Today, Patricia Herbst, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William P. Herbst, will entertain informally at luncheon at her parents' home on Foxhall Road.

Another party on yesterday's calendar was the bridge-luncheon given for Mrs. Tomas Cajigas by Mrs. Felipe Rotalde in her apartment at 2311 Connecticut Avenue. At the two tables were Mrs. Warren Andrews, Mrs. W. B. Perraceli, Mrs. James B. Akers, Mrs. Charles L. Shah, Mrs. Marion Nailor Bailey and Mrs. Laurence Clayton.

Dr. and Mrs. Cajigas will leave for a fortnight's sojourn in Atlantic City toward the end of the week. They will join their children, Anita, Tommy and Paul, at the cottage they have taken there. The children of the family are scheduled to leave for the beach resort today or tomorrow.

Horse Show Parties Slated

A number of dinner parties will be held Saturday evening before the dance at the Blue Parrot to be given in connection with the opening of the Warrenton Horse Show. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thornton Greene will be hosts at a dinner party as will Mrs. E. Douglas Prime who will be hostess at her home, Eastwood. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McGrath also will entertain at dinner.

Preceding the dance Mr. and Mrs. Melville Bearns, jr., will be hosts to a group. Miss Dorothy Neyhart, who is in charge of arrangements for the dance, will entertain a group of her friends at dinner beforehand. Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hamilton will entertain at Dunnottar, their home, and Mr. and Mrs. Melville Church 2d, will have a party at their home, Northcliffe, near Rixeyville, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, of Clovelly, Warrenton, will start the ball rolling for Horse Show week Saturday when they entertain at luncheon for the judges, officials and a number of well-known exhibitors who are coming out from town. J. North Fletcher, president of the Warrenton Horse Show Association, will entertain for the same group at Crestone at a tea following the show on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Frances Thomas and Mrs. James C. Hamilton will join forces and entertain at the Thomas home, North Rock, on Monday for luncheon in honor of the officials, judges and out-of-town exhibitors.

Officers of the Horse Show Association and the entertainment committee, the latter composed of Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, Miss Jane Wilbur, Mrs. Melville Church 2d, Miss Dorothy Neyhart, J. North Fletcher, Mrs. Randolph G. Duffey, Miss Lucie B. Duer, Mrs. Francis T. Greene, Mrs. E. Douglas Prime, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Black, Mrs. Melville Bearns, jr., and Mrs. Frances Thomas, will bring the horse show weekend to a delightful close Monday afternoon following the awarding of the tricolored rosettes—closing events of the show—with a cocktail party for out-of-town exhibitors, judges and officials at the Wimmills' Clovelly Farm, on Spring Road.

Will Return Shortly

Mrs. Foster Wed in West

Judge and Mrs. Ewin L. Davis, of this city, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Margaret Davis Foster, to George Krementz Taylor, of New York, on August 22, in Santa Fe, N. Mex.

Mrs. Taylor is a member of the Junior League of Washington. She is a graduate of the Maderia School and attended George Washington University and Cornell University. During the past year she took a special post-graduate course at Catholic University and in furtherance of that course has recently engaged in research work under the auspices of the University of New Mexico. Upon completion of this work, she was joined by Mr. Taylor and they were married at Santa Fe.

Mrs. Taylor's father was formerly circuit judge and a Representative in Congress, and for the past eight years has been a member of the Federal Trade Commission, having served two terms as chairman.

Mr. Taylor is a graduate of Princeton University, is a member of the Manhattan Club and is engaged in the textile business. He is a son of the late Charles Irvin Taylor and Mrs. Taylor who resides at East Orange, N. J.

After a wedding trip in the West, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will reside in New York.

Lois Sperry Plights Troth

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Lois Sperry, daughter of Dr. Frederick N. Sperry of New Haven, Conn., to Ensign John Maynadier Murray, United States Naval Reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Spencer Murray of New York and Catskill, N. Y.

Miss Sperry graduated from Mrs. Day's School in New Haven, was in the Class of 1932 at Vassar and later attended the Yale School of Music. She is a niece of A. William Sperry of Danbury, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. William J. Lum of Wallingford, Conn, and Mrs. Corydon C. Tyler of Chestnut Hill, Pa.

Mr. Murray prepared at Phillips Academy, Andover, and was graduated from Yale in the Class of 1933, where he was a member of Zeta Psi, and later did post-graduate work at the University of Munich. He has been until recently associated with the Recordgraph Corporation of New York. He is descended on his father's side from Dr. James D. Murray of Annapolis, Md., and on his mother's from Dr. Benjamin Rush of Philadelphia and is a nephew of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Joseph P. McComas of New York.

The wedding will take place soon.

Miss Tobey, Mr. Munson Are Married

Dr. and Mrs. Edward TenEyck Munson are on their wedding trip through the White Mountains and upon their return will live at 164 Genesee Park Boulevard, Rochester, N. Y. The wedding of the former Miss Francelia Tobey, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Charles W. Tobey, took place Monday afternoon at their ancestral home built in 1789 in Temple, N. H. Dr. Munson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Van Voorhis Munson of Rochester, N. Y.

Bishop George W. Davenport of Maryland officiated at the ceremony. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of old ivory silk muslin, Gibson girl style, made with a high lace collar and V shaped neckline. Her ivory tulle veil was caught with small garden flowers and she carried a bouquet of white sweet peas and gypsophila.

Miss Louise Tobey, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore one of her mothers trousseau gowns in candy-stick stripes in pink on a white background with black velvet ribbon run through the lace on the bodice. It was fashioned with a many tucked full skirt ending in a slight train. She carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas. The ringbearer, Stephen Tobey, was dressed in all white. John Munson, of Grand Rapids, Mich., served as best man for his brother.

A reception followed on the lawn of the lovely estate under several elms. Vases of wild flowers marked off the aisle for the bridal procession. Mrs. Tobey wore a blue flowered chiffon frock with a matching hat and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Mrs. Munson wore a beige crepe ensemble and sweetheart roses.

The bride attended Manchester, N. H., high school, the University of New Hampshire, the Peter Bent Brigham School of Nursing and Hesser Business College. Dr. Munson was graduated from the University of Rochester and the University of Rochester Medical School.

Mushinsky-Epstein Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Mushinsky announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy, to Morris Herman Epstein, in Baltimore, on August 4. The couple are now residing at 310 Hamilton Street Northwest.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

The "Spinsters Dance," the past weekend at Goose Creek Tavern, was enjoyed by a huge crowd of young people and turned out to be one of the most gala parties of the summer. The girls and boys came in Saidie Hawkins and Li'l Abner attire, as they were asked to and it would have been hard to have picked out the prettiest girl in "Dog Patch." So many lovely Daisy Maes arrived from all parts of the country. The costumes were scant but ideal for a warm night and the informal occasion was intriguing to watch. From 10 to 2:30 o'clock they danced to the strains of the George Washington Hotel orchestra and the time passed all too quickly.

Among the guests from a distance were the Misses Natalie Sutherland, Patricia Ord, Patricia Prochnik, Billy Byrd West, Isabel Badger, Martha Bell Moore, Lititia Knox, Mary Gruman, the three Norris sisters, "Peter," Mary Theresa and Laira May; Yolanda Alfaro and her fiance, Cabell Maddux, who are to be married this week; Jack Segar, who brought as his guest the Archduke Felix of Austria; Edgar Prochnik, jr., Tinsley Adams, Albert Berry, Jack Regan, Meade Patrick, Thad Brown, jr., Judson W. Bowles, Jack Nevius, Gene Barnes, Jimmy Ord, Hal Crowell, Lieut. Wingate Clary Holt, and others all from Washington; Miss Landon Mason Burke, Miss Helen Henry, Dick Moncure, Columbus Beverley, Gordon Rust and Charles Barrett, of Alexandria; Miss Clarissa Macy, of New York; Miss Patsy Duncan, of Duncannon, Pa., who is visiting Miss Courtney Seigl; Miss Julia Ravenel, of Charleston, S. C., who is the house guest of Miss Lelia Turner at the Plains; Miss Betty Honocon, Miss Betty McConnell, of Middleburg; Claude Hobbs, of Washington and Lee University, now with the State Department in Washington; Johnny Rhodes, of Winchester; Richard Tayloe, Colin Montgomery and Malbon Wood, of Baltimore; Sam Marshall, jr., of V. M. I.; Rhey Adams, Stirling Harrison, Alan Seigle, Buddy di Zeraga and many more.

HORACE MOFFETT of Marshall, Va. known as one of the best all round horsemen in Virginia, will hold a "Complete Dispersal Sale" of his hunter stable on Friday, August 29th,—the day before the Warrenton Horse Show, at 2:00 p.m.—rain or shine—at the Marshall Fair Grounds, Marshall, Va.

This sale will be of great interest to all horsemen and anyone wanting a good hunter for the coming foxhunting season, for Mr. Moffet will put up for sale 32 horses from his stable. Mr. Moffet is noted for the fine hunters he makes and sends out as hunters, point to point, steeplechase and racing prospects and no one knows the horse and hunting game better than he does.

The horses to be sold on Friday have been slowly and carefully schooled as pleasant hacks and dependable hunters. They are horses that have not changed hands and whose schooling has been done thoroughly, quietly and systematically. Mr. Moffet is a member of Orange County and Piedmont Hunts and two years ago he started a new pack for Raymond Guest over in Clarke County which is proving a great success. It is certain that this sale of fine horses will bring out a large crowd for everyone knows that the best are to be sold that day. The horses can be inspected and tried at Mr. Moffet's farm until the day before the sale, after which horses may be seen but not tried at Marshall Fair Grounds.

Mrs. Dorsey Arrives For Visit in Newport

Mrs. Benjamin Dorsey, wife of Rear Admiral Dorsey, has arrived in Newport, R. I., to visit Mrs. Reginald Hutton at Shamrock Cliffs. She will return in about ten days.

Mrs. Dorsey spent sometime in Connecticut on a motor trip.

New Jersey Society To Meet This Evening

A meeting for the reorganization of the New Jersey State Society will be held this evening at 8, in the Garden Room of the Wardman Park Hotel. New Jersey citizens living in Washington, Virginia and Maryland, are invited to attend.

The charter members of the society will be present. Vincent Walsh will preside, assisted by Robert Thomas.

Janet Cunneen Becomes Bride Of Lieut. Hahn

St. Matthew's Cathedral was the scene of the wedding of Miss Janet Padlen Cunneen yesterday at 12:45 p. m. to Lieut. Harry Barrett Hahn. Two standards of flowers intermingled with ferns adorned the church for the ceremony, at which the Rev. J. Gerard Cole officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank James Cunneen, of this city. Lieut. Hahn is the son of Harry Hahn, of New York.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Spode blue crepe frock with a cluster of white orchids. Her maid of honor and only attendant was Miss Anne W. Cunneen, her sister, who wore a plum crepe ensemble with a cluster of green orchids. Lieut. Roy H. Burgess served as best man.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Cunneen wore a purple crepe frock and a corsage of gardenias. The fireplace was banked with ferns and a large bouquet of white flowers.

The bride attended Western High School and Smith College. She was selected as color girl at the Naval Academy in '37. Lieut. Hahn attended St. John's Prep and was graduated from the Naval Academy.

When the couple left on their wedding trip to Seattle, Wash., the bride wore a tomato red wool suit trimmed with mink tails and matching accessories. They will make their home in Hawaii. Among the out-of-town guests at the ceremony were James F. Howley, of New York; Mr. Hahn, father of the bridegroom; Miss Mary Virginia Hahn, of New York; Miss Barbara Signor, of Albion, N. Y., and Mrs. Eugene Wilson of Forest Hills, N. Y.

Funeral Today For F. D. Strader, Revenue Official

Funeral services for Frank D. Strader, 61, assistant general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the C. J. Ives funeral chapel, Clarendon, Va.

Mr. Strader died Monday at his home, 1508 North Garfield Street, Arlington, Va.

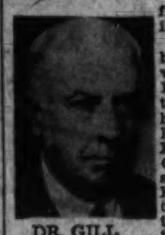
Former auditor of the Wisconsin State Tax Commissions, he came to Washington 13 years ago and joined the Internal Revenue Bureau. He took a correspondence school law course at the age of 46, passed the Virginia bar examinations and rose to the high legal post in the bureau which he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Strader was born in Augusta, Wis. He lived in Arlington for the last 14 years.

He was a member of the District of Columbia, Virginia and American Bar Association and of the National Press Club.

Dr. W. T. Gill's Funeral Set For Tomorrow

Dr. William Tignor Gill, 76, one of Washington's pioneer medical men, died yesterday in his home 3200 Thirty-ninth Street Northwest, following a brief illness.



DR. GILL

Dr. Gill was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1865 and came to this city with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Gill, at the age of 1½ years. His death brought an end to 55 years of active medical practice in the District.

He attended the elementary schools of Washington and in 1887 was graduated from the school of medicine of Columbian College, now George Washington University. For some time he did post-graduate work and served as intern here at Children's and Emergency Hospitals and later at Bellevue Hospital in New York City.

The physician was a member of the Washington Society of Fine Arts, American Art and Archeological Association, American Medical Association, District Medical Association, George Washington Medical society, a patron of the Central Union Mission. He also belonged to other local civic organizations.

Art, especially painting, was Dr. Gill's chief avocation and he was regarded as a connoisseur in this field. In later years he also took an active interest in photography. During his extensive travels in Europe, Alaska, Canada, Central America and the United States he amassed an extensive collection of motion picture films.

He leaves his wife, Antoinette F. Gill, two sons, Dr. William T. Gill, jr., Richard C. Gill, and one sister, Miss Emma B. Gill, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. from his residence. The Rev. Dr. George S. Duncan of American University will officiate and burial will be in the family lot in Rock Creek Park Cemetery.

Cuban Consul Hurt

Mrs. Morgan, 76, Clubwoman, Dies In Chevy Chase

Mrs. Mary Abell Morgan, 76, civic worker and clubwoman, died yesterday morning at her home, Dudlea, in Chevy Chase, Md. Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, and interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

The granddaughter of A. S. Abell, founder of the Baltimore Sun, Mrs. Morgan was born in Baltimore County, Md. She married the late Dr. James Dudley Morgan, of Washington, in 1891. She was a former vice president of the Christ Child Society, and was an active member and early sponsor of the Community Chest. She also belonged to the Chevy Chase Club, Colonial Dames of America, Audubon Society, Garden Club of Chevy Chase, and the Columbia Historical Society.

She leaves three sons, Edwin F. A. Morgan, of Baltimore; William D. D. Morgan, of Tulsa, Okla., and Charles C. Morgan, of Washington; one daughter, Mrs. Bertram Long, of Berkshire, England, and three grandsons and two granddaughters.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Brown

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, widow of Joshua H. Brown, will be held today at 10 a. m. in the W. W. Deal Funeral Home, 4312 Georgia avenue northwest. Mrs. Brown died Monday at the home of her son, Bailey E. Brown, 1207 Delafield place northwest.

Mrs. Brown was born in Cookeville, Tenn., April 14, 1856, and came to Washington in 1914. She formerly lived at 1324 Massachusetts avenue northwest. She was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Besides her son, Mrs. Brown is survived by a sister, Mrs. T. Yeargin, of Cookeville, a granddaughter and several nephews and nieces. Bailey Brown is senior biochemist in the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture. The burial will be Friday in Cookeville.

Dr. De Einedo Returns From U. S. Tour

Contract Bridge

When Mrs. Olive Peterson, one of the officers of the American Contract Bridge League, held the North cards of today's hand, she was able to win her four-spade contract. How would you play to take ten tricks after the defense cashes three rounds of diamonds and switches to a trump?

Today's Hand

SOUTH DEALER

	♠ K Q J 10 8 6 ♡ J 5 ◇ 6 5 2 ♣ 5 2
♠ 7 4 3 ♡ K 10 9 ◇ A K Q ♣ Q J 8 4	WEST / NORTH / EAST / SOUTH	♠ 2 ♡ 8 7 6 4 ◇ J 10 9 7 ♣ 9 8 7 3
	♠ A 9 5 ♡ A Q 3 2 ◇ 8 4 2 ♣ A K 10

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Dble	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: J ◇.

The Answer

Declarer made her four-spade contract by squeezing West, using the Vienna coup technique.

North won the fourth lead in dummy with the ace of trumps. She saw that the heart finesse would probably lose as West had made a takeout double during the bidding; so, one trick shy of her contract, she decided to try for a squeeze on West in high clubs and the heart king.

Declarer cashed the heart ace (the Vienna coupe as it set up the adverse king) and then ran her five remaining trumps. On the last spade lead West was squeezed; he had to discard the heart king, allowing declarer's jack to take a trick in addition to dummy's ace, king of clubs; or throw away his last guard to the club queen, jack, letting Mrs. Peterson cash all three clubs, ace, king and ten.

North made four spades, losing only three diamonds.

Weather Conditions

U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Weather Bureau. Tuesday, August 26, 1941—7:30 P. M.

Forecasts

For the District of Columbia—Cloudy, with occasional showers Wednesday morning followed by clearing and cooler Wednesday afternoon; cooler Wednesday night; Thursday generally fair and continued cool; moderate northwest winds.

For Maryland—Cloudy with occasional showers followed by clearing in north portion Wednesday afternoon and in south portion Wednesday night; much cooler Wednesday afternoon and night; Thursday generally fair, continued cool.

For Virginia—Cloudy and cooler with showers and local thunderstorms in the south portion and occasional showers ending in north portion Wednesday; cooler in north portion Wednesday; Thursday generally fair, cooler in south portion.

Weather Conditions for Last 24 Hours

A trough of relatively low pressure is moving rapidly eastward over the North and Middle Atlantic States, 29.59 inches, over Maine, and extends westward over the lower Ohio Valley to a weak disturbance in Oklahoma. Numerous showers and thunderstorms have attended movement of this low pressure system with the heaviest rainfall continued generally to the region from Missouri eastward over the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic States. Some local thundershowers occurred within the warm, moist air mass which persists over the Southern States, and there have been showers also in the northern Rocky Mountain region, the Pacific Northwest and portions of the Northern Plains States. An extensive mass of much cooler air had spread southward over the Plains States and upper Mississippi Valley during the past 24 hours and was advancing eastward into the Middle and North Atlantic States in the Ohio Valley. The temperatures are much below normal and this cool air mass, and the highest pressures are found over North Dakota and Minnesota, 30.20 inches.

OPM Employes to Get Warning Against Gifts

OPM employes will be warned in an official memo not to accept gifts from businessmen. Legally an employe has the privilege to accept a gift, but from now on it will be OPM's policy for its employes to refuse all offerings from men looking for favors. Gossip has been heard in OPM's corridors for weeks that certain secretaries in the potent Priorities Division had been given everything from perfume to watches. An assistant director of the division was assigned to look into the reports and apparently he uncovered enough to warrant official recognition of the rumors.

It's generally believed that about all the businessmen got for their money was smiles from the secretaries. As one OPM official put it: "In this place businessmen are sent from one person to another and they are never quite certain if they are talking to the right person. If some secretary is pleasant and tries to help a businessman he'll probably be so grateful that he'll send her a present. That's a common practice in private business and nothing is thought of it."

His statement is probably quite correct but when that happens in Government everyone gets suspicious.

Interior Secretary Ickes is reported to have taken supervision of the Division of Territories away from Assistant Secretary Oscar Chapman and to have given it to Undersecretary Jack Dempsey. Chapman now has more time on his hands . . . Civil Service reports that the junior typist exams produced 14,885 eligibles. Appointing officers report the quality of typists has gone down greatly in the past year. Instead of getting college graduates, 16-year-old high school students are now being certified for jobs.

Corcoran Seeks Post

Tommy Corcoran, the former brain-truster who has turned lawyer-lobbyist, is reported to be putting up a hot fight to become solicitor general. It's rumored that Corcoran won't get the job because he can't get clearance from the Democratic National Committee. The committee, it seems, hasn't forgiven Corcoran for trying to displace it by running the political show several years ago from his RFC office. Charles Fahy, one of the best lawyers in the Government, has the inside track for the job.

Robert Barnett, Federal Security personnel director, has been loaned to OPM's Labor Supply Division to set up the administrative office . . . How's this for popularity: Inez Olsen, a secretary in Commerce's Business Analysis Division, has been critically ill and her office and the hospital received so many calls from her friends that now periodic progress reports are posted in the Commerce Building. A call went out for blood donors for Miss Olsen and so many volunteers turned up at Doctors Hospital that the hospital had to ask would-be donors to please stay away.

207 Gas Pumps Condemned in D.C. In One Year

A total of 207 gasoline pumps were condemned in the District during the fiscal year ended last June, according to the annual report of the Department of Weights, Measures and Markets. Exactly 6855 gasoline pumps were examined.

The report says that 1009 types of scales, weights, measures and pumps were condemned, and that 80 violators were arrested and fines and forfeitures amounted to $5282. The total revenue for markets amounted to $47,553.25, with a net revenue above all expenses of $22,317.34. This is $4717.17 over the preceding fiscal year.

The report also says that 6,432,163 types of instruments and bottles were inspected. Of this number, 6,344,896 were milk bottles. None of the bottles was condemned.

U. S. A. Needs Marlene

The Government wants to use Marlene Dietrich's legs. Robert W. Horton, OPM publicity chief, said that something has to be done to popularize substitutes for silk stockings.

"We are engaged in correspondence on that subject with Marlene Dietrich," he said yesterday. "We could use her legs."

President Donates Pay

President Roosevelt has turned over to the Red Cross $5.94 he got as an apprentice copyreader. Last week the President suggested a headline for a story he had given the reporters. It was: "President quotes Lincoln and draws parallel." The New York Mirror used it and sent him a check for a day's pay as an apprentice copyreader.

Ballets Russes Delight Throng Despite Rainfall

Fortune Gallo presents the Original Ballets Russes on Tuesd. y night at the Potomac Watergate. Conductor: Alexander Smallens. Program: Aurora's Wedding (music by Chaikovski), The Eternal Struggle (music by Schumann), Graduation Ball (music by Johann Strauss).

By Ray C. B. Brown

Although spattered by the fringe of a thunderstorm sweeping down the Virginia valleys, several thousand spectors remained in their places last evening at the Potomac Watergate, and the Original Ballets Russes completed the program by speeding up and curtailing "Graduation Ball" before the rain came. The first light shower fell considerably enough just at the closing curtin of 'Aurora's Weddin," there was a surcease during "The Eternal Struggle" and a slowly increasing sprinkle continued during the final ballet. The credit for continuing the performance goes not so much to the dancers, who were under cover, as to the musicians, who were unprotected in their barge.

BROWN

"Aurora's Wedding," one of the most pictorial spectacles in the company's repertoire, is all that remains these days of the Petipa-Chaikovski three-act ballet, "The Sleeping Beauty," Really a divertissement on a large scale, it has no other story than the sequences of dances at the marriage feast of Princess Aurora and Prince Charming, and these dances are a delight both to 'the connoisseur of technique and the layman. From the opening polonaise, executed in the authentic style, to the closing mazurka, every detail of the ballet is the perfection of tradition.

Tatyana Ryabushinska and Roman Zhasinski received a merited ovation for their beautiful presentation of "The Blue Bird" pas de deux, as did Nana Gollner and Pavel Petrov in their duo of the prince and princess. Salvos of amused applause greeted the interpolated episodes from the "Nutcracker" suite—the porcelain princesses, danced by Razumova, Popova and Algeranov; and the three Ivans, danced by Lazovski, Ledre and Matushak.

Igor Shvezov's choreographic treatment of Schumann's "Etudes Symphoniques" under the title of "The Eternal Struggle" proved to be a consistent and interesting deduction from the moods of the music. The choreographer was also the principal dancer in this symbolic expression of the temptations, illusions and obsessions through which man makes his way to a comprehension of spiritual integrity.

David Lishin's delightful "Graduation Ball" is virtually a danced operetta with cleverly cemented pieces of less familar music by Johann Strauss. As far as the structure is concerned, it is no different from any stock item about cadets enjoying a ball in a girls' school, but the spirit of the performance is remarkable in infectious humor. The old ballet comedy has been subjected to a revision which turns marionette mechanics into a living scene. The movements are those that real people would make under actual stimulation of circumstance, and the dances have the zestful exuberance of adolescence.

Surplus Milk Unit Replies To D. C. Pleas

Letters Sent Ballou And Van Hyning; 'Penny-a-Half-Pint' Plan Involved

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Several thousand needy families of Washington who are hopefully awaiting favorable action by the Agriculture Department on appeals for more low-cost milk may learn today whether they have won or lost.

The outcome will be known when the contents of two letters, mailed yesterday by the dairy division of Agriculture's Surplus Marketing Administration, is revealed. This is the unit that administers the Federally-subsidized surplus milk programs throughout the country.

One of the letters is addressed to Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, repling to his application for establishment of a "penny-a-half-pint" project for needy, undernourished children.

The other is to Conrad Van Hyning, acting director of public welfare, who more than two months ago appealed to SMA to liberalize its five-cents-a-quart program so as to cover more indigent families.

More Data Believed Sought

It is believed that the Agriculture Department has demanded more information of Dr. Ballou before it will approve a penny project, which would provide free milk to thousands of school children now going without. The reply to Van Hyning is believed to be even less encouraging.

Due to poor distribution, denial of the low-priced bottles to deserving, needy families on private charity and other factors, only a little more than 3,000 nickel quarts are being sold here daily. When the project was introduced last September, it was expected that daily sales would average 12,000.

Writing of the letters to Dr. Ballou and Van Hyning coincided with approval by the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association of the price increase authorized Monday by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard. This means the boost is "in," since the association represents 1117 of the 1357 dairy farmers in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania who are affected.

Up to President

The Federal milk marketing order provides that amendments, to become effective, must be approved by two-thirds of the producers. Even if the necessary 50 per cent of dairy handlers, by volume of gallonage, do not ratify the increase, the changes could still be made if President Roosevelt approves. Otherwise, only the Agriculture Secretary's signature is sufficient.

Hence the price increase can now be prevented only if the White House disapproves. This is not considered probable, although Price Administrator Leon Henderson and Miss Harriet Elliott, his assistant in charge of the consumer division, have held the boost to be unjustified.

The amended marketing order, as approved by Wickard, would mean a revenue increase of one million dollars annually to producers in this milkshed, on the present basis of consumption and utilization. It calls for a 40-cent increase on fluid milk and 20 cents on cream, sending the prices to $3.57 and $2.20 per hundredweight, respectively.

Although dairies have not yet announced their position, a 1-cent-a-quart increase in the retail price of milk is virtually certain, while cream is expected to go up at lease 1 cent—and possibly 2—a half pint.

Coroner to Probe Jail Fight Slaying

A coroner's jury today will investigate the death of Charles Dixon, 64, Negro, of 1004 Sixth Street Northwest, who died in Casuality Hospital early yesterday of injuries received in a fight in a cell at the Twelfth Precinct.

Dixon was found unconscious in the cellblock, August 10. He had been arrested the same day on a charge of being drunk.

Police are holding "for the coroner" Cornelius McDonald, 27, Negro, of 1340 Corcoran Street Northwest, who was a cellmate of Dixon's. The latter had been arrested for investigation by the District Mental Health Commission. Action by the later group was postponed pending the inquest.

Shake-up In Police Due Today

D. C. Commissioners To Approve Kelly's Suggestions for Personnel Shifts

Commissioner John Russell Young said last night the Board of Commissioners today would approve Police Chief Edward Kelly's recommendations for a drastic personnel shakeup in the Metropolitan Police Department, including promotion of five captains to inspectorships. The shifts were predicted exclusively August 18 in The Post.

At the same time it was learned department reorganization plans call for the retirement of five other precinct commanders.

Approval of the promotions and retirement recommendations, which amount to the greatest personnel reorganization in police history here, had been held up pending completion of a police investigation by Assistant Engineer Commissioner Beverly C. Snow.

Deals With Policy

The Snow report, however, will deal with policy rather than police personnel, Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, said, and will not bear on Kelly's recommendations.

Slated for promotion to inspectorships are Capt. Richard Mansfield, of Ninth Precinct, who will become chief of detectives; Capt. Harvey G. Callahan, First Precinct; Clarence Talley, Seventh Precinct; John H. Fowler, Thirteenth Precinct, and Milton D. Smith, Traffic Division.

Acting Capt. Ira E. Keck will leave his post as acting detective chief to take command of a precinct, with the rank of full captain, it was reported.

The openings were for the new inspectors created by the retirement of Inspectors William E. Holmes, William G. Stott, Lewis I. H. Edwards and Bernard W. Thompson, and by Inspector Kelly's promotion to superintendent.

Precinct captains who would be retired with establishment of a 60-years maximum age limit are Capts. Jeremiah Sullivan, Second Precinct; Sidney Marks, Fourth Precinct; Joseph Morgan, Fifth Precinct; Joseph Pierson, Sixth Precinct, and Hugh Groves, Eleventh Precinct.

Navy Calls Truscott

Capt. Floyd Truscott, who now commands Tenth Precinct, has been called to active duty in the Office of Naval Intelligence, Navy Department.

Capt. Callahan, who is slated for appointment as department personnel officer, will not be raised to the rank of assistant superintendent, as was Edwards, his predecessor, it is believed.

Maj. Kelly prefers to keep assistant superintendents on active duty outside the department rather than at administrative desk jobs, it was said.

Eligible for promotion from lieutenant to captain are Lieuts. Clarence Lutz, Emil Desch, Walter Thomas, Robert Pearce, and Archie Winfree. The promotions will bring further advances for sergeants to lieutenancies and for privates to sergeancies.

94 Degree Heat Fells 2; Relief Promised Today

Heat that drove the mercury above the 90-degree mark for the first time since August 9 prostrated two Washington men yesterday but the District is due for cooler weather today.

Frank Wingfield, 30, Negro, of 2731 Sherman Avenue Northwest, a District Highway Department worker, collapsed while at work in the 1600 block of Fairlawn Avenue Southeast. He was admitted to Casualty Hospital.

Sedley Randolph, 57, Negro, 2729 Rock Court Northwest, was treated for heat exhaustion at Georgetown University Hospital and later sent home.

Yesterday's peak temperature was 94 degrees in midafternoon. The low was 74 in early morning.

Showers that drenched Washington last night will be followed by rain again this morning. This afternoon will be cooler with a high of 84 degrees and the weather will continue cool through Friday. Skies will be clear through Saturday.

Daylight Time Opponents Still Gain in Poll

Led by the comment of one voter that "I am opposed to anything that gets me up early in the morning," the opponents of daylight saving time for the District yesterday stretched their lead over those favoring the measure by 553 to 379.

In yesterday's tally, opponents of daylight saving—more vociferous in comment than those in favor of it—polled 195 votes, while the affirmative answers were 120.

One opponent wound up his typewriter and let fly with: "Another crazy idea of this Administration. Of course, officials do not object, as they come and go when they get ready and no record is made of their time."

Are you in favor of daylight saving time for the District?

YES [ ]

NO [ ]

Comment .....

Less eloquent was a pencil-scrawled: "Nuts!"

Many voters are writing long comments which would run to half a column of newsprint.

One die-hard backer of standard time declared: "Daylight saving time will help no one but flappers, and if you work eight hours in an office or store or shop or at home you need the electric light, because not every room faces the sun."

The comments of the advocates of daylight saving time are in general less heated.

Typical is one which reads: "Daylight saving time is essential for the conserving of electrical power. If other sections of the Nation have adopted it to save this power, we should also. Those who oppose daylight saving oppose it for purely selfish reasons."

Marshal Sued; Man Charges He Was Beaten

Damages totaling $60,000 were asked in a suit filed in the District Court yesterday against United States Marshal John B. Colpoys for alleged wrongful acts of three deputy marshals.

John J. Foreman, a Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation employe, claimed the deputies unlawfully broke into his home at 1123 Owen Street Northeast at 2:30 a. m. January 15, 1940. The deputies were trying to serve a civil process on Harry B. McLaughlin, Foreman's brother-in-law, who lived there.

Foreman's complaint said the deputies hit him wth a blackjack and locked hm up without a warrant on a charge of interfering with a Federal officer. He said he later was acquitted of the charge by a jury before Police Judge John P. McMahon. Foreman asked $40,000 damages of Colpoys and his official surety, the National Surety Corporation, New York.

Foreman's wife, Agnes, and stepdaughter, Dorothy Hart, asserted that they were shoved around by the deputies and threatened with arrest. They asked $10,000 each.

The deputies alleged to be involved were Gordon B. Greene, Charles H. Ward, jr., and Alex P. Hare. Colpoys and the deputies could not be reached for comment last night.

D. C. Woman, Daughter, 5, Die in Crash

Her 2 Other Girls Seriously Injured As Autos Collide In Pennsylvania

Mrs. Mary Bismark, 33, of 3735 Camden Street Southeast, and her 5-year-old daughter, Joan, were killed yesterday when her automobile skidded out of control on the new superhighway near Somerset, Pa., and crashed into a car in the opposite lane of traffic.

Mrs. Bismark's two other daughters, Anita, 14, and Mary Jane, 16, were reported in critical condition in the Somerset Community Hospital. Robert E. Wilt, 46, service station operator of Altoona, and his wife were also injured but not seriously, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Highway police said that Mrs. Bismark had just passed a truck when she lost control of the car and skidded across the centerpiece of the road, crashing into Wilt's oncoming car.

Coroner F. E. Sass said that Wilt told him he was traveling east at about 50 or 55 miles an hour when: "I saw this other car careen across the 6-foot dirt strip separating the lanes. I swerved to the right and put on my brakes, but before I could stop I was hit."

Mrs. Bismark had left Washington at 11 a. m. yesterday to visit her parents in Milwaukee, Wis.

The daughter died en route to the hospital, and Mrs. Bismark, soon after reaching it.

Paralysis Cases Set D. C. Record

An all-time record for infantile paralysis for August in Washington was reached yesterday. Two new cases were reported to the District Health Department, bringing the total for this month to 20, and 25 for the year.

The next highest rate for August was in 1935 when 19 cases were reported. Last year no new cases were reported for the month.

Health Department authorities say there is no reason for alarm from the cases reported in this area.

Two Glaring Errors Help Cardinals Take Nightcap and Ruin A Pitchers' Battle

By Bob Considine

New York, Aug. 26.—Before a near-record week-day throng of 39,107 fans, the Brooklyn Dodgers split a double-header with the St. Louis Cardinals this afternoon, winning the first, 8 to 3, and dropping the second, 3 to 1. As a result, the Dodgers maintained their game and one-half lead over the Cards in the thrilling National League pennant race.

Darkness and a threatened storm suddenly descended upon the nightcap, forcing the umpires to call the game while the Cardinals were at bat in the ninth.

Two glaring errors by Shortstop Peewee Reese in the second game enabled St. Louis to get going for their big three-run inning and ruined a brilliant pitching duel between 40-year-old Freddie Fitzsimmons and Morton Cooper. When the inning was over Fitz was taken out for a pinch hitter and Lefty French finished for the Dodgers.

A Flock of Goose Eggs

Fitz and Cooper had gone along for six innings hanging goose eggs on the scoreboard. But Crespi, first St. Louis batter up in the seventh, grounded toward Reese. The ball went through Pee-Wee's legs and Crespi wound up at second. Marion hit sharply toward Reese and this time Pee-Wee pegged low to Camilli and the runner was safe. Crespi taking third.

Crespi scored on M. Cooper's long fly to leeft. Brown singled. Hopp doubled, scoring Marion and Brown, but was out trying to stretch his hit into a triple. Fitz threw out Padgett, ending the disastrous inning for the Dodgers.

Brooklyn's only run in the nightcap came in the eighth when Camilli smashed a ball over the right-field fence for his twenty-seventh homer of the season. He also hit a home run in the first game.

Cooper was superb in the pinches. The Dodgers threatened in the fourth inning when, with one down, Riggs and Camilli both singled. Short and Fitzsimmons grounded out, ending the threat.

Four Cards Belted

As for the first game, it wasn't the heat that bothered the Cards. It was the humility of seeing the Dodgers enthusiastically belt the offerings of four St. Louis pitchers.

The Dodgers operated first on Max Lanier and jumped to a 2-to-0 lead in the first inning on two-base wallops by Herman and Medwick and the fine single of Augie Galan, who officially became a Dodger today after refusing to be sent to Los Angeles by his former bosses, the Cubs. Lanier was in trouble in the second, too, but retired the Dodgers with the bases filled.

In the third, Reese singled home Medwick, to put the Dodgers in front, 3 to 0. That was enough for Lanier. Clyde Shoun took his place in the fourth and was humbled immediately when Curt Davis hit his first pitch for a home run in the left-field stands. Just to make it unanimous, Herman trippled off Shoun in the same inning and scored on Lavagetto's fly.

Camilli Clouts Homer

Shoun was prodded shower-ward in the fifth by Camilli's twenty-sixth home run, with a man on base. His successor, Harry Gumbert was treated rudely, and the final Dodger run was punched out of Bill Crouch, mostly by Lavagetto's double. In the meantime old man Curt Davis was doing all right. Padgett and Mize had his number—Padgett getting two doubles and a single and Mize a single, a double and his fourteenth home run. These six knocks accounted for three Cardinal runs. Crespi's fruitless single in the seventh was the only other hit Davis allowed.

Bogart, Greiner Also Gain Match Play Round; Course Proves Difficult

By Bill Boni

Associated Press Sports Writer

Omaha, Aug. 26.—The fearsome, bogey-filled creation which is the back nine of the Omaha Field Club doused cold water on the medalist hopes of some of the country's finest amateur golfers today, and pitched the medal right into the lap of unsuspecting Stewart (Skip) Alexander.

The 23-year-old 6-footer from Burlington, N. C., five under par in yesterday's first round with a 67 that set a competitive course record, went 10 shots higher today with a 77 for 144. When he finished his round, after taking a seven on the par-five seventeenth, he must have been sure he'd kicked away all chance of leading the field.

For there were seven men within six shots of him starting the second half of the 36-hole qualifying test, and all of them still were on the course when Skip checked in.

Burke Had Best Chance

But one by one his rivals frittered away their chances on the back nine's slim fairways and its slick, trick greens. Johnny Burke, who had a 68 yesterday, had the best opportunity of all, until he passed the ninth. In the last nine holes the red-headed former intercollegiate champion went five over par for a 77 of his own and a 145 total that gave him second place.

Ralph Bogart, only entry from Washington, D. C., went out in two-under-par 34 but slipped to 41 on the back nine for a 75. Along with his 83 yesterday, this gave him a 158 total which barely brought him under the qualifying limit.

Today young Ralph faces Walter Burkemo, of Evanston, Ill., in the first round of match play. Burkemo qualified with 156.

THE CARD:

Par out	445	534	434	—36
Bogart out	545	443	224	—34
Par in	443	444	454	—36—72
Bogart in	544	654	454	—41—75—158

Otto Greiner, of Towson, Md., slipped to an 80 after an opening round 72, but made the top flight easily. He faces Earl Christiansen, of Florida, today.

Two of the favorites will meet in today's top match, Medalist Alexander taking on Johnny Fischer, of Cincinnati.

Ellsworth Vines, the former tennis champ; Ted Bishop, New England titleholder and a former professional, and Otto Greiner, recent University of Maryland graduate, were working on opening par 72's. But Bishop could do no better than 38 on the back nine, for 77 and 149; it took Vines 39 blows, for a 78 and 150, and Greiner needed 42 shots to come home for an even 80 and 152.

Billows Gets In

Nor was the Field Club back nine, which for this round took on almost the qualities of a living monster, through with that performance. It threw a 39 at Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash, the 1939 champion and favorite, and he wound up with 75 for 148. It cost Dick Chapman, the defending champion and 1940 medalist, a 41 for 78 and 152.

Ray Billows, finalist twice in four years, could get no better than a 40 for 83 and barely qualified at 158—159 was the limit, and 10 men played for seven places to complete the 64 match play berths.

Among its other principal victims were such stars as Wilford Wehrle, of Chicago, a semifinalist last year,

DIZZY DEAN AT THE MICROPHONE

St. Louis, Aug. 26.—These lines are being written in the St. Louis press box within earshot of Dizzy Dean, owner of the most famous dead arm in baseball. There is nothing still, however, about Dizzy's tongue. He wags it energetically in front of a broadcaster's microphone, and it fetches him $10,000 a year from a radio sponsor. Dean broadcasts the home games of the Browns and Cardinals and is very happy.

POVICH

He sounds happy as he calls 'em as he sees 'em from under the eaves in Sportsman's Park, and it is all very refreshing as Dizzy comments on what is happening down below with a complete lack of restraint and a fortrightness that is native to him. The microphone has no horns for Ole Diz.

He's slightly wonderful when he describes the trend of a ball game. When one of the Browns' pitchers was getting his ears pinned back this afternoon, Dizzy took proper note. For his listening audience, he addressed himself to the St. Louis pitcher, saying "Brother, you can't expect to pitch that-away and keep walking up to the cashier's window for that paycheck every first and fifteenth. The first thing you know, they'll figure you ain't earning it."

Diz doesn't spare anybody when he talks into that mike. With complete attention to detail, he described center fielder Walter Judnich's failure to hang onto a fly ball hit by Doc Cramer and when the umpires ruled that Judnich had not held the ball long enough to constitute a catch, Dizzy spoke his mind. Brother, that's a lousy rule. Some day those baseball people are going to get smart and take it out of the books. I mean that's a lousy rule."

Dizzy Doesn't Miss at Thing, Brother

Nothing escapes Dizzy's comment. A batter gets hit with a pitched ball, and Diz tells 'em how it feels. "Was hit twice myself when I was with the Cardinals, brother. Pretty lucky, though. Wasn't hurt at all. Got hit on the head both times. Guess I'd a-felt it if they hit me on the shins. Brother, that's where it hurts."

For the next three years, Dean will be making more money out of baseball than he did in it during the last three seasons. He will pick up that $10,000 yearly from his radio sponsor, and his weekends will be free. On those week-ends he hops into his car, drives into Iowa or Oklahoma and picks himself up a grand or two pitching three innings of an exhibition game for the country folks.

On the air, he's pretty glib, which is not surprising, because of always a sort of pop-off. He talks with his native Oklahoma nasal, and more than any other broadcaster, he sounds like Walter Johnson, or his fellow Oklahoman, Bob Burns. But he's more fluent than Johnson. Dizzy's never stumped for words. In his folky sort of talk, he's sort of rapid-fire. A sample of Diz at the Mike:

"Well brother, it's two and two on Jake Early, and let's see what does with this next one. The guy's got power, you can see that from up here, the way he muckles onto that bat and stands there with that wide stride. This pitch better have something on it. It's a fast ball, and brother, it's still fast, 'cause it's going out of the park on a bee-line, and it's a home run on top of the right field roof, and I guess Caster wishes he had that pitch back.'

The Cardinals Have Dean's Moral Support

There's nothing nonpartisan or unprejudiced about Diz. He roots for the Cards and Browns when he's before that mike. He gives 'em pep talks that they don't hear, but that makes no difference to Diz. "Better get some runs here 'cause you're running out of innings, brother," Diz was telling the Browns in the eighth today. "C'mon now, rustle up a few runs for us and we'll like you a lot better."

He tells 'ems, too, what's going on around the rest of the league, as he reads the scoreboard with a veteran eye, and he doesn't hide his glee when his old pals, the Cardinals come up with some runs. Dizzy interrupted his broadcast of the Nats-Browns game in the sixth inning today to relate what was happening at Brooklyn where the Cards were playing. "We got 'em down over in Brooklyn, 3-0 at the end of the sixth inning, but I heard just now that Dolf Camillo hit a home run for the Dodgers. Don't get panicky though, 'cause there wasn't anybody on base. Nobody on base a-tall, and we're still leading, 3-1. Brother, that's pretty good with only two more innings to go.'

Dizzy isn't even conscious of the mike, which of course is a help. He's in the game he loves. He has the advantage of being full of his subject. He always knows what he's talking about. He may panic his listeners and call too many spades for the liking of the umpires or the ball players, but he won't be making many mistakes of facts or judgment. "I used to pitch with my haid, brother," Dizzy tells 'em. "And I'm still using this ole haid to get my coffee and cakes."

Boy, What a Wonderful Man!

Pieces of Haight:

San Diego, Calif.

Dear Bbs,

If the Redskins could only locate a certain man there would be nothing to the coming National Professional League race but the pay-off. This guy can pass better than Sammy Baugh. He can run in the broken field better than Dick Todd. He has more driving than Andy Farkas. He is a better end than Wayne Millner. He is a better tackle than Turk Edwards was in his prime. In fact, he is a better coach than Ray Flaherty and has more ideas than Joe Engle.

HAIGHT

He punts 70 yards and always makes the tackle. He throws a pass 80 yards and, often as not, catches the ball himself. He averages 20 yards a try carrying the ball and runs back 50 per cent of the kick-offs to touchdowns.

And he doesn't confine his exploits to football either.

As a pitcher, he has more speed than Walter Johnson in 1913. He has a better curve ball than Bob Feller. He has a better batting average than Ted Williams and has hit more home runs than Babe Ruth.

He is an all-round athlete, too.

He was going to win every event in the Olympics if they had staged them. He taught Sammy Snead how to play golf, and Bill Tilden is still trying to copy his backhand drives. He can swim better than Johnny Weismueller, can swing a polo mallet better than Tommy Hitchcock and he plays basketball as if he invented the game. He can outpunch Joe Louis and outride Eddie Arcaro.

Nor are his accomplishments confined to sports. He knows more about gasoline control than Harold Ickes. He is a better writer than Bernard Shaw. He can outfly Dick Merrill. He can be wrong more than Lindbergh and right more than Roosevelt. He has more money than the Standard Oil Co., and he taught Henry Ford how to make automobiles. He has been married more times than John Barrymore and is funnier than Bob Hope. He can out-sing Bing Crosby and out-act Gary Cooper. He can dance better than Fred Astaire. His ears are bigger than Clark Gable's and his mouth is bigger than Joe E. Brown's.

Esquire calls him up for the latest in fashions. He has a better radio delivery than Lowell Thomas. He is a better organizer than Hitler and he knows more about war than Churchill. Red Sox Beat Indians, 9-4; Regain Third

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 26.—The slugging Boston Red Sox regained third place from Cleveland today with a 9-to-4 triumph pegged on Boston's 13-hit attack and three errors by the Indians' Outfielder Roy Weatherly.

Pitcher Heber Newsome won his own game in the third inning by lining a three-run double after Lamar Newsome was intentionally passed to fill the bases. That gave Boston a 5 to 3 lead from which the punchless tribesman never recovered.

Jim Bagby pitched good ball until his former mates scored four more runs to chase him in the ninth, and with better fielding behind him might have won. Two of Weatherly's errors resulted in enemy runs, and Boston wouldn't have scored in the third except for Oscar Grimes' awkward handling of the relay on a double play ball.

Jeff Heath's three-run homer in the first inning represented just about all the Cleveland attack.

Leonard Beats Browns To Halt Nats' Streak

3-0 Decision Taken on 10-Hit Effort; Early Socks 2-Run Homer

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

St. Louis, Aug. 26.—Dutch Leonard put a stop today to that four-game losing streak of the Nats. He did it with his little knuckle ball. He shut the Browns out, 3 to 0, by way of notching his fifteenth victory of the season. It was no cinch.

The Nats didn't give Leonard much to work with. They gave him three runs in the second inning, and then sort of abandoned him, offensively. But Leonard made those three runs stand up nicely to the finish, and preserved his shutout even when the Browns had the bases loaded and only one out in the ninth.

His battery pal, Jake Early, was a big help to the Dutchman. Jake slugged one of Paul Caster's pitches onto the right-field roof in the third inning for his ninth home run of the season at a time when George Archie was on base. That was the blow that beat the Browns.

His pals who weren't much help to Leonard at bat did nobly by him in the field, however. Micky Vernon came up with two superlative plays on fierce drives down the first-base line to help Leonard out of trouble, and George Case made a catch in left field in the ninth that might have saved the ball game. Jimmy Bloodworth and George Archie took hits away from the Browns with a complete lack of conscience. As it was, the Nats were outhit by the Browns, 10 to 9.

They made a hit off Leonard in every inning but the second, but the big Dutchman bore down magnificently with his knuckler in each crisis and when he had no success with his pitches there was usually a swell play behind him. He was in deep trouble in the ninth, though, when he led off by hitting Joe Grace with a pitched ball.

Case eased the tension a bit for Leonard when he dashed far across country to haul in Berardino's line drive for the first out. Rick Ferrell, though, banged a double down the lef-field line and the bases were filled when pinch-hitter George McQuinn drew a walk.

Leonard took matters into his own hands at that point, and got his shutout. He lured Lucadello into popping a knuckler up to Bloodworth, and with the danger-

Light Heavy Crown Goes To Lesnevich

By Jack Cuddy,

United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, Aug. 26.—Gus Lesnevich, New Jersey veteran, became undisputed world light-heavyweight champion tonight by hammering out a close 15-round decision over young Tami Mauriello, of the Bronx, who provided unexpectedly stiff competition for a substitute contender.

Lesnevich, already recognized as 175-pound king by the National Boxing Association, became undisputed successor to Billy Conn's vacated crown by his victory in tonight's bout which was sanctioned by both the N. B. A. and the New York Commission.

Promoter Mike Jacobs announced that Lesnevich and Mauriello would have a return match for the crown at the Garden on November 14 because tonight's brawl was so close.

The 8,690 fans in the garden misunderstood when Harry Balogh announced "the winnah—and new champion." Everyone thought Balogh meant that young Mauriello had won and the 21-year-old Bronx Italian was cheered to the rafters.

Balogh finally quieted the cheering and explained that he meant Lesnevich had won. Lesnevich not having been recognized in New York as champion, became the new champion in Balogh's judgment.

After more than 15 minutes of confusion, in which bets were paid back, the Garden finally quieted down.

The decision was not unanimous. The two judges, Bill Healy and John Potter ballotted for Lesnevich, while Referee Eddie Joseph voted for Maureillo, giving Tami 10 rounds to Lesnevich's five.

Miss Guilfoil Wins Medal

By the Associated Press

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 26.—The opposition about made up its mind today that Virginia Guilfoil can keep that Mason-Dixon Golf Cup for good, if she wanted it badly enough to pound out a three-under-par 73 over a waterlogged course.

The brilliant performance of the blonde whirlwind from Syracuse, N. Y., made some big odds in favor of her adding the 1941 Mason-Dixon title to the New York State crown she won several weeks ago.

Miss Guilfoil won the Women's Fall Classic here in 1937 and 1939. All she needs for permanent posession of the $400 gold cup is another victory.

Going out with a one-over 38, Miss Guilfoil conquered the sluggish course with a four-under-par 35 to win medalist honors of the qualifying round.

Betty Meckley of Washington, D. C., Miss Guilfoil's partner on the round, commented that "I've seldom seen prettier golf from any woman and from few men." Miss Meckley carded an 82.

An early morning rain made the course marshy but had stopped before the 89 entrants started play.

Mary Fine Capers, of Haverford, Pa., one of those conceded to be in the running, equaled Miss Guilfoil with a 38 on the out nine but faltered coming back for a 79 total. She was well within the championship bracket, of 16, however.

Second place in the qualifier went to Dorothy Gardner of Steubenville, Ohio, with a 77. Mrs. Anna Hoblitzell of Parkersburg, West Virginia women's champion, was a little over her usual score and turned in an 82.

Pearce Speaks to Post Grid School; Game Plans Made

Featured by the appearance in a guest coaching role of Hardy Pearce, new head of the public school department of physical education, The Washington Post football school went through another profitable session yesterday at Eastern High.

Pearce, one of the outstanding gridmen of the city, lectured briefly on downfield blocking and scholastic standing, after which he turned the class over to Regular Coaches Sam Fox, Jim O'Leary and Les Ehrlich. These in turn switched interest to the most-talked-of subject to date.

That is the regulation "touch" game which will put a fitting climax to The Post school at its last session Friday.

Players were divided into two groups, the one under Fox taking the name—"Shirtless Wonders," and the other being tagged as the "O'Leary Bleary-Eyes." They will come to grips Friday in an encounter which is being taken seriously by all concerned. Already each group is accusing the other of stealing plays, scouting, etc.

Coaches yesterday stressed the point that every youngster in the class of almost 100 will have a chance to play Friday Fox, Ohio State end, will stock his team with Big Ten plays, and O'Leary is expected to use a spread. Other details are unavailable due to the deep secrecy attached to preparations.

Coaches Fox and O'Leary will take part in the big game, with Ehrlich acting as referee.

Today, in addition to practice of plays, field goal and extra-point kicking will be undergone. Meanwhile students will look forward to the "guest" appearance of Coach Orrel Mitchell of Georgetown Prep tomorrow.

Mighty Yankees Bow, 2-1, Before K. C. Farmhands

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Aug. 26.—The third-place Kansas City Blues of the American Association, defeated their parent club, the New York Yankees, 2 to 1, in an exhibition baseball game today.

Left Fielder Bud Metheny poled a double in the last of the ninth to score First Sacker Webb Whitner from first for the winning run. Whitner had walked.

Al Glossop, the Blues second baseman, tied the count with a seventh inning homes after the Yankees had scored on singles by Charley Keller and George Selkirk after Tom Henrich had walked.

10,000 to See Poland-Blunt Fight Tonight

25-Rounder Heads Card At Stadium

Program Listing 67 Rounds Will Be Offered; Strong Supporting Bouts

By Tony Neri

Bill Poland, the Bronx's contribution to the heavyweight division, will face the toughest assignment of his young boxing career tonight when he engages Eddie Blunt, rugged North Carolina Negro, in a 25-round (or less) fight at Griffith Stadium, which headlines a card of 67 rounds of boxing.

The program, which is expected to attract a crowd of 10,000 paid customers, will get under way at 8:30 o'clock.

Poland, hailed by his manager, Jack Kearns, as the coming champion, has been installed the favorite at 8-5 odds. The 197-pound Poland has been on the scene here the past week preparing for the scrap. Not since the Jess Willard-Jack Johnson fight in Cuba in 1919, in which Willard lifted Johnson's heavyweight championship, has a fight been listed for such a distance. In the Cuban fight, Johnson was stopped in the twenty-sixth heat of a scheduled 40-round match.

Blunt, conqueror of Babe Hunt in his last encounter, also holds victories over Abe Simon, Tony Musto, and Buddy Baer. In the Baer fight, the Negro captured 9 out of 10 rounds, and sent the younger Baer to the hospital for 3 days.

Blunt in Great Shape

Manager Abe Kettler states Blunt is in the best of shape. He can't understand how the betting boys have made his fighter the underdog, although it doesn't bother him. Blunt turned in some of his best boxing while being on the short end of the odds. In the Baer fight, the Negro was a 10-to-1 shot. And against Jack Trammell, Abe Simon, and Bob Tow, Blunt was considered a poor wagering risk. It was the beating from Blunt that helped to convince Tow to quit the boxing game. The Arlington County heavyweight was stopped in the Garden a couple of years ago at the height of his career.

Poland is undefeated in 35 professional fights, 32 of which were knockouts, his latest victim being Harry Bobo, of Pittsburgh, in a June bout in Baltimore. He also has beaten Danny Hassett and Jack Marshall. The Jewish boy is 23 years old and has been fighting for three years.

It is the guess of this corner that Blunt will win by a knockout about the twelfth round. It should be a great fight. We believe Blunt's body punches will decide the battle. The Negro is a terrific belter inside.

Furr to Beat Franklin

In the other bouts our predictions follow: Phil Furr to gain a decision over A. Franklin in their 12-round return match; Claudio Villar to upset Pat Comiskey, possibly by a KO; Lee Savold to outpoint Buddy Scott, and Ben Morez, giant Ukrainian, should knock out Jabo Kenner, undefeated Negro heavyweight, in about the fourth round of their scheduled six-round battle.

The Furr-Franklin match will be for the District welterweight crown. Franklin scored a decision over Furr in the first meeting. He is a 7-5 choice. Furr is in the best condition of his ring career. He has been training faithfully at Turner's Arena the past three weeks.

Villar, the good-looking Spaniard, is 26 years old and weighs 205 pounds. He looks a great deal like Maxie Baer. In his last match, Villar knocked out Max Doyle, of Syracuse, in the first heat of a 10-round bout in Havana, Cuba, two weeks ago.

Although Lee Savold was kayoed by Bobo recently, he should hold a slight edge over Scott. The youthful-looking Scott was somewhat of a sensation in chilling Tommy Gomez in Tampa last month, but was way behind before he slipped over the KO punch. Scott was outpointed by Bob Pastor at the ball park in June.

Morez, the 286-pounder from New York, is fresh from a victory against Abner Powell in Gotham last week. Built along the lines of Primo Carnera, Morez appears faster. He stands seven feet tall.

The tickets, which are on sale at Turner's Arena, Fourteenth and W streets northwest, and Griffith Stadium, range down from $5.50 to $1.20.

It's Scrimmage Time for the Washington Redskins

Upper—The Redskins, in their first serious scrimmage, in San Diego, take no chances with injuries, many of them wearing heavy pads to absorb the shocks. Here the ball (arrow) bounds free as the result of a bad pass. Lower—Ed Justice (arrow), veteran backfield star, plows into the line for a short gain. The start of scrimmages would indicate it won't be long until real action begins

Macks Defeat Tigers Twice; Gain 6th Place

By International News Service

Detroit, Aug. 26.—The Philadelphia Athletics moved into sixth place of the American League, replacing St. Louise, today by whipping Detroit, 9 to 1 and 2 to 1, in a double-header, while the Browns were losing to Washington.

The Athletics chalked up their victory margin in the last game by scoring both runs in the fourth frame on a pair of singles, a sacrifice and a double. The Tigers tallied in the last inning. Jack Knott was the winning hurler, Dizzy Trout the loser, although both were replaced in the final canto. Both teams secured six hits.

The Athletics took the opener in a runaway fashion, pounding Buck Newsom and Schoolboy Rowe for 14 hits.

Phil Marchildon was the winning pitcher, although Beckman took over in the last inning for the Athletics.

Airmen Defeat St. Elizabeth's 4 to 3, in Amateur Tournament

Close Decision at 2d Base Gives Victory To Naval Nine; Winners Meet Heurichs Today

By virtue of one hair-thin decision at second base, Naval Air Station nine remained undefeated in the local National Amateur Baseball Federation tournament yesterday, a 4-3 decision being taken over St. Elizabeth's in a seven-inning game on the Ellipse.

The triumph earned the Airmen a tussle with the Heurich Brewers, defending champions, on the East Ellipse today. Hostilities will start at 4:30. Tomorrow's game will bring together today's loser and St. Elizabeth's, with the winner meeting todays winner Friday for the title.

The decision which cost the Saints their game yesterday came in the sixth inning, when Naval Air had amassed a 4-1 lead. A walk issued Marshall Jacobs, followed by singles by Nau and Phelps, tallied one run and it appeared St. Elizabeth's was finally hitting its stride. J. Sugre was also walked, filling the bases. Boise's high fly to center tallied another run.

N. Sugrue sacrificed his brother and Phelps to third and second respectively, and the stage was set for the winning blow. Outfielder Gibson worked a walk for himself, again loading the bases. Then, slugging with all his might, Catcher Xander slammed a grounder to Shortstop Anthony. The latter fumbled the ball a second, got it to second at the same instant Gibson arrived from first. The latter was called out while two Saint runners crossed the plate in futile dashes.

Credit for the victory went to the Airmen's Taylor, who was replaced by "Sarge" Kyle in the fifth. Between them they allowed the Saints five safeties, while their mates reached Joe Porter for six.

Midget Auto Race Card Postponed For Second Week

Because of threatening weather and predictions of thundershowers by the Weather Bureau, the Southern States Championship Derby and six supporting midget automobiles yesterday were postponed for the second consecutive week at the West Lanham Raceway.

The Dixie Derby goes on in its entirety next Tuesday night.

'Skins Build Team Around Ky Aldrich

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 26.—Ki Aldrich, former All-American center at Texas Christian, is being counted on heavily by the Redskins. The sturdy Aldrich not only is a star defensive man but also is an effective blocker.

He has been assigned the ball-snapping job on the Sammy Baugh backfield combination. One of the few pro centers who can get back out of the line in time to block for a passer, Aldrich is expected to protect Baugh.

In today's scrimmage, Aldrich gave a fine exhibition on defense despite being handicapped by heavy blocking pads. Jim Stewart, Oregon tackle; Wayne Millner, veteran end, as well as Ed Cifers and Sam Goldman, rookie flankmen, were prominent in the workout. Frank Filchock and Dick Todd did the principal ball carrying.

Coach Ray Flaherty has planned an "all out" scrimmage for Thursday. The stuffy blocking equipment will be discarded and the defense then should catch up with the offense, which has been operating without pad hindrances.

John Stonebreaker, Southern California end, was a casualty of today's session. He suffered a twisted leg and had to leave the field. Lee Gentry, Tulsa U. halfback, was missing as the result of a slight touch of flu. Bob Masterson, regular end, was back after being out with a cold, and Ellie Wilkins' face infection has healed enough to allow him to work. Ed Tiestand, Vanderbilt, and Al Krueger, Southern California, the latest arrivals and candidates for end jobs, did only light work. Krueger, who has been married only three days, brought his wife here with him.

Mrs. Stokes Wins Manor Tournament

A string of five 4s yesterday won the top prize in Manor Country Club's 4-5-6 tournament for Mrs. Walter Stokes. Mrs. William Baker's eight 5s proved best in the next department, and Mrs. W. Ekman registered seven 6s.

Mrs. Marion Falls had the most 5s among guests, a total of 9, and Mrs. N. Wire registered four 6s.

Braves, Bucs Split; Tobin Wins Opener

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 26.—After the veteran Jim Tobin gained his eleventa win for the Boston Braves by limiting the Pittsburgh Pirates to four hits and a 4-3 decision, the visitors clouted three of his battery mates for a 6-1 triumph to divide today's double-header.

One of the Pirates' few first-game hits was Vince DiMaggio's triple with the bases loaded in the fourth inning, when they pulled into a 3-2 lead. The Braves, however, tied the count in the fifth and Lou Gremp singled in Ray Berres with the winning run in the eighth.

The Pirates clinched the second game against Starter Dick Errickson in the fifth when, during a three-run rally, Al Lopez homered after DiMaggio doubled. DiMaggio collected his eighteenth four-bagger against Johnny Hutchings with none on in the eighth.

Max Butcher went the distance for the Pirates and held the Braves scoreless until the ninth, when Maxie West collected the sixth and final Boston hit, a double that scored Buddy Hassett.

Agnew Sworn In As Newest Member Of Boxing Board

Lieut. John J. Agnew, of the Third Precinct, was sworn in as a member of Washington's three-man Boxing Commission at the District Building yesterday. Agnew was named to the commission on August 15 by Acting Superintendent of Police Edward J. Kelly to succeed Maj. Ernest W. Brown, retired superintendent.

The new commissioner has been a member of the Metropolitan Police Department since 1924, and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in February, 1940.

He becomes the junior member of the commission which includes Chairman Claude W. Owen and Thomas P. Morgan, jr.

JACOBS SAVED LOUIS-NOVA FIGHT

New York, Aug. 26.—For a period of at least four days, the Louis-Nova fight was off. Joe Louis suddenly decided he didn't want to meet Nova this year, and it appeared that nothing would change his mind.

CONSIDINE

Mike Jacobs made at least two plane flights to save the fight, one to Chicago; the other to Detroit. Perhaps other flights. Louis' managers, John Roxborough and Julian Black, after a prolonged argument with Louis, finally shrugged and gave up all hope of making him change his mind. That was when Jacobs was called in. Jacobs rushed to the champ's home by plane. What he said to Louis, or what he promised him, probably never will be known. But after their second or third meeting, Louis decided to go through with the fight this year, though he gained a 10-day postponement that will cost Jacobs more than a few bob.

Mike will have to scuttle some 75,000 tickets, a considerable number of placards and the like, because the 10-day postponement made it necessary to move the site of the brawl from the Yankee Stadium to the Polo Grounds. But he escaped the tough rap. For a few days it appeared as if hed'd have to return $75,000 worth of tickets and money orders for tickets.

Anything Better Than a Cancellation

The position of Nova's manager, Ray Carlen, was this: he was of course, opposed to any postponement because his fighter right now is in the best physical condition of his career. He was opposed to Mike's counter-proposal to stage it in Madison Square Garden this winter with $50 ringside seats, and opposed to the proposal of moving it to the vast Atlantic Auditorium.

But he would have accepted any change in venue or postponement to avoid seeing Louis meet someone else in a tune-up fight before meeting Nova. Apparently that was what Joe wanted to do this fall and winter, and meet Nova next June. Carlen's recurring nightmare is that somebody will beat Louis before Nova gets his crack at the title.

Nova may not beat Louis, but he'll certainly be remembered as the only fighter Louis ever showed sings of ducking—even temporarily. One of Joe's great gifts to the heavyweight championship is that he always has been ready, even eager, to fight 'em all—fats, leans, giants, runts, fast ones, slow ones, punchers and fancy dans. If he showed any hesitancy at all it was toward meeting colored fighters. But he met and quickly belted out perhaps the best of the colored challengers, John Henry Lewis.

Joe Will Be Ready—As Usual

Louis has paid Nova the compliment of taking this fight very seriously. He was in bad mental shape during his court case, and got so far away from boxing that he reverted to his day laborer appetite for all the things a fighter shouldn't eat. What he calls laborer appetite honeymoon" isn't calculated to sharpen his fighting edge, either.

But Nova is sensible enough to know that now that the fight is on, 10 days late, he won't be able to capitalize on Joe's physical condition. Joe has promised to go into training just after Labor Day. By the twenty-ninth of September he'll be decidedly ready. He always is, when that bell rings.

Now that the fight is on, for keeps, the boys around Jacobs Beach are predicting a $700,000 gate for it. That's not outlandish. Nova will come up to the fight with more backers than any fighter who ever fought Louis. He'll certainly have more guys on his side than did Billy Conn, before Billy did so well against Joe. And Conn and Louis drew $450,000.

Man Who Retired Cards in 1907 Without Making a Pitch Dies

Stoney McGlynn Claimed He Accomplished Feat for Reds After Foes Had Loaded Bases

Manitowoc, Wis., Aug. 26.—Stoney McGlynn, who died today, claimed one of baseball's most unusual feats—retiring the opposition, who had loaded the bases with none out, without once throwing to the batter.

"The St. Louis Cardinals were playing Cincinnati in 1907," McGlynn recounted recently. "The Reds whaled our starting pitcher and got off to a big lead.

"Manager John McCloskey called on Bugs Raymond, the greatest spitballer that ever pitched. Bugs loaded the sacks with nobody out and got three balls and no strikes on the next batter.

"McCloskey said: 'Stoney, you'd better go in there and stop 'em.' I said, 'Hell, John, there's no use sending me in now, they got us licked,' he insisted and I finally went in."

Stoney said that the first thing he did was to catch Hans Lobert, now coach for the Philadelphia Nationals, off third base. Then he caught the runner off second and finally nipped the man off first.

"That's the Gospel truth," McGlynn said of his favorite story. "I retired the side without pitching to the batter."

"We had a young first baseman, Ed Konetchy, from La Crosse, Wis. McCloskey sent Koney to bat for Jake Beckley and Ed knocked the first pitch for a home run. That started us off and we made eight runs and beat the Reds, 10 to 8."

McGlynn, whose given name was Ulysses S. Grant, played with numerous major and minor leagues early in the century. He was baseball coach at the University of Illinois for two years. He was 69 when he died. Funeral services will be conducted here Friday morning.

Bowling Leagues Meeting Tonight

With both the Men's and Ladies' District Leagues scheduling meetings for tonight, the duckpin world is readying itself for its biggest season as far as metropolitan Washington is concerned. The men will gather at the Lucky Strike Alleys, while the women will meet at Arcadia. Both meetings are for team captains and sponsors, and the time has been set for 8 o'clock.

Immediately after tonight's meetings officials of the two leagues will confer at Arcadia in order to work out preliminary scheduling plans for the season, which opens September 10.

Hiblaze Runs Game Race to Beat Dashing Doe at Marlboro

Schley Al Takes Down Show Money

Jockey Root Gives Winner Hard Ride To Outdistance Field by a Length

By Clocker Mike

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 26.—H. W. Pearson's Hiblaze, one of the most smaller circuits, came back after a consistent sprinters around the winning effort Saturday and ran the gamest kind of race to account for the fifth and outstanding race on today's card. The six-year-old son of Blazes strutted his stuff before 6,000 fans and reached the wire a length in the van of the favored Dashing Doe, belinging to John E. Hughes. Schey Al came from off the pace to take the short money.

Every one you saw before the race seemed to have a tip on Gayle F. but the best this three-year-old could do was to show in front of Dashing Doe for the opening quarter. Hiblaze, meanwhile, was laying in third place, just waiting. Entering the backstretch, Dufford had already started to work on Gayle F, but he had had enough for the day. Dashing Doe took the lead and looked all over the winner until Root started to work on Hiblaze. He reached the leader soon after entering the stretch and kept knocking on his mount until he had stretched it to a length at the wire. Dashing Joe was dead tired at the end and just landed to take the place from Schley Al.

Racing over a lightning fast track, Hiblaze bettered his previous race and hung up the ime of 1:07 4-5, the fastest five and a half furlongs of the meetings. Despite his good record and impressive score here last week, Hiblaze returned a $9.70 mutuel while enabling Root to score his first victory of the day.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SHALL WE DANCE, $11.30, $4.60, $2.80; ZAC PAM, $3.20, $2.40; SARANITE, $2.70.

SHALL WE DANCE was off on top, was well rated while racing in front and held on gamely when driven in the stretch. ZAC PAM was closest to the leader early, but was not good enough. SARANITE improved her position in the closing half, but made up no ground in the stretch drive. FAIR HAIRED had speed, but was through early. BAY DROP was pulled up in the stretch.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 2:39. Off at 2:41. Winner, Bernard Bond's b. g. (4), by Pompey—Betsy Ross. Trained by J. B. Bond. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:36.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRAETOR, $6.90, $3.70, $3.00; BEACON QUEEN, $3.60, $2.70; SCATALONE, $3.70.

PRAETOR, much the best, was snatched up at the break, went to the outside while making his move, was carried wide by RAYLIGHT, but took command and drew far off to win in hand. BEACON QUEEN was within striking distance, but was no match for the winner. SCATALONE disposed of SHOTAGIN to take command between calls, but faltered. SHOTAGIN had good speed early.

Daily double, SHALL WE DANCE and PRAETOR, paid $56.80.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:10. Off at 3:10½. Winner, Mrs. L. Dulany's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TACARO LILLY, $27.40, $8.30, $4.80; ROYAL MOWLEE, $3.40, $2.70; NYLEVE, $3.10.

TACARO LILLY took the lead at once, was taken in hand early, responded to pressure in the stretch and held on gamely. ROYAL MOWLEE backed speed for three-eighths and when came with a rush. NYLEVE used his foe to gain the place of the winner and faltered. THREE NINES closed gamely. BABY BOY had early foot.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:39. Off at 3:39½. Winner, J. E. Simmons' b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—REMOLEE, $3.60, $3.40, $2.80; STAR CHARTER, $3.30, $2.60; STADIUM, $3.00.

REMOLEE was sauzred in behind the pace until entering the stretch, came between horses to challenge, got to the front in the final sixteenth and was all out to stave off the bid of STAR CHARTER. The latter moved with the winner and was wearing him down. STADIUM gradually wore down LINGERIE and was shuffled back early and came with a belated rush. ALMAC ran a dull race. LYDE was done when RISE AND SHINE to take command and then weakened. RISE AND SHINE was through early.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went post at 5:45. Off at 5:45. Winner, J. Booker's br. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOAN ASBESTOS, $3.90, $3.30, $3.00; WINTONA, $5.10, $4.20; OVERCALL, $5.10.

JOAN ASBESTOS was running easily while racing behind WINTONA, took command when asked, saved ground throughout and won rather easily. WINTONA set the early pace, held on gamely, but could not resist the winner. OVERCALL ran an even race and could not make up any ground on the top ones. MAFUTA weakened in the stretch run. DUCHESS DEL was through early.

Navy Gridders to Wear Silk

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Aug. 26.—Navy's 1941 gridiron warriors will sport new blue and gold uniforms after September 1, Swede Larson, head coach, announced today.

The Middies will wear gold silk trousers, navy blue jerseys with gold numerals and gold helmets with blue stripes, Larson said. Last season, the players wore blue trousers and gold jerseys.

Heavy practice is slated to begin as soon as the football gear is distributed. Since August 18, the Tars have been undergoing conditioning practice in shorts.

The Middies meet their opening opponent, William and Mary, September 27, just about two hours after they complete six days of scholastic examinations, Larson said.

The entire squad will be eligible for the first game since examination results will not be posted until several days after the contest.

Use of a two-team system against all opponents will depend upon the outcome of the examinations, the head coach declared.

If seniors and juniors get unsatisfactory marks, their academy football careers will be ended immediately. Seniors will be graduated in December and the junior next June under a national defense schedule which cut the Academy course from four to three years.

—At The Post

I was talking to friend, Galt Davis, yesterday and he tells me there will be a real bowling match at this plant tonight. It will be between ten of the riders plying their trade at Marlboro. The teams will consist of five men each and it will be a three-game total pin match. Jockey Sammy Palumbo and his agent Jack MacKenzie, are taking care of the arrangements. For those interested in attending, Davis' place is the Rosslyn Bowling Center at the south end of Key Bridge. Since taking office as a member of the Maryland Racing Commission, George P. Mahoney has been the most active member of that body. He has taken part in the opening festivities at every half-miler on the circuit and will be at Timinium Monday when they open their ten-day session. In addition, Mahoney has spoken to hundreds of owners, trainers, jockeys, officials and race fans in order to get ideas for the betterment of Maryland racing. John Bosley, jr., who shipped ten steeplechase horses to Aquiducte, will transfer the main division of his flat runners to Havre de Grace to await the meeting at that point. These members of the Bosley string are now resting at his farm in Baltimore County. Norman Coe, former steeplechase rider, has been very successful with his one-horse stable. The stable consists of the recent winner, Egypta. Coe has won two races since obtaining the racer from R. S. Clark. Frank Frisbie, of Laurel, who trained Effendi, winner of the 1908 Preakness, has a small strng of horses here. For the first five days of the meeting there has been an increasse of at least $30,000 over the similar day the previous year. The top was hit Saturday when the increase was $69,901. With the first half of the meeting over, Root and Scocca were tied with six winners apiece. It looks like we'll have to wait until the final day to get the winner of this race.—CLOCKER MIKE.

First race—LANELAN has not started since Hagerstown but works say she is good and fit. Root will probably do the riding so there should be no mistakes. MY DOTTIE was a good thing last out when she lost her rider. FORTUNATE BOOP for the short money.

Second race—MOON STEP was a clever winner here and should repeat against this field. BOB'S PASS could take it all off best races. COUNORA is fit but I believe she wants a harder track.

Third race—GIRLIE STAR is far down on the eligible list but if she starts she must be given the call. Her race last week points her out here. WHITE SEA has never been worse than third and is dangerous. RED DUKE deserves consideration.

Fourth race—I'm going to try to get EXHORT up in time to beat this field. He's a little shy of early speed but will close well. SETTLER will be in front in the early stages. ACE OF TRUMPS is the probable favorite.

Fifth race—ELTONHEAD had all the bad luck a horse can have while finishing second to HIBLAZE. HIGH BUD would be tough if able to start HIGHLAND SONG has plenty of foot but can not outrun the top ones.

Sixth race—FLAG ETTA showed she is dead fit when she raced a mile and a sixteenth in 1:55 to beat TIME SCOUT and others. I believe they will finish the same way today. KAMARI for the show.

Seventh race—MINSTON came far back to take a sprint in very good time. Will have a little added distance here and that should help. PLAYMORE was all over the track last out. GOANTELL has a good win earlier in the meet.

Eighth race—It looks like this is the race to get a price in, so I'm going to try to make CURVES take this field into camp. JUSTA JIMMIE will be in front early but may weaken. QUILL almost fell last out and must be figured.

Best bet—FLAG ETTA.

Bowler Misses Record By 2 Pins but Loses

Tyler, Tex., Aug. 26 (AP).—Jack Skeen bowled 298, two points less than a perfect score, and lost his match.

The combined score of Skeen and his partner, G. George, couldn't touch the 222 and 224 rolled by Bob Bushnell and A. D. Ensey, respectively.

Cornish Hills Takes Orange Hunter Title

Hellzapoppin Jumps 6 Feet To Win Blue

Perry Entry's Nine Blue Ribbons Top Hunter Field; Storm Strikes Show Grounds

By Anne Hagner
Post Staff Writer

Orange, Va., Aug. 26.—The combination of a bolt of lightning shocking everyone on the grounds; a green hunter winning nine blue ribbons and two championships, and an even greener open jumper leaping 6 feet was sufficient to mark down the Orang Horse Show's closing session in indelible ink in Virginia show annals today.

The lightning, coming at the end of a storm early in the afternoon, brought about the only interruption to the remarkable winning streak of Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry's Cornish Hills, who took the hunter championship, the green hunter title and a bucketful of ribbons.

Although no one was injured by the bolt, spectators and riders suffered various degrees of minor shocks and one colored groom was knocked down as the storm seemed to center on the horse show grounds.

None the less surprising, however, were the victory march of Cornish Hills and the victory of Peggy Sampson's newcomer to the game, Hellzapoppin, in the skyscraper after taking a 6-foot fence in top form.

Way Is Beaten

With Newton Mayo up, the 5-year-old brown mare outfenced Dorothy Lee Counselman's Way, Mrs. M. E. Whitney's Blue Eagle, and Mr. and Mrs. Perry's Shrewsbury for the blue ribbon. Oddly both Way and Blue Eagle were forced to jump the 6-foot bar to win second and third places, as mud from the storm made the class more hazardous than usual.

By her triumph, Hellzapoppin won the jumper championship over Polly Stokes' pony, Freckles.

Raced on Southern half-mile tracks with indifferent success until she was a three-year-old, Hellzapoppin's career is something new to the open jumping world. Because she was so excitable on the track that a lead pony had to be vanned with her to keep her quiet, the mare was too great a luxury for her small winnings and was turned out on pasture last year.

When Newton Mayo, rider and trainer of the string brought her up early this season, she took an unexpected liking for Miss Sampson's widely known gray duo, Hi-Ho Silver and Black Boy. When the gray went showing, Hellzapoppin moped in her stall so that Mayo decided to send her along on the circuit, principally for the experience.

Surprises Everyone

Surprising everyone who knew her, the mare began to win more than her more highly valued stablemates and has virtually paid the way for them in recent shows Today's was her first effort over a big fence, and is indication that she may develop into the best bet in the barn.

Equally as interesting to spectators was the clean sweep made by Cornish Hills, who is actually a green hunter in the terms of American Horse Show Association rulings, but is also eligible for open hunter classes. Hence he piled up 28½ points for the green title, defeating J. North Fletcher's 3-year-old, Pappy, with 22.

Just as much at home in qualified classes, Cornish Hills took 30½ points for the grand championship with his closest rival, Mrs. Whitney's The Bear, far behind with 14 markers. Mrs. Perry rode her own horse and Norman Haymaker had the mount on the Whitney entry.

It was the second time in three days that Cornish Hills and The Bear, almost identical twins in appearance, placed one-two in championship earnings. Saturday they were pinned in that order at the Keswick Horse Show.

Six Feet Up in First Stratosphere Attempt

In her first attempt at a 6-foot fence, Peggy Sampson's Hellzapoppin leaped in topnotch style to win the sky-scraper class of the Orange Horse Show yesterday. Newton Mayo is aboard the thoroughbred mare

American Pro Loop to Take Yank Players

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 26.—W. D. Griffith, president of the American Professional Football League, today revoked the franchise of the New York Yankees and announced that the league was taking over all players under contract to the Yankee management.

He said several applications for the franchise had been received since Douglas G. Hertz, Yankee president, was suspended Saturday, and predicted a new one would be granted within 48 hours.

Griffith, explaining his action, asserted "Mr. Hertz has had eight months in which to discharge his financial obligations to the Cincinnati Bengals and almost as long a period in which to pay off his obligations to the league," but had failed to do so.

He added that Hertz owed the Bengals about $2000 and the league approximately $250.

Fraley Is Promised Bout With Hornet-Dusek Winner

Pat Farley, the big Irish clouter who claims wrestling championships of the Pacific Coast, Australia and New Zealand, was around Turner's Arena yesterday demanding from Promoter Joe Turner an explanation as to why The Green Hornet, masked grappler, was given the headline bout with Ernie Dusek on tomorrow night's show at Turner's Arena.

Fraley pointed out that he had won five straight locally, and only a few weeks ago gave The Green Hornet a ferocious lacing, almost unmasking him, says Patrick.

Turner countered by telling Pat he had matched him with Abie Coleman, the strong little gnome, in a special bout on the card, and that an impressive victory over Abraham might net a shot at the Hornet-Dusek winner. Pat seemed satisfied, Turner said.

Meanwhile interest is zooming in the cofeature in which Mildred Burke, the recognized feminine titleholder, will seek her 403d consecutive victory in a championship match with Mae Young, the Oklahoma City cowgirl. Mae whipped Elvira Snodgrass recently, and won a host of followers.

Maurice LaChappella and Ace Freeman, the clever two-man team, will face Fred Grobmier and Angelo Leone.

Christman Reports To Army Sept. 4

St. Louis, Aug. 26 (INS).—Paul Christman, 23, former University of Missouri football and baseball star, today was ordered by his draft board for induction into the Army September 4. Christman, now in Chicago to play in the All-Star football game against the Bears, pro league champions, Thursday night, had planned to marry Miss Inez Potter, of Kansas City, Mo., September 8. It was not known how the induction order would affect their plans.

Redlegs Split With Giants And Keep Pace

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 28.—The Cincinnati Reds managed to keep pace in the National League pennant scramble today by salvaging the second game of a double-header against New York. The Giants won the opener, 7 to 4, and the third-place world champions captured the nightcap, 5 to 4.

Trailing, 3 to 2, the Reds came to life in the eighth when Mike McCormick singled and came home with the tying run on Frey's hit. Frank McCormick's triple tallied Frey and Craft's single brought Frank over the rubber.

Ott homered for the Giants in the last of the eighth, but at that juncture the nightcap was called on account of darkness.

Leonard Beats Browns, 3-0; Early Homers

ous Harlond Clift at bat, Leonard threw a knuckle ball past him for a third strike that made matters conclusive.

Cecil Travis launched the Nats' three-run second inning with a single to center. He was forced at second by Vernon and then the Nats got a kindly nod from Lady Luck. George Archie's innocuous-looking grounder took a freak hop over Clift's head for a single, and Vernon, who had stolen second, meanwhile scored.

Jake Early applied the crusher at this point. He lifted one of Caster's pitches on top the rightfield roof and the Nats had a 3-0 lead which proved to be the final score.

Leonard saved his shutout for himself in the fifth inning with some smart fielding. Despite the fact that Berardino and Ferrell opened the inning with singles the Browns couldn't score. Berardino moved to third on Pinch Hitter Strange's long fly, and when Lucadello lifted a fly to Lewis in short left, Berardino held his base. But when Lewis' throw to plate skipped over the head of Jake Early, Berardino started for the plate. Too late he realized that Leonard was backing up the throw, and when Berardino tried to get back to third, he was a dead pigeon, Leonard to Archie.

Tonight the Nats are only a short way out of seventh place. . . . They entrained for a two-game series in Chicago, where they will probably encounter young Johnny Humphries tomorrow. . . . Humphries' last three games have been shut-out victories. . . . Vernon Kennedy will probably pitch for the Nats. . . . Cecil Travis singled in his first two times at bat today and was robbed of a third straight hit when Clift caught his line drive. . . . The Nats have signed a young semipro pitcher named Eddie Miller, from Iowa, and are taking him back to Washington. . . . They like his right-hand fast ball. . . . Jimmy Bloodworth can't buy a hit.

Alexander Wins Amateur Medal

40 for 77 and 157; and Harry Todd, former western champion from Dallas, Tex., 44 for 81 and 157.

Tom Sheehan of Detroit, record-breaking medalist in 1939, took 44 for 83 and 160 that left him on the outside looking on together with Gus Moreland, one-time Walker cup ace from Peoria, Ill., who took 43 shots on the back nine and 85 in all for his 160. Also beyond the qualifying pale were Frank Stranahan, Beefy Toledo (Ohio.) youngster who holds the Trans-Mississippi title, 160; Tommy Barnes of Atlanta, low scorer in the country-wide sectional qualifying rounds, 161, and Chick Evans, two-time former winner, 166.

The four other former champions all made the match-play grade—Ward at 148 with Johnny Goodman, seeking to regain the title on his home coures; Johnny Fischer, 1936 winner, at 151 on the strength of a one-over-par 73 that stood with two others as the day's low score, and Chapman at 152.

Still whether they finished with 144 like Alexander or 158 like Billows, who had to hole a 30-foot putt on the eighteenth to get that, they all will be on an even footing when match play starts at 8 a. m. (C.S.T.) tomorrow morning. The morning round will reduce the field to 32, who will play another set of 18-hole matches in the afternoon.

Two more 18-hole rounds on Thursday will cut the field for the 36-hole semifinals Friday, to be followed by the 36-hole final Saturday.

Though Alexander was having his troubles through today's first nine, he seemed to have things fairly well under control by making recoveries that helped him to a 37, only one over par. But he started hooking his tee shots and misjudging his irons in the face of a brisk breeze on the back nine, with the seven on the 622-yard seventeenth his worst spot. He hooked his second shot into the rough, tried to play from there around some trees and instead went slanting across the fairway far wide of the green, and from a bad lie there went into a trap in four.

If Alexander had appeared to have the situation in hand for the first half of his trip, Burke looked even more so after playing the first nine holes in successive 4's, with birdies on the long holes and bogeys on the short ones. Then, suddenly, his touch on his iron shots left him cold. He was playing them carelessly, and the combination of that and a couple of three-putt greens soon had him up to his 77.

Cubs' Homers Beat Phils in Two Contests

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 26.—Three home runs in the opener and a 16-hit attack topped by Dom D'Allesandro's homer with the bases loaded in the nightcap gave the Chicago Cubs both ends of a double-header with the Phillies today, 5 to 4, and 11 to 3.

Outhit in the first game, the Cubs went into the sixth inning trailing, 3 to 2. Then Bill Nicholson hit for the circuit with Rookie Barney Olsen aboard and Babe Dahlgren followed with another four-base blow to cinch the victory.

Nicholson's homer was his twenty-third of the season, while Dahlgren's was his seventeenth. Olsen also hit for the circuit in the third.

The Cubs nicked three Phils hurlers for 16 hits in the second game. Si Johnson gave up four runs before he was relieved in the first inning by Johnny Podgajny, who gave way to Walter Beck in the third. D'Allesandro got his home run in the fourth.

Well, Boss, by now I guess you are wondering who this guy is. Well, to tell the truth, I don't exactly know myself. Whenever the Redskins have bull sessions and somebody tells of some great feat, some oddity or some accomplishment, Dick Todd sits there quietly and listens. When he gets the floor he always begins with "Why, that ain't nothing. That 'little old boy down to school' . . . etc."

If I don't watch out that "little old boy down to school" is going to have my job. Dick Todd says that "little old boy down to school can write a story, send it on the telegraph, receive it at the other end, edit it himself, set it up in type, turn on the presses and then sell the papers.

SUMMER D

July Sales Of Furniture Spurt 53%

The furniture industry continued its upward trend during July, registering an increase in new orders of 53 per cent over July, 1940, the monthly report of Seidman & Seidman, accountants, showed yesterday.

After the close of the summer market early in the month, the industry quieted somewhat, due, primarily, the report said, to "hesitancy on the part of manufacturers to accept orders very far in advance of shipping dates."

The backlog of unfilled orders at the end of the month stood at 152 per cent above that of a year ago and is 15 per cent over June.

Shipments during the month rose 10 per cent to a point 70 per cent over July, 1940. Employment rose 2 per cent over June and stood at 19 per cent above the corresponding time a year ago, while pay rolls gained 5 per cent and were 49 per cent above July, 1940.

The report commented that the 10 per cent rise in shipments contrasted with a much larger jump in orders, "an indication of the difficulties the industry is beginning to experience in securing men and materials."

Garfinckel Dividends

Directors of Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., declared the regular quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share on the company's preferred stock and the regular quarterly dividend of 17½ cents a share on the common stock, both payable September 30 to stockholders of record September 15.

Advertising Spurts 11 Per Cent

Newspaper advertising placed by retailers in 83 cities reporting to Advertising Age showed a 11.3 per cent over the corresponding week of last year during the 7-day period ended August 16.

Total retail advertising in the 83 cities was 18,523,974 lines during the week of August 16, compared with 1, 646,999 lines during the corresponding week or 1940. Retail advertising in the 83 cities measured has now shown increases over last year for 22 consecutive weeks.

Shirt Prices up 25 Cents

Haberdashery shops in Washington and other cities are preparing new price tags on white shirts, the result of a jump of 25 cents on staple garments announced by the Manhattan Shirt Co., a leading manufacturer.

A spokesman for the Manhattan Co. said its advance in price which will apply to the retail market, was based on increased manufacturing costs and higher raw material charges.

Power Hookups Planned

The defense committee of the National Association of Power Engineers reported yesterday plans were being made to link small power plants with utility lines to provide additional electricity for defense needs.

The report was made by William C. Stickler of Washington, committee secretary, at the association's fifty-ninth annual convention in Baltimore.

Stickler said there were many small, isolated power plants that were not producing at capacity. He explained that the surplus power these plants are capable of producing could be directed into utility lines and this energy used to relieve the burden caused by heavy demands of defense industries.

Structural Steel Shipments in July Top 1941 Average

New York, Aug. (AP).—The American Institute of Steel Construction reported today shipments of fabricated structural steel during July topped the monthly average for the first part of 1941 with a total of 187,082 tons.

The seven-month total this year was 1,265,352 tons against 782,132 tons in the corresponding part of 1940. The July figure was under totals for April, May and June.

New orders booked during July were under the average at 202,584 tons but brought the seven-month total to 1,508,262 tons against 814,171 for the first seven months of 1940.

Structural steel scheduled for fabrication through August to November 30 totals 802,753, the institute estimated.

U. S. Bank to Close Branches in Japan

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—The National City Bank of New York disclosed today it was closing its branches in Yokohama and Kobe, retaining for the present only its office in Tokyo. The freezing of Japanese funds in this country and the reciprocal freezing of American property in Japan have sharply curtailed United States-Japanese trade, it was pointed out.

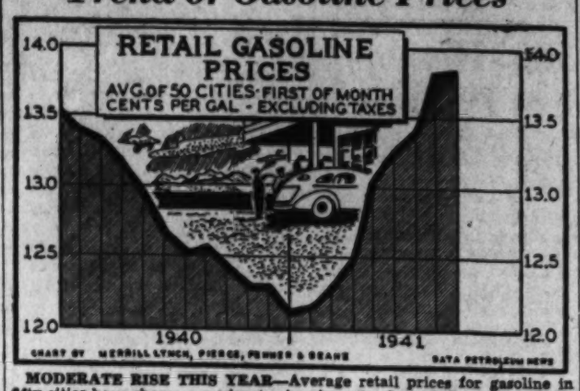
Trend of Gasoline Prices



MODERATE RISE THIS YEAR—Average retail prices for gasoline in fifty cities have shown a moderate rise since the first of the year, as indicated by the chart prepared by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane. According to data furnished by the Petroleum News, the average price, exclusive of taxes, is around 13.8c a gallon. This compares with a low of about 12.2c in January and with a high of 13.5c a gallon in 1940.

Canned Goods Price Ceilings Are Foreseen

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 26.—Talk of Federal price ceilings on some foodstuffs, particularly canned goods, occupied wholesale food markets today.

Unconfirmed reports that a price order had been written that would put a ceiling of $2.50 a case on Cohoes salmon touched off the discussion.

The trade also heard what it thought might be a sample of the way the Government planned to fill its needs for canned goods.

Alaska salmon packers were told, according to dealers, that the Government would require 1,000,000 cases of specified sizes of cans. Packers were warned, the report said, not to evade the order partially by packing an abnormal number in cans of other sizes and claiming to be unable to furnish the required amount.

Some canners expressed the opinion this set a pattern for similar moves to acquire canned fruits, vegetables and meats.

Those who fail to respond or quote prices the Government considers too high might be required to furnish their proportionate share at prices the Government sets. This would include, if necessary, a recall of shipments to commercial customers, trade circles said.

A. H. P. Offers to Buy Int. Vitamin Corp.

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—The American Home Products Corporation has offered to purchase the International Vitamin Corporation through an exchange of stocks, it was announced today.

Acquisition would be arranged through the exchange of eight shares of stock of the International company for one share of American Home Products. The deal is subject to approval by stockholders of the International company at a special meeting September 15.

American Home Products Corporation is a leading producer of drugs and drug store accessories with many plants in the United States and Canada. International Vitamin Corporation operates two plants in New York.

Cocoa Bean Supply Reported 25% Heavier

The Commerce Department announces results of a special survey showing that stocks of cocoa beans in the United States on May 1 totaled 4,278,759 bags, compared with 3,274,739 on the similar date last year.

The survey was undertaken because of prospective heavy demand for cocoa in making chocolate for Army field rations and candy for sale at military canteens.

Cooper-Bessemer Corp. Pays Back Dividends

Mount Vernon, Ohio, Aug. 26 (AP).—Cooper-Bessemer Corporation directors declared dividends of 50 cents a share on common stock payable November 1 to holders of record October 25 and 75 cents a share on prior preference stock payable October 1 to holders of September 10.

Back dividends of $30.75 on preferred payable October 1 also were declared, with preferred called for redemption October 1.

Crop Surplus Seen Offset To Inflation

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 26.—The ability of the United States to step up its production of farm products was cited today by Banking, journal of the American Bankers Association, as a safeguard against a violent inflation of prices.

"The only question in everyone's mind seems to be not whether prices will rise but how far and how long, said the publication. There are two solid factors which deserve more attention.

"One is that we can produce vastly more food on farms than is now being grown. The Government finds it necessary even today to curtail production, buy surpluses and adopt various artificial means for maintaining prices.

"A moderate increase in the price of any farm-grown commodity would bring a rise in production with a consequent depressing effect on the price unless some strict curtailment shouk. be imposed to maintain a scarcity.

"It would seem to be a reasonable assumption that so long as the dollar value of farm-produced food cannot rise too far without stimulating the vast potential production in the offing, we have a good safeguard against any violent inflation of prices in general.

"The second factor that merits a thought is the effect of the existence of huge inventories on price sentiment. No one knows at just what point the accumulated surpluses will begin to weigh heavily on the price level."

Aircraft Backlog Nears 7 Billion

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—The magazine Aviation estimated today that unfilled orders held by aircraft manufacturers increased one billion dollars during the past month to a total close to seven billion dollars, and were due for further boosts.

The magazine estimated that the defense program called for around $11,469,000,000 worth of airplanes and that backlogs might reach ten billion dollars before deliveries exceed new business.

Approximately 65,000 airplanes are on order for the Army, Navy, British, Chinese and Dutch in the East Indies, it added.

The orders of some major companies are large enough to keep them working at capacity for the next 18 months, Aviation said.

North Carolina Leaf Prices Best in Decade

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 26 (AP).—The world's largest tobacco markets, located in eastern North Carolina's new bright belt, became virtual boom towns today as opening-day prices at several points were the best in a decade.

All 14 markets in the belt reported opening prices well above last year's belt average of 17.86 cents a pound and at some places above the 28.12 cents average last week on the Carolinas' border belt. Flue-cured tobacco, from which cigarettes are made, is auctioned on all Carolina's Eastern markets.

B. & O. Income In July Soars $2,624,172

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—After closing the books on the first half of the year with revenues and earnings generally around the best levels since 1929-1930, leading railroads maintained the pace of improvement through July, according to monthly statements released today.

Net railway operating income of the Baltimore & Ohio Co. in July was $4,833,304—an increase of $2,624,172 over July, 1940. For the first seven months of this year the railroad reported a net income of $27,633,347 compared with $14,585,294 in the first seven months of last year.

Great Northern Railway disclosed net income for July of $3,717,009 against $1,222,048 for the same month last year and for the first seven months reported a balance equal to $2.76 a share compared with 22 cents a share earned in the same period in 1940.

Western Maryland Railway reported July net income of $232,078 against $127,097 in 1940, and seven months' net income equal to $1.07 a common share against 21 cents a share a year ago. This was after dividend requirements for the period on Western Maryland preferred on which there is an accumulation of unpaid dividends.

Earnings Report

The Sperry Corporation, makers of airplane instruments and other defense equipment, reported consolidated net income for the first half of 1941 of $4,084,907, equal to $2.03 a share on the capital stock, against $3,068,282 or $1.52 a share in the like period of 1940. The 1941 profit, the company said in a statement, was before reserves of $607,473 for post-war readjustments and additional amortization.

Gross income for the six months ended June 30 was $16,234,302, a peak for any six months in the company's history, compared with $7,688,245 for the like 1940 period and $20,126,641 for the whole of 1940, the company's record full year.

Stokely Brothers & Co. reported net profits of $715,589.94 today for the 12 months ending last May 31. Its net profits were $329,642.10 for the preceding 12 months. The company, owner and operator of 37 food packin plants in the United States and Canada, reported total sales of $21,610,233.63 for the year ended May 31, an all-time high and a gain of $876,245.43 over the previous year.

Associated Dry Goods Corporation estimated consolidated net profit for the six months ended August 2 at $525,000, equal after dividend requirements on the 6 per cent first preferred stock to $2.14 on the 7 per cent second preferred. This compared with net loss of $45,000 in the like 1940 period.

Richfield Oil Corporation and subsidiaries reported net profit for the first half of 1941 of $1,851,138, or 46 cents a share, compared with $2,112,479, or 52 cents a share, in the like 1940 period.

Reserve of Gold Stationary, Says Bank of France

Paris, German-occupied France, Aug. 25 (Delayed) (AP).—The first financial statement of the Bank of France in seven months reported today that the French gold reserve was stationary at 74,597,000,000 francs of 23.3034 milligrams of gold.

"The gold reserve has not varied," the statement said, "and our metal stock remains the same. Its proportion in comparison to current obligations is slightly higher than 25 per cent."

The new balance sheet, compared with the last one issued (000s omitted):

	Dec., 1940	Aug., 1941
Com'cial holdings	4,307,000	6,000,000

Pivotal Shares Push Forward Moderately; Rail List Continues Buoyant on Profit News

New York, Aug. 26.—The stock market picked up a little more rallying vigor in today's market and tapped out gains of fractions to a point or so for favorites.

Best recoveries were witnessed in the forenoon when volume also was largest. Quoted values were shaded after midday and many leaders finished under their tops. Dealings also slowed toward the last one.

The war picture continued sufficiently cloudy to intimidate some potential purchasers, brokers said, while taxes and Governmental controls still served as bearish influences.

Bidding was a bit more confident, it was suggested, because of the recent drying up of offerings to a point where technicians began to get the idea the list might have been "sold out."

There was a fair assortment of cheerful business items including another jump in Federal Reserve Bank loans to commerce, industry and agriculture to a new 10-year peak.

Rails edged upward at the start as a fresh batch of carrier revenue statements provided further confirmation of the strong comeback of the transportation systems since the inauguration of the armament program.

Corporate earnings figures mostly were optimistic although there were exceptions due to heavy tax provisions. Richfield Oil, for instance, showed 46 cents a share for six months compared with 52 in the like 1940 period. The stock was in the losing column most of the time but revived h. the afternoon to finish with a gain of ⅝, at 12, a new 1941 high.

Among stocks emerging with advances were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Kennecott, Standard Oil (N.J.), Warner Bros., Commercial Solvents, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Sears Roebuck, Boeing and Douglas Aircraft.

Jones & Laughlin skidded to a new year's low on a Pittsburgh Federal Court "show cause" order regarding payment of dividends on the concern's new common and preferred stock.

Gainers in a slightly spotty Curb included Humble Oil, Aluminum of America, Phoenix Securities and Venezuelan Petroleum. On the offside were American Gas, St. Regis Paper and Niagara Hudson Power. Turnover here was around 102,000 shares versus 69,000 yesterday.

The bond market scored a general gain of fractions to around a point today under leadership of rails.

Trading expanded to $6,713,300, par value, from $4,901,800 on Monday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails ended up .4 of a point at 63.2, the best average gain for this group since July 21. Other groups in the index reflected marked standings.

Well up in front of the forward movement were Gulf, Mobile & Northern 5s at 89⅛, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, 4½s at 64¼, New Haven collateral 4½s at 28, New York Central 5s at 59⅛, Western Maryland 4s at 80¾, International Paper 5s at 105 and American Telephone 3¼s at 112¼. Some specialties scored much wider gains. Lehigh Valley Coal 5s pushed up 7¼ and Silesian American 7s added 4⅛ at 39¼.

Cotton Leads Renewed Rise In Key Staples

By the Associated Press

Cotton futures led most commodity markets upward yesterday, closing in New York with gains of $1.80 to $2.10 a bale.

The demand for cotton stemmed from trade sources convinced boll weevil damage was increasing and received further impetus from belief the Government was not planning to dump its cotton stocks on the market.

A minimum of selling pressure helped wheat gain ⅝ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel in Chicago but corn was mixed. Livestock prices held about steady with cattle a shade higher and some kinds of hogs cheaper.

Coffee prices continued to fluctuate irregularly but cocoa gained .22 to .23 of a cent a pound.

The Associated Press index of 35 cash commodities, boosted chiefly by a jump in spot cotton prices, hit a new four year high at $1.84 per cent of the 1926 average, compared with 91.49 per cent the day before.

North American Votes Dividend Payable in Stock

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—The North American Co. today declared a dividend on its common stock payable in shares of capital stock of the Detroit Edison Co.

The dividend, if approved by the SEC, would be paid October 1 to stockholders of record September 10 at the rate of one share of Detroit Edison for each 50 shares of North American common. Stockholders who under such a plan would be entitled to fractions of shares in Detroit Edison would be paid in cash at the rate of 40 cents for each share of North American common. The company said the dividend was not a distribution of capital nor a partial liquidating dividend but was charged to earned surplus. Available records show North America's holdings in Detroit Edison to be about 19 per cent of the voting interest.

$30,000,000 Utility Issue Is Due Today

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 26.—One of the largest of marketings of utility securities in recent months is set for tomorrow with the public offering of $30,000,000 Wisconsin Power & Light Co. first mortgage, 3¼ per cent bonds by a syndicate headed by Glore, Forgan & Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co. The bonds will be offered at 106⅛.

The syndicate was awarded the bonds yesterday on a bid of 105.5897. Bids were tendered by three other banking groups under the competitive system recently ordered by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The bonds are due August 1, 1971. Proceeds from the sale and from a $3,000,000 note issue will be used to redeem $33,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds.

Meanwhile public offering was made today of $35,000 shares of 4½ per cent preferred stock of Masonite Corp. at $102 a share and dividends by a group headed by Blyth & Co.

Proceeds will be used to retire 18,419 shares of 8 per cent preferred and for other corporate uses.

Gas Pipe Line Started

Shreveport, La., Aug. 26 (AP).—The United Gas Pipe Line Co. has started construction of a 200-mile natural gas pipe line to serve cities in Louisiana and along the Gulf Coast of Mississippi and Alabama to Pensacola, Fla.

WHY ON EARTH DO THEY DO IT?

...take chances with cut-price insurance

Buying insurance of doubtful security in order to save premium cost is like an aviator buying a defective parachute because it's cheap. If he's going to need it at all, only the best is good enough. If he isn't going to need it, why bother to carry it all? Moral: Insist on insurance that you KNOW will be reliable . . . Let us tell you all about it.

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

IF THAT BODKINS KID HITS HIM, GASTON WILL BE A DEAD PIGEON!
DON'T HIT HIM, ODD— DON'T HIT HIM!
I DON'T LIKE TO STRIKE ANYONE, BUT WHEN YOU PUSHED THAT LADY AROUND YOU AROUSED MY ANGER!
HONK!
HURRY UP AND LAY THAT PLANK DOWN AND LETS WATCH THE FIGHT!
THE KID'S FIST MOVED SO FAST, I DIDN'T EVEN SEE IT!
HE HIT GASTON SO HARD ON THE FOREHEAD, THE BUMP CAME OUT ON THE BACK OF HIS HEAD! GOSH!

H'LO.
H'LO.
NICE BATCH YE CAUGHT.
WELL S'LONG.
S'LONG.
RAY, I'M GITTIN' FED UP JIST SITTIN' AN' FISHIN' THESE LAST THREE DAYS--I GOTTA DO SOMETHIN'--I CAN'T SIT!
TWO MORE DAYS KID--- NOW COME ON WE'LL COOK THOSE FISH.

WINNIE WINKLE — Swindle Sheet — BY BRANNER

MORNING, DUCHESS! IS GOOD OL' BIBBSY IN ??
YES, AND I'D ADVISE YOU TO STAY AWAY FROM GOOD OLD BIBBSY TODAY!
WHY, WHAT'S EATIN' HIM?
HE JUST GOT A LOOK AT YOUR EXPENSE ACCOUNT FOR YOUR TRIP LAST WEEK AND THE HOTEL BILL WAS COLOSSAL!
AHEM-ER-DID HE HAVE ANTHING TO SAY?
I'LL SAY HE DID!
HE SAID IF YOU BOUGHT ANY MORE HOTELS HED FIRE YOU!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

NEVER MIND TH' DINNER. YOU MUST COME INTO MY DARK ROOM AND SEE MY CAMERA STUDIES!
NOW WE ARE COMING TO SOME OF MY BEST WORK -- AH! HERE THEY ARE!

JANE ARDEN — Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — Says You — BY MONTE BARRETT and RUSSELL ROSS

IT'S OUR LAST CHANCE, TUBBY— LET HIM HAVE IT!
BAH! WE WON'T FALL FOR THAT TRICK TWICE!
SO THIS IS THE LITTLE WALO-CAT THE PRINCE WANTED US TO RELEASE—YOU'LL NEVER LEAVE THIS ROOM ALIVE!
SAYS YOU!
KLUNK!

SUPERMAN — He Who Laughs Last — BY JERRY SIEGEL and JOE SHUSTER

EASY, IS IT? THEN LET'S SEE YOU LIFT IT, LITTLE MAN!
VERY WELL. IF YOU INSIST!
BUT AS CLARK ATTEMPTS TO RAISE THE 600-POUND WEIGHT, SLAG'S COMPULSION STEALS UPON HIM....
I-I CAN'T BUDGE IT!
HO! HO!--WHO HAS THE LAST LAUGH NOW?
I GUESS YOU DO--HELLO!
WHA--??
SA-AY... WHAT IS THIS?! HE SAYS "HELLO"--- THEN WALKS THRU THE DOOR!

The usual blinding galaxy of stellar names in the entertainment world graces the "Treasury Hour" over WJSV and the Columbia network at 8 tonight.

Heading the guest cast on the show—which in the few weeks it has been on the air in the interest of interesting people in Defense bonds and stamps has risen to become radio's most popular program—the surveys prove it—is Eddie Cantor to whom this sort of thing isn't exactly new. He sold Liberty Bonds and stamps in the same way in the last war.

Then there are Priscilla Lane and Elliott Lewis of Hollywood, who will appear in a specially written Arch Oboler play, "Brainstorm;" Rubinoff and his violin, who will cooperate in the rendition of "Songs of America;" James Melton, the air's well known tenor; and, of course, the regulars like Barry Wood, of the "Hit Parade;" Ray Block's choir and Al Goodman's Orchestra.

The popularity of the "Treasury Hour" has become so great at the C. B. S. theater from which the show is produced that gate crashers are the usual thing. Last week, for instance, when the Quiz Kids were on—of which there are five—two score women tried to get in by protesting they were their mothers.

Probably young women will try to get in tonight by announcing that they're Cantor's daughters.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — The Past Is Just Around the Corner — BY MILTON CANIFF

HIYA, DUDE! I HEARD THE SUPPLY TRUCKS DRIVE UP—BUT I MUST HAVE DROPPED BACK TO SLEEP!
THE DRIVERS ARE POOHED OUT! RAVEN'S GOING TO HAVE THE STUFF UNLOADED IN THE MORNING! THAT BEGGAR MONK WAS OUT WATCHING THE TRICKS... PROBABLY THE FIRST TIME HE'S SEEN ONE!
I HEARD YOU TALKING ABOUT THAT MONK... BUT I DIDN'T SEE HIM!
FUNNY OLD GAFFER!
GEE, EVERYTHING REMINDS ME OF BURMA! SHE USED TO BE TEAMED WITH AN OLD GENT NAMED CAPTAIN JUDAS... WHO LOOKED LIKE A CHINESE MONK!
HE HAD NO HAIR ON HIS HEAD—BECAUSE BURMA THREW A LAMP IN HIS FACE AND SCORCHED HIM GOOD!...
IF THIS OLD GLUNK EVER SAW BURMA HE'D NEED ALL THE OPIUM IN THOSE TRICKS TO KEEP HIS NERVES FROM JUMPING! ...G'NIGHT!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

CONNIE BARCLAY! HOW SWEET OF YOU TO CALL! I WON'T YOU SIT DOWN AND TELL ME ALL ABOUT YOURSELF!
THANK YOU, MRS. SPOOFINGWELL!
SINCE MY UNCLE, THE MAYOR—WENT AWAY, I'VE TAKEN A JOB AS SOCIETY EDITOR OF THE TIMES!
OH—YOU POOR, POOR DEAR! HOW MORBID!
I LIKE IT VERY MUCH! IN FACT I CAME TO ASK YOU ABOUT YOUR GARDEN PARTY TOMORROW!
I'D LOVE TO HELP YOU, MY DEAR—BUT, AS YOU KNOW, I NEVER GO IN FOR CHEAP PUBLICITY!
WELL—I WOULDN'T THINK OF ANNOYING YOU! GOOD DAY, MRS. SPOOFINGWELL!
B-BUT, IF YOU INSIST—I HAPPEN TO HAVE A LIST OF THE GUESTS HERE ON MY DESK!

MICKEY FINN — Au Revoir! — BY LANK LEONARD

WHAT IS IT, TOMMY?
I-I JUST WANT YOU TO KNOW HOW I FEEL ABOUT YOU, MICKEY! Y-YOU'RE THE SWELLEST FRIEND ANY FELLOW EVER HAD!
AW, GEE, TOMMY, FORGET IT! I JUST HAD FAITH IN YOU FROM THE START—THAT'S ALL!
I KNOW, MICKEY—AND OUTSIDE OF MOM YOU'RE THE ONLY ONE WHO EVER DID—UNTIL NOW MAYBE! T-THAT'S WHY I'M TRYIN' TO SAY THAT—
L-LISTEN, TOMMY! DON'T TRY TO SAY ANY MORE—I-I UNDERSTAND! J-JUST LET'S WISH EACH OTHER—GOOD LUCK!
O-OKAY!
HEY! C'MON! BREAK THIS UP! HE'S GOTTA GET ON THAT TRAIN, MICKEY!

MR. AND MRS. — It Just Seemed Similar — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

JOE, LISTEN TO THIS IN TODAY'S PAPER: DEAR HEART THROBS: I AM MARRIED TO A MAN WHO MAKES A GOOD SALARY—
I COOK GOOD MEALS AND GIVE MY WHOLE TIME TO KEEPING HOUSE AND TRYING TO MAKE MY HUSBAND HAPPY—
HE NEVER WANTS TO DO ANYTHING BUT READ THE PAPER. SOMETIMES HE HARDLY TALKS AT ALL, EVEN AT MEALS—
SAY, WHAT'S THE IDEA OF READING ALL THAT JUNK TO ME?
NOTHING. ONLY IT JUST STRUCK ME AS FUNNY. I MIGHT HAVE WRITTEN THAT LETTER TO THE PAPER MYSELF, IT'S SO TRUE

DIXIE DUGAN — Coincidence — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Change of Front — BY FRANK MARTINEK

WHAT'S THE IDEA? DON'T TELL US THERE'S A BRANCH OF THE NAVY DEPARTMENT IN THIS NEIGHBORHOOD!
HEY! WHAT IN—!?
NOW JUST TAKE IT EASY, BOYS, AND YOU WON'T GET HURT, SEE?
IF THIS IS A HOLD UP—
NOPE. JUST A LITTLE GAME, THAT'S ALL
OKAY, BLINKO, ON TO HEADQUARTERS. IT'S RUDE TO KEEP OUR GUESTS IN SUSPENSE.

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

I MEAN IT MINNIE-HA-CHA! I'LL BE MIGHTY RELIEVED IF THAT WINDSOR CHAP DON'T KEEP HIS DATE WITH YE FER THAT BOAT RIDE!
DON'T BE FOOLISH, CAP'N! HERE COMES VIC NOW—RUNNING!
YOU'RE LATE, VIC! IT WOULD SERVE YOU RIGHT IF I REFUSED TO GO!
SORRY, PRINCESS! THE DATE'S OFF!!
VIC!

Advance Selling

2-TROUSER SUITS TOPCOATS & OVERCOATS

Sleeping under blankets these cool evenings should bring to mind that tangy fall weather is only one calendar leaf away. Take advantage, now, of this Advance Selling on celebrated Sheldon Two-Trouser Suits, Topcoats and Overcoats.

Why not take a tip from the industrious squirrel? That busy, little furred animal has been endowed by Mother Nature with a sixth sense. He's smart enough to know that when the snow flies it's too late to store away provisions for the winter months. So take a hint from "bushy tail." It's smart, this year, to purchase your fall clothing in advance. And smarter yet when it bears the celebrated Sheldon label.

SUITS: Fine Worsteds for street and dress wear. Tweeds are making a name for themselves in the business and college world. Soft shetlands, rugged tweeds, herringbones and diagonal cheviots.

TOPCOATS: Raglan, balcacaan and boxcoat models featuring the set-in sleeve shoulders. Also raglan sleeves. Duocoats with a warm zipper lining and Venetian covert cloths.

OVERCOATS: Famous Alpalux Sheldon Overcoats that feature warmth without weight.
